We congratulate our artistic contemporary, the Dominion Illustrated, on the completion of its first year. It has fulfilled the engagement made two months ago with the Canadian public. Its engravings are always admirable, and its literary character is meritorious. We would call special attention to the series of contributions on Canadian industries in the issue for July 6—which begins a new year. The milling business—with special reference to the great firm of Messrs. A. Ogilvie—is the opening article of the series. The illustrations of the mills in Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba, and of the interiors, showing the machinery, make fine pictures. We wish the Dominion Illustrated Publishing Company success in this new enterprise, which should be encouraged. The last number (July 17) contains views of British Columbia and Alaska, and a portrait of the Hon. Senator Murphy.

Dawson Settlement Notes.

Last week's very dull and misty but not much wet, Sunday morning however we had a lively shower which would do some good to grain and roots and grass on low land. Grass will not be as good as last year but probably there will be enough for the home market. Some have commenced cutting and making hay.

Milford Hopper is preparing for a big crop of something as he has put up a frame for the second barn 30 by 40 ft. Milford Dawson has gone to Needham, Mass. for a month or two where he has a brother in business. As far as he is prepared to say N. B. is the better country for common people, which is the verdict of all reasoning people when they speak the truth.

There is some talk of a concert in the near future, under the auspices of Hold the Fort Lodge, for the purpose of raising funds to build a public hall which is one of the two things much needed in the place. The other necessity is a more appropriate name for the settlement than the rather long and useless appellation it now has.

Our intelligent and amiable school teacher, W. L. Dawson, is improving his vacation by cutting down the forest and trying to make a farm for himself, which speaks volumes for his industry.

The potato bug did not cause as much damage to the potato plants as in former years, but there is enough of them to keep the farmers on the watch.

REASON.

NIXON Notes.

Grain and other crops are looking much better since the rain, so the farmers ought to feel thankful as everything was suffering with the drought.

Mrs. Anley McMichael and son from Toronto spent several days at this place visiting relatives.

Mr. Willie S. Jackson of Boston also visited us and took his grandnephew, Mrs. Geo. Wilson, back with him. Mrs. Wilson is a much respected old lady and we hope she will enjoy her trip very much. Miss Ida Prosser of Prosser Brook, Elgin, accompanied them.

Elgin Notes.

Mr. Editor:

We send a few lines from Coleman's Corner for insertion in your valuable paper. Coleman's Corner is situated on the Pointe river 5 miles from Elgin Corner. Steeves & Godard have moved their portable mill from Elgin's Corner to this place where they intend to carry on every description of sawing this summer and the coming winter. They have in the vicinity of the mill 600 acres of valuable timber land. Some 5000 men are now cutting logs in the mill and they expect to commence sawing next week. Mr. Abernethy is the energetic foreman. Messrs. Steeves & Godard deserve great praise for their enterprise. It is men like them that build up a country.

The members of Garibaldi Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 128, of this place, in company with Star of Hope L. O. L. of Elgin Corner, went to Peticodiac on the 12th, by invitation from their brethren in Westmorland County and assisted in celebrating the anniversary of the battle of the Byrnie. A good time was enjoyed.

The Scott Act vs. License.

(Written for the Observer.)

As the Canada Temperance Act, after being in force for a number of years, in a good many localities, in different parts of Canada, has recently in many of these localities been repealed, we are led to consider the nature of a law that will rule these localities for the time being in respect to the liquor business; or the nature of a law that would possibly obtain in our own County if the Scott Act were repealed. It is well known that Albert County differs materially in this respect to the Counties in the Province. To the honor of her justices prior to the Act which incorporated the Counties of this Province, and subsequently to her councillors let it be legibly written in golden characters that no man was ever licensed to sell spirituous liquors within the bounds of the County of Albert. We have no guarantee, now, however, if the Scott Act were repealed that the Provincial License Law, or some other license Act would not take its place. New men are taking their seats each year at the Council board, some of whom are not pledged to temperance men—not even ostensibly temperate. It therefore behoves us to enquire what this license business means, which is really implied or gained in this Province.

