STRIKES.

The strike is a neat surgical operation performed on the neck of the ultimate consumer. It usually consists of an amicable arrangement between labor and capital whereby neither loses anything so long as the common people remain solvent.

The strike is a plain, blunt method of raising wages which have fallen several laps behind the high cost of living. Some strikes are more blunt than others, and have to be quelled by the brandished billy of the uniformed police. In our large cities, however, a very poor brand of quelling is done, especially if a strike is pulled off just prior to the city election.

The strike is always accompanied by a physical culture exercise known as the walk-out. This is accomplished by leaving a flourishing manufacturing plant flat on its back, with all four legs in the air, and waiting for the board of directors to listen to the voice of reason. As every board of directors would rather go without bread than dividends, the strike is soon broken, and the price of hard coal is lifted four notches above the boiling point.

The strike is always accompanied by a physical culture exercise known as the walk out.

Sometimes labor and capital cannot get together, in which case it is agreed to arbitrate. The man who invented arbitration as a means of settling a strike had a bright, thoughtful mind, as it is one of the most satisfactory methods of extracting money from the pockets of the common herd that has ever been thought of by any thinker. Whenever a street-car strike is submitted to arbitration, the pigeon-toed strap-hanger sends for a trained nurse and begins to figure on a change of climate.

One of the worst forms of strike is that which occurs when some neighbor lures the hired girl away by promising her higher wages and free access to the piano. Thousands of married women, surrounded with dull care and high-spirited children, are subjected to this form of strike every year, and yet they are not even allowed to arbitrate. The law will not even permit a married woman to retain her maid's jewelry and chiffon velvet dresses in case of a walk-out. In view of these facts, we would like to ask: Where is woman's vaunted freedom in this country, anyway?

Everyday Etiquette.

"Please tell me whether it is considered good form to wear a band of black on one arm when a member of the family has passed away," asked Stella.

"This is a custom of olden times. If one cannot afford black garments it is best not to wear a black band or any outside sign of sorrow," said her friend.

Some of the new winter dresses have collars and wide skirt panels of striped material, the stripes running across.

Wedding Bells.

The marriage of Miss Nellie Hawco to Edward Walsh, both of Chapel's Cove, took place at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, September 11th, at the Church of St. John's. The Mass was performed by the Rev. Father Shean in the presence of a few relatives and friends. Mrs. John Healey, a sister of the bride, was her matron of honor and only attendant; Michael Walsh, a cousin of the groom, served as best man. After the wedding the happy couple then left for St. John's where they will spend a few days before leaving for Sydney, N.S.; in the latter place they will make their future home.

The new, straight coats of tailored suits show very charming straight lines.

Pockets which are useful but not over-conspicuous are hinted at for coming-tailored suits.
