- COLDS ARE DANGEROUS.

How often you hear it remarked: "It's only a cold," and a few days later learn that the man is on his back with pneumonia. This is of such common occurrence that a cold, however slight, should not be disregarded. "My husband is so poetic," said one lady to another in a car the other day.

"Have you ever tried rubbin' his j'ints with hartshorn liniment, mum?" interrupted a beefy looking woman with a market basket at her feet, who was seated at the lady's elbow and overheard the remark. "That'll straighten him out as quick as anything I know of, if he ain't got it too bad."

Tee Wide a Difference.

Tee Wide a Difference.

The range of differences in prices in the market centres between the best and worst grades of cattle offered, has sometimes been as high as $4.50 per hundred. This is entirely too much. The enly explanation that can be made of this unprecedented wide range is that the receipts of undesirable cattle have been excessive. High prices have tempted ewners of half-fat and thin stuff te ship. As a rule, none but full, fat, ripe cattle should be sent to market.

THE SMALL-POX QUESTION.
Any intelligent physician will admit that you don't catch small-pox because someone clse has it, but because your condition favors it. Low vitality always encourages sickness, and at this season especially, everyone should take Retrozone, which destroys disease germs and makes the system so strong and healthy that sickness can't exist. Ferrozone is a vitalizing tonic that makes rich, red blood, builds up the nerves, cures nervousness and drives away tired languid feelings. To get strong and keep strong ure Ferrozone; it assures health and costs but 50c. at all druggists.

How the London Police Save Themselves

Preities Journeys.

It may be a surprise to many people, says The Penny Magazine, to know that a unique system of signalling exists among policemen, and, indeed, one might be brought daily into contact with our guardians of the peace for many years and still know nothing of it. The reason is that the signs in use must, in the very nature of the case, be unobtra-Fruitless Journeys. that the signs in use must, in the very nature of the case, be unobtrusive, and not easily detected by those not in the know. The signs appear to be quite ordinary movements of the arms and hands, and seem to the passer-by to be of no special signifi-cance. Sometimes a policeman may be seen to fold his arms in a perectly natural manner, but if the obfectly natural manner, but if the observer watches closely he may see that the index finger of one or other of his hands is pointing to some person in the vicinity. This is his method of indicating to a comrade, or it may be to a plain-clothes detective, that a pickpocket or other suspected person is near and should be kept under observation. This signal is especially useful when the onstable who gives it is engaged in controlling a crowd or in lining the controlling a crowd or in lining the route of a procession, for he can thus indicate to a detective the preis especially useful when sence of anyone he suspects, and cause attention to be drawn to him. Unusual interest is centered in a ase heard in the Dublin Police Court yesterday, in which the leading figure was a bulldog that formerly belonged to General Philip Botha and went through a good portion of the South African war. He was dressed in a coat with green facings and wore several South African medals with clasps. The animal's record is an eventful one. During the Boer war he was captured by the Second Royal Irish Rifles, Mounted Infantry, from Commandant Philip Botha's farm in the Doornberg, in September, 1900. From that time until the end of the war he trekked with the rifles mounted force from Griqualand in the west to Basutoland in the east, and he still bears the scar of a wound received in action. Later he was with General French's column in Cape Colony. For his service the buildog now wears the Queen's South African Medal with three clasps and the King's South African Medal with three clasps and the King's South African Medal with two clasps. Mr. Drury remarked, when the case was called, that this was the most distinguished dog in the country, as he had medals.—London Telegraph.

Staff College Commandant

Col. Sir H. S. Rawlinson, Bart., Col. Sir H. S. Rawlinson, Bart., C.B., who has been appointed Commandant of the Staff College, in succession to Col. H. S. G. Miles, C.B., who will shortly take over the command of the troops in Cape Colony, is a son of the translater of the cuneiform inscription, and has had an active military career. His first active service was in the Burmese war of 1886-7. In 1892 he exchanged from the King's Royal Rifles into the Coldstream Guards, and in 1898 was Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General to Lord Kitchener in the Soudan campaign, being present at the battles of Atbara and Khartoum. During the recent war in South Africa he took part in the Genes of Ladyamith, and afterwards commanded a mobile column with much success, being mentioned no fewer than six times in despatches.

Thousands take it for spring loss of appetite and everybody says there's nothing else as good as Hood's.

If wives had their way most men would go to work only about three days a week.

Woman is often referred to by man Woman is often referred to by man as "doubling his joys and halving his sorrows." That may be complimentary, but it would seem to be rather hard on the woman. For in plain terms it means that where things are going well with the man his wife makes them go better. But when things are going ill with him, he expects the wife to share half his burden. And there's more truth than occtry in this presentation of many. poetry in this presentation of mascu-line selfishness. Men don't appreci-ate the fact that the strain of mothrhood alone is a burden bigger than shoulders. They see the wife grow thin, pale, nervous and worn without a thought that she is over-burdened. a thought that she is over-burdened. Among the pleasant letters received by Dr. Pierce are those from husbands who have waked up before it was too late to the crushing burdens laid upon the wife, and in the search for help have found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a restorative which has given back to the mother the health of the maiden and the maiden's happiness.
