

A Rupert Hughes Story at the Nickel.

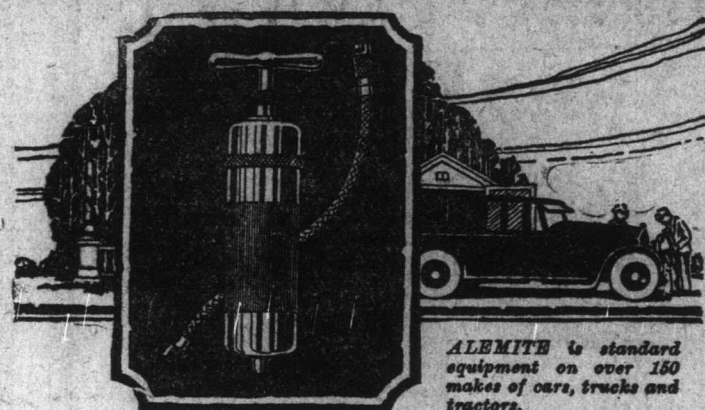

TOM MOORE IN "HOLD YOUR HORSES."

Imagine if you can, the handsome Tom Moore as a street-cleaner, dressed in the regulation "white wings"—not too white—unshaven, with a short clay pipe in his mouth and a long handled broom in his fist. That's how he starts out in "Hold Your Horses," a scream of a comedy made from Rupert Hughes famous story, "Canaan," and shown at the Nickel tonight. This is the first time to our knowledge, that Irish humor has ever been put into a motion picture. The first time that a handsome screen star, the idol of millions of fans, has worn the costume of a street cleaner. It's a picture you'll like.

But, you're not going to miss Wednesday's big attraction, "Unseen Forces," a Sidney Franklin production. It is one of those dramas that are discussed by patrons after they leave the theatre. "Unseen Forces" comes glowing from the fire furnaces of inspiration and tempered with great originality. It is so exquisite, so fragile, so beautifully and poetically fragrant that it is like a breath of spring. It stands out as one of the most charming things that the silver sheet has mirrored for a long while.

Obituary.

MR. STEPHEN ANDREWS.

The death of Mr. Stephen Andrews, on Friday night last, removes from the community its oldest and a well known resident and from the home a venerated head. Mr. Andrews was born in this town some 93 years ago, in April, 1828. No man of his time was better versed in the doings of the people, and there were few who had a fuller knowledge of local history, events and happenings. His memory was unimpaired, and the occurrences of well-nigh ninety years could be recalled at will and with remarkable correctness and clearness. The burning of St. Paul's Church, in the Market, was remembered by him, and although he was then not four years of age, it had a more lasting hold on his memory than less prominent events of late years. His memory was such that up to the day of his death he could tell the events of his early boyhood, and distinctly go over the history of the past. He attended school kept by Mr. Leaman and then by Mr. Kingswell in the building known as the C. & C. Co., in what is now known as Ward's Lane, but which in turn bore that of Kingswell, Gardner, Bell and Ward, the names of the men who taught in that school in succession. When asked, but a short time before his death, about the mercantile premises on the Beach, he gave the formation that when he was twelve years of age, he earned his first money with Mr. Soper who at that time conducted business there. The firm (afterwards Soper and Moore) had a store and wharf next inside (West and North) of the Point, and was remembered by men who are with us to-day. Mr. Andrews followed the fisheries for the greater part of his life—up to about 1875. After that time he became supercargo with Messrs. Mun & Co. He was with Captain Richard Pike throughout the eventful career of that seal-killer, and his recounting of the trips to the seal fishery were always an interesting topic with his hearers. The deceased is the last of his family, a brother, George Andrews and two sisters, Mrs. Richard Pike and Mrs. Valentine Webber, having passed away years ago. The wife of the deceased, who was a daughter of Mr. William Davis, passed away some fourteen years ago, and two daughters, Mrs. Reeves and Miss Catherine Andrews, also predeceased him. Two sons are living, W. R. Andrews, Esq., J.P., Sub-Collector at Gaultois, and Mr. Geo. W. Andrews, manager of the Anglo-American Telegraph Co. of this town with whom the deceased resided since the demise of his wife. Mr. Andrews was a worthy citizen, a good neighbor and an upright, conscientious man—one who pursued life's way in a peaceable, unostentatious manner, with a conscience free from any intended harm to anyone. Full of years, with the respect of the community, an aged and worthy man has passed away to reap the reward of a life well spent, and at peace with all men.

