Hapless Hapsburg!

It is impossible to read the latest war news without a glow of satisfaction. It may have puzzled some that the military leaders of the Allies should have laid such jubilant emphasis on what they called the passing of the initiative from the Central Powers to the Allies. Events are now taking place which explain the reason and show that the term is not an empty formula. For nearly a year Italy had laid siege to the region of Trieste, but despite what were in truth brilliant successes she failed to achieve any progress worth while. General Cadorna was firmly held before Gorizia, an essential stopping-stone to Trieste. The Austrian advance through the Trentino definitely checked the operations on the Isonzo and even seriously threatened the great Italian army on flank and rear. Russia came to the rescue, as we have seen. Italy rallied, then surged back. The Austrians, weakened by large withdrawals of troops to the east, were forced to retreat through the passes they had just won. But it was recognised that Italy would have to regain all this lost ground before she could safely commit herself to a renewal of the Isonzo offensive, which is quite the major purpose of her campaign. Now, before she has in fact retaken more than half of it, we learn that she has taken Gorizia at a single bound.

Nothing could better show the meaning of this exchange of the initiative. Austria would never have submitted to the loss of Gorizia if she had had the strength to defend it. Evidently she had not. The reason is not far to seek. The great Austrian army under Von Bothmer falling back upon Lemberg, General Letchitsky has begun his expected advance from the southeast upon Stanislan. Austria is threatened with nothing less than the loss of all Galicia and is sore put to it for men. It is clear she has taken them from the vital region of Trieste. How far will the process go on? The dual empire is now faced by another and formidable invasion, the addition in effect of another front. Looking at this progress of events and the rapidity with which one effect reacts upon another on the vast but continuous battle-line, we feel confirmed in the opinion we have always held, that when the defeat of the Central Empires begins in earnest, it will proceed much more quickly than most critics will allow.

DEATHBED REPENTANCE.
 We learned some days ago that the "Berliner Tageblatt" had said too much, or of the wrong sort of thing, and had been suppressed. The news did not arouse much interest. He would have known that the paper must have been invidious enough to tell the truth, but could not be sure what particular bit of truth it was. The extract given by the Express yesterday is illuminating. It is plain speaking, which is yet more eloquent in what it suggests than in what it says. That the German commonly are beginning to inquire into the causes of the war is most satisfactory evidence that they are beginning to be doubtful of its results. Any cause is good enough which prevails; it is only when it shows signs of falling that those most likely to suffer from its failure begin to make moral analyses. This utterance by so large a paper is therefore an encouragement to us, as indicating not merely an awakening conscience but also a dawning consciousness of defeat.

The literal words of its indictment must be interesting to Englishmen of those living under a form of government founded on the English constitutional system. There is little essential likeness between the British Parliament and the German Reichstag. The latter is not much more than a forum for discussion, a vent for public opinion. That on the most vital subject imaginable, the question of peace or war, it should be allowed no voice is to us amazing. The decision rested wholly in the hands of the Kaiser and of the Bundesrat, which he controls. The Cabinet ministers are appointed by him; there is nothing of Parliamentary control over their liberation and actions. If there were, it is more than probable that there never would have been any war at all, and the world would have been spared this immense misery. The first thing to be swept away by the success of the Allied cause is the absurd medieval constitution which permits an individual fanatic to be vested with supreme and absolute power and the arbitrament of the life and death of a nation.

The public will receive with pleasure the publication of the complete list of the Regiment in France. It will be a satisfaction to know the names of the men who are there and it will also set at rest a good deal of any doubt that may have remained of the safety and whereabouts of those that survived the great attack. It is good, too, to see the Battalion coming back to its former strength, which should be attained by a few more drafts. It is for us to see that it is maintained; the rest we can leave confidently to the men themselves.

Death of Mrs. George Crowdy.

Many in the city will regret to hear of the death at Montreal last Saturday of Mrs. George Crowdy, under particularly sad circumstances. Her death was occasioned almost entirely by grief for the loss of her son, Captain Hinton Crowdy, of the 5th Royal Highlanders. The gallant soldier was killed at Armentieres, in France. He was a very fine type of man, standing six feet five, proportionately broad and physically a man in a thousand. Handsome, courageous and courteous as well, he was a son who might well be loved and worshipped by any mother. Mr. George Crowdy is a brother of Mr. W. H. Crowdy. Universal sympathy will be extended to him in his twofold bereavement.

