N. B. FARMERS COULD CONTROL THE BEEF MARKET

By Improving Their Stock and Feeding Their Hay at Home

By improving the stock and feeding their hay at home, local butchers say that the farmers of New Brunswick could control the local beef market and oust the western product, says the St. John Telegraph. For Easter beef five carloads of western cattle were brought to St. John and slaughtered for the local trade, besides two carloads of dressed beef handled through the wholesale butchers.

The city market looked very attractive yesterday with the fine showing of beef, lamb and fowl of all kinds, and the dealers pointed out that there was no distinction between good provincial beef and that brought from the west.

"There is no difference in the price," one man said, "when the beef is just as good, but the farmers have allowed their stock to run down and it is not very often that the provincial product makes a showing alongside the western meat. This year there is a new factor in the market in the shape of western cattle fattened in this province. Last fall York county farmers purchased 150 cattle from the west, paying five cents a live pound and have been feeding them all winter. These cattle are now being sent forward and command as high a price as their brothers direct from Ontario and the west."

Westmorland county beef is also on sale in the market, and is classed with the best. The price ranges from 10 to 11 1/2 cents wholesale, and 12 to 20 cents retail, according to the cut. Provincial lamb sells at $4.50 to $7 a carcass. Turkeys and ducks are rather scarce and are being imported, but all other kinds of fowl are very plentiful. Eggs stiffened in price a bit yesterday.

TRAIN DERAILED ON TOBIQUE BRANCH

Half a hundred passengers were in danger of serious injury when the Plaster Rock train, bound for Perth, jumped the track at a dangerous bend near Tobique Narrows on the Tobique branch early Thursday afternoon. None of the passengers were hurt, although all received a severe shaking up.

Two passenger coaches and one box car were derailed. The train was in charge of Conductor Herbert Colwell and Engineer Almon Tabor, and was making a speed of about twenty miles an hour at the time of the wreck. The track runs through a cut with the hillside on the left and an embankment with a 100 foot drop to the Tobique River on the right. Luckily the train left the rails on the left side of the track. The engine and tender with one box car remained on the rails and ran a distance of about fifty feet before being stopped.

An extra engine with a passenger coach from the north bound express ran up from Perth and brought the passengers down. The derailment caused a delay of about two hours on the north bound express and an hour on the south bound express. The Plaster Rock express was delayed over two hours while a wrecking train removed the derailed cars.

The accident was attributed to the track being heaved by the frost leaving the ground and the stiff working trucks of a new box car on the train.

G. W. GREEN AND HIS WORK

Considerable interest has been aroused by the arrest and jailing of Ziba Davenport for taxes.

It seems that the papers, an execution for $1.60, had been placed in the hands of G. W. Green, who, evidently fearing to tackle the job single-handed, took Thomas Stockford along with him. They went to the home of Davenport's father-in-law, Addison Foster of Mainstream, at midnight on Friday, April 7. After arousing the household the officers were told that the man they wanted was not there. Mrs. Davenport, however, offered to pay the amount of the tax but not the costs of two constables. The officers refused to settle and Foster drove the men away from his premises.

It was learned that Davenport would be at the place on Saturday night and accordingly at the eerie hour of midnight the officers appeared again. In response to a thunderous knock upon the door, Foster, the man of the house, opened and asked the visitors' business. Whereupon Green burst into the room, drew a large revolver and proceeded to ransack the place. Quickly as he could Davenport dressed and gave himself up.

Everything seemed to progress alright until when nearing Hartland, the captors, annoyed by the caustic remarks of the prisoner, began to administer rough usage and handcuffed him. Green kept the man at his house over Sunday, which the prisoner said was worse than being locked in a cell.

Davenport has had little chance to become world-wise and when on Monday the constables advised him to plead guilty to the charges which they would lay of resisting arrest and an attempted assault on Green, he did so but was amazed to find that having done this he had made matters worse, for the magistrate imposed upon him a $20 fine and costs amounting to $12.50, or two months in jail.

The prisoner was committed to jail, but a few days later friends paid his fine and he was released.

It is only fair to Green to say that the foregoing is Davenport's side of the story, yet this is a sample of the way the canobo, Green, goes about the country doing dirty, low tricks, making a farce of the legal authority, which never should have been his. He, himself, has been in jail several times during the past year, and would be there today if he were getting his just deserts.

The methods of Green and Stockford should no longer be tolerated. "They have been useful agents," says the Scott Act Inspector. But the people know that these gents cost the county $800 last year, and their method of procedure was more disgusting than the traffic of the liquor men.

Green is reported a rumseller himself and on three occasions has offended in this regard quite recently, it is stated.

No doubt Mr. Green and Mr. Stockford too, will take exception to this article and will threaten dire things, but there is little likelihood of our being asked to prove the charges or insinuations made. Nevertheless we are always "at home" in the little cement block by the railway track.

The ice ran on Easter Sunday. It was of unusual thickness but no serious damage is reported. The river is unusually low for this season, but is rising.
