Hunting on bicycles seems to be a ular pastime in the south of England. According to the latest departhe "hare" is a rustic cyclis mounted on an ancient crocklet. He has a quarter of an hour's start of the hounds, and trails behind him a rabbit's skin soaked in oil of aniseed. A pair of beagles are then laid on the "scent," and with half a dozen terriers and the cycling huntsmen, start off in hot haste. The "hare" checks the course at intervals with paper, and if he be at all cunning can cut out a very exciting "scent" by going through a wood, crossing a hedge, or wading stream, thus at the same time giving the dogs a "breather. When the bicycle first appeared in India, it was not at all an uncommon thing for natives to fall down and worship it. Calcutta can probably claim more lady cyclists than any other city in India. They ride very well, too. Bicycles have a rough time in India, chiefly owing to the ignorance of the native servants who clean them.

They mean well, but repeated deluges water have never improved a cycle yet, and the state of rust the bearings get in, and even sometimes the rims and frames, is heartrending to those who can appreciate a good bicycle. There are laws in India compelling cyclists to carry lights, but most of the constables being natives. take their trip to Montreal. and the cyclists white, arrests are rare. SPOKES.

It is intended to appoint a referee inspector of cheese to settle disputes as to quality between buyers and sellers. Throughout Ontario there are what are known as cheese fairs, attended by sellers and buyers. Cheese is sold subject to inspection, and when the inspector of the buyer comes around to test the purchase he sometimes pronounces it below standard and asks for a reduction in price. Many of the fac-tories have lost large sums by having to submit to such reductions, and the object of the bill is to appoint a man who, in the case of dispute, will de-cide whether the cheese is up to the standard or not, giving reasons for his decision, and if it is up to the standard the buyer shall be required to take it off the hands of the seller at the price agreed upon at the fair.