The Brigadier-General's Tribute

"NOTHING COULD HAVE BEEN FINER."
 10th August, 1916.
 Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir,—I beg to enclose herewith copy of a letter dated July 18th, which has been received by His Excellency the Governor from Brigadier-General D. E. Cayley, commanding the 88th Infantry Brigade, which bears testimony to the gallant conduct of the First Newfoundland Regiment in the memorable battle of July 1st. As I feel sure that this letter will be of interest to the general public, I shall be glad if you will kindly give it a place in the columns of your paper.

Yours faithfully,
J. R. BENNETT,
 Colonial Secretary.

88th Infantry Brigade
 British Army in France,
 July 18th, 1916.

Your Excellency—
 You will have already heard of the very great losses suffered by the Newfoundland Regiment in the attack on 1st July. Colonel Hadow tells me that he has already written to you, describing the action.

The 29th Division was put in against what proved to be the strongest part of the German line, and, as it proved, impregnable to direct assault. Battalion after battalion was sent forward without success. Finally, two battalions of my Brigade, the Newfoundland and another, were ordered forward. I was in a position to observe the advance of the Newfoundland Regiment. Nothing could have been finer. In the face of a devastating shell and machine gun fire, they advanced over our parapets, not a man faltering or hanging back. They literally went on till scarcely an officer or man was left unhurt. Their casualty lists are a sufficient proof of this.

It was a cruel fate, which, in this their first real attack, allowed them to be nearly destroyed, without the compensating satisfaction of having got at the enemy. Also that the one unit in the field of a Colony which has made such sacrifices, should suffer such a fate is indeed tragic. I cannot sufficiently express my admiration for their heroism nor my sorrow for their overwhelming losses, which admiration and sorrow will be shared by all in Newfoundland.

I have the honor to be,
 Sir,
 Your obedient servant,
 (Sgd.) D. E. CAYLEY, Brig. Genl.,
 Commanding 88th Infantry Brigade.

Thomas Purcell, R.N.R.

HONOURABLY MENTIONED IN ADMIRALTY REPORT.
 Editor Evening Telegram.
 8th August, 1916.

Dear Sir,—I beg to forward herewith copy of an extract from the London Gazette of the 14th July, which has been sent me by His Excellency the Governor, with respect to the work of the Auxiliary Patrol, in connection with one of our Naval Reserve men who has received honourable mention. I am sure this will be of interest to all our people, and I shall be glad if you will kindly give the extract a place in your columns.

Yours truly,
J. R. BENNETT,
 Colonial Secretary.

McMurdo's Store News

THURSDAY, Aug. 10, 1916.
 For throat troubles—hoarseness, sore throat, huskiness, irritation, and kindred conditions—iodized Throat Lozenges are of great value, and often work with a promptness that is surprising. For those who suffer from throat irritation at sudden changes of weather, these lozenges are specially adapted. Price 35c. a bottle.

The Vice-Archival Stove is useful to those who go off on picnics or camping, or those who want to get a cup of tea or coffee in a hurry, or hot water for shaving, etc. Price 50c. each, complete with metal saucepan. Refills 15c. each.

NOTE OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hudson wish to thank His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson, Hon. J. R. Bennett, Mr. W. J. Higgins, M.H.A., Mr. Walter Clouston, Mrs. J. A. Giff, Mrs. C. F. Muir, Miss Winnicomb and all kind friends who sympathized with them in the loss of their beloved son Peter, who died of wounds on July 4th in France; they also had a letter from the Rev. Michael King, the R. C. Chaplain, stating he was very badly wounded and that he gave him the last rites of the Catholic Church and buried him with full military honors in the Catholic Cemetery in France.

REMOVED THE HORSES.

At the big fire that gutted the barn of Mr. McNamara, LeMarchant Road, a few days ago, Mr. William Wilson, who resides in that locality, did good work in removing the horses and carriage from the burning building. But for his promptness they would certainly have been destroyed.

WE have excellent photographs of Capt. Father Nangle (N.F.L.D. Regiment) for sale at 50c., $1.00, $1.50. Outport orders receive every attention. J. C. PARSONS, Bank of Montreal Building, St. John's, Nfld.