(John Murray's.)

The new series of reprints of popular novels which emanates from the publishing house of John Murray enhances the reputation which that firm has maintained during the many years of its existence. At a time when the price of new fiction makes it almost prohibitive to the average reader, this new series of well bound, well printed books, which includes many of the most popular of recent tales, will come as a real boon. At the low price of two shillings, there should be a great demand for these reprints, especially as beside the more recent novels, many of the hard to get works of Conan Doyle and other greatly admired writers are among the titles. It is no wonder, therefore, that the Daily Graphic describes this series as "of the first vintage, sparkling, rich, and very palatable."

McGUSKY.—The cheap edition of the works of A. G. Hales, which Dick's and Company have just received, from Hodder and Stoughton, include the best of the inimitable McGusky stories, which made their author famous. It was not until last year that I read my first McGusky story, and I read them all. The many amusing stories of the fiery Scots-Australian, who was never happy unless he was arguing religion or fighting, exercise a fascination over the reader which few books are able to do. No one who professes to be a reader of fiction should have to confess that he has never read McGusky.

THE ROUND TABLE.—The June number of that interesting quarterly "The Round Table," is replete with articles of the most interesting nature. Chief among these is that which reviews the Genoa Conference, upon which Lloyd George based such false hopes. The article deals with the Conference from many aspects and is most informative. The Irish Problem and the Drift of American Opinion are the subjects of careful and authoritative treatment and throw new light upon these so frequently misunderstood matters. Economic conditions throughout the Empire are reviewed in a most interesting manner by writers who are fully conversant with their subjects. The magazine will well repay a close perusal.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS.

"Tolstol as I knew him" is the title of an interesting account of the great Russian novelist's married life by his wife, which has recently appeared in serial form in "John O'London Weekly."

"If Winter Comes," the most successful novel of recent years, has just been filmed. This book has now sold 100,000 copies in England and 300,000 in the United States. These figures are phenomenal. The author's sister, Miss Vere Hutchinson, has recently published a very striking novel of the sea.

"Suggestion and Auto-Suggestion," the book written by Dr. Bandouin and based on the theories advanced by M. Coue, is enjoying a good sale in England. This book may be obtained at some local bookellers.

Speaking of auto-suggestion, the following linerick sent to John O'London's Weekly is most amusing.

A girl had a hole in her stocking, which she was shocked to find. Said she, declare That the hole is not there,

The World of Books.

THE TELEGRAM'S LITERARY SECTION.

THE RED CAVALIER.—Among recent books received by Dick's & Co., is one by a writer new to me, Gladys Edmon Locke. Although written by an American, the scene is laid in England, and the author depicts life in that country in a manner which carries conviction. "The Red Cavalier" is a mystery story of exceptional interest and from the first chapter the attention of the reader is gripped, and unlike most tales of similar nature, is held to the very end. For those who are in need of a literary pick-me-up, I cannot do better than recommend this book.

AUCTION BRIDGE.—Auction Bridge has made great strides during the past decade and is now the most universal popular card game. Many books have been written about it, most of them for the aid of a player and few of any value to the beginner. I have at hand, however, found the very book that, and other average bridge players require. It is "The 1922 Rules and Laws of Auction Bridge," and in its less than one hundred pages will be found more useful information than in all other bridge books. The author and publisher is Wynne Ferguson of New York. In his opening paragraph, the author says: "Every card player wants to play auction, and it's a waste of time to try to play unless you play well. You want to play Bridge and better Bridge, and the object of this book is to increase the crop of good bridge players." He is as good as his word and the best players can improve their game by a study of this brightly written little book. Moreover, it contains the very latest laws as drawn up by the New York Whist Club, and no player can afford to be without these. I am indebted to Dick's & Co. for a copy of this valuable treatise on Bridge.

And perfect the stocking, and clocking.

Mr. Sinclair Lewis, the author of "Main Street," is now in London where he will shortly publish a new novel. This will be called "Babbitt."