Samuel Stannard, a man engaged in the spirituous liquors? To many this is not a new question. It has been considered over and over, time and again, perhaps from every stand point available. Yet perhaps there are some of your readers who have not given the question that mature deliberation which its merits demand. In considering this matter we will try and remove it from the region of abstraction and deal with it in as concrete a manner as possible.

The principal claim made by the advocates of the license system is that the money paid by the licensed dealer for his license goes into the treasury of the County and is placed to the credit of the Parish issuing the license. If no one is licensed to sell liquor then just that much money is lost to the credit of the Parish and it has to be made up by direct taxation. The fallacy underlying this statement is the fact that the license dealer does not pay the amount but simply collects, takes it from the people and hands it over to the County treasurer.

In order to see who pays this money let us suppose that the license board will support the license system for one year and adopt the license system for regulating the sale of spirituous liquors. At the first session of the Council we will suppose that there are twelve applicants which only are on an average two for each Parish and that the license board fix the fee to be paid for each license at $20.00. We will suppose these twelve applicants are successful, get their license, pay the $20.00 each and open up their places of business. The license advocate exultantly exclaims: "Two hundred and forty dollars that the license board has paid by the dealer in spirituous liquors that the County would have to make up by direct taxation if it did not grant a license to each of those parties to sell liquor." Let us look at this matter a little more closely and we will see that the County not only pays this two hundred and forty dollars but, at the very least, twenty-five times as much for the privilege of having these licensed taverns in our midst. The dealer having procured his license, and paid his fee, selects his place of business, gets in his stock of liquor and stands behind his bar. What is he doing there? Is he making useful material up into clothes? No, he is blowing the bellows; or, swinging the blacksmith's hammer; or, shoving the plane of the carpenter; or he is working out some plan that will make the people of his Parish wealthier, happier, wiser? Truly he is doing one of these things. He is simply waiting for the people to come in and hand him back the twenty dollars that he paid for his license. This they do. Then he says to the people: "You have got into this position and I must live. While I tend this bar, I cannot do anything else, I must have, at least, five hundred dollars this year to keep my family and that will only keep them in very moderate circumstances." So the people of the community during the year step up to the bar and pay over the five hundred dollars. But the license advocate says: "The dealer gives an equivalent for this five hundred dollars." He gives what he calls an equivalent. It would however be a million times better for those who patronize him if the same dealer gave his customers bits of card board, or tissue paper or some comparatively worthless article for the money they give him. Bits of card board never have produced the bad hearts, the wicked lives his equivalent produces. Bits of tissue paper never have filled our saloons, our jails, our penitentiaries, our lunatic asylums, could never have produced the crime, the misery, the suffering that is produced by that which the licensed liquor dealer gives as an equivalent for the five hundred dollars paid him.

We will now suppose the year has expired. Let us see how the account stands at the close. Twelve licensed liquor dealers pay twenty dollars each into the funds of the County which make two hundred and forty dollars. Twelve licensed liquor dealers collect from the people twenty dollars each to replace the amount paid for the license which make two hundred and forty dollars. Twelve licensed dealers collect from the people five hundred dollars each upon which to subsist during the year, which make six thousand dollars. Total amount collected from the people is two hundred and forty dollars and have saved the six thousand.

Who then pays the license fee? Most unquestionably the people do, and for the privilege of paying it first to the licensed dealer they have to pay twenty five times as much along with it. We have placed the amount at the very smallest figure possible. While there are only one who collect five hundred dollars there are dozens who collect one thousand dollars or more each year.

But some will say "they don't all belong to our village who patronize our bar." That may be true but if the people from other localities come here and drink their beer and wine and patronize the saloons there when they visit other localities, so the amount in that respect is kept balanced. No greater imposition was ever practiced on a free people than the teaching that a license to a person to sell liquor is a privilege to the community. If the Scott Act is ever repealed in Albert County and a better prohibitory law adopted, then let the County stand as it did prior to the adoption of the Scott Act: and let the free yeomanry of this county rise in their might as one man and say that no law shall be placed on the statute books of this County that would stain, and mar, and disgrace its record as a law to license a man to sell liquor would disgrace it.
