Glasgow Wants to Learn From Canadian Cities.

Looking Into Relative Merits of Different Taxation Schemes.
 To weigh the relative merits of taxing land on income values as is done in Glasgow and on capital value as is done in this country is the special object of a trip now being made by Thomas McMillan, senior magistrate of the city of Glasgow, and Alexander Walker, chairman of the board of assessors in that city.
 Both gentlemen are in Montreal today and will remain here until Wednesday. They went to the City Hall yesterday and visited the Mayor, spending some time in the assessment department.
 "Up to the present I am certainly more in favor of taxing capital than income values," said Mr. McMillan, and Mr. Walker agreed with him. "The object of our trip is to make a special report for the people of Glasgow, for we are desirous of getting as much result as possible. At present we have a general rate, etc., and now the question of changing the rate on land is occupying the Corporation of Glasgow. On our report will depend largely whether any change is made."
 The two gentlemen left Glasgow on March 28, and have made a tour of the United States and Canada. They will go from here to Boston and New York, whence they will sail for home in a week's time.
 "British Columbia was especially the object of our trip, for there they have tried the capital value of land as a basis of taxation," said Mr. McMillan. "We have called at other cities more because they were en route than for anything else, although we have learned a lot from staying in many of the places. You have some fine cities in the West, and Edmonton, where the single tax is in operation, struck me as being especially so."
 Asked whether they had taken much notice of civic loan flotation here, the visitors confessed that they had not. They did not see where they could improve on their present method in Glasgow. "We have not yet found any place on this side," said Mr. Walker, "where the city has to post up a notice that no more applications to lend money can be received. We get that in Glasgow every time we ask for a loan. We usually pay about 3 per cent, although on the last occasion we raised it to 3½ after your Canadian loan had failed.—Montreal Star, June 16.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Percie Johnson would provide for you this desired security and at small expense. Have you enough insurance?

The Little Green Tents.

The little green tents where the soldiers sleep, and the sunbeams play and the women weep, are covered with flowers to-day; and between the tents walk the weary few, who were young and stalwart in 'sixty-two, when they went to the war away. The little green tents are built of sod, and they are not long, and they are not broad, but the soldiers have lots of room; and the sod is part of the land they saved, when the flag of the enemy darkly waved, the symbol of dole and doom. The little green tent is a thing divine; the little green tent is a country shrine, where patriots kneel and pray; and the brave men left, so old, so few, were young an d stalwart in 'sixty-two, when they went to the war away.