The American Secretary of Agriculture was recently sent a copy of Knut Hamsun's "Growth of the Soil." The package was opened by one of the myriad functionaries in Washington, who promptly forwarded it to the Bureau of Soil Survey.

How many know that the first book on war was written by a Chinaman? His name was Sun Tzu. Mr. St. Leo Stachey, writing in the Nineteenth Century says:—

"The book was, until quite recently, the recognized text-book on the Art of War for modern Chinese students of Strategy—yet this stated-pattern military classic of China was written by Sun Tzu a generation before Aristotle!"

Actors are not generally believed to be very literary people. A symposium in a recent number of that well known English literary review "John O'London's Weekly," gives the lie to this belief. George Robey, the great comedian, and himself an author, gives a list of books, the weight of which would turn the head of the average reader dizzy. The most popular novel among famous stage folk appears to be "If Winter Comes," and "Joanna Godden" is a good second. Dickens is very popular, and Arthur Bourchier who is, by the way, an M.A., heads his list with "The Book of Job."

League Football To-Night.

C.L.B. vs. GUARDS.

The opening of the League Football season takes place to-night when the Guards and C.L.B. will be the contending teams. Mr. George Hunt will referee. The line-up is as follows:—
C.L.B.—Goal, R. Knight; backs, H. Burridge, W. Kirby; halves, S. Skiffington (Capt.), H. Rendell, W. Cane; forwards, A. Henebury, B. Ross, R. Chaff, G. Brock, J. Snow.
GUARDS.—Goal, Moore; backs, W. Thistle, E. Rose; halves, W. Halfyard, N. Ellis, G. Parsons; forwards, Ches. Quick, Geo. Quick, Charles Quick, J. Macklin, H. Conliss.

St. George's Field has been considerably improved during the spring, and the grandstand has also received attention. The various teams have had a good deal of practice during the past few weeks and some interesting matches should be seen during the season. The following meets will be held during the week:—
Tuesday—Cadets vs. Saints.
Wednesday—B.I.S. vs. Fieldians.
Thursday—Star vs. C.E.I.
Friday—Highlanders vs. Guards.

Fatal Motor Accident.

INJURED BOY DIES IN HOSPITAL.

Michael Duff, the ten-year-old son of Arthur Duff, of Topsail Hill, died yesterday morning in hospital from injuries received when he was hit by a motor car the night before. Rev. Fr. Casey, of St. George's, was the driver of the car. The accident occurred at 5.15 p.m. Saturday. The car was coming down Topsail Hill behind a wagon on which Michael Duff and his brother were stealing a ride. As the car was about to pass, the boys dropped to the ground, one falling into a ditch while the other, Michael, ran across the road in front of the oncoming car. It was too late to avoid a collision and the unfortunate youth had jumped almost under the wheels of the car. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and hurried to St. Clair's Home where every thing possible was done for him. A medical examination showed that the injured boy had a fractured skull. He died early yesterday morning. No blame attaches to Fr. Casey, who took every possible precaution.

CONFERENCE OF EXPERTS.

PARIS, June 12. The British reply to Premier Poincare's memorandum, setting forth the French attitude, agrees that the Hague conference should be a consultation of experts, and should avoid political and diplomatic questions. The British Government asserts that private property in Russia should be restored to owners, or that they should be fully compensated, but that Russia's sovereignty should be respected. Britain considers it necessary that Russia's war debt should be reduced in part, and that Government aid should be given to assure guarantees to private interests by opening credit for Soviets.

Though suffering intense pain the little chap was quite brave until medical attention was procured, and is only disappointed over the fact that his accident will preclude him from taking part in Wednesday's Sports.

CHILDREN SHOULD BE WARNED.
Near the junction of Gower and Cochrane Streets a fatal accident was barely averted on Saturday afternoon by the presence of mind of this driver, when motor car, owned by Hon. S. J. Poole, struck a little chap named Snow. The boy had been stealing a ride on a long cart and jumped off just in front of the motor car, so that it was impossible that the driver could bring his machine to a stop without it hitting the lad. Fortunately the car was going slowly and beyond receiving a few scratches the boy was unharmed. In view of this, and the more serious accident on Topsail Hill on Saturday, parents should warn their children to be careful.
