A Socialist Deputy Launches Them in French Chamber.

READS INCRIMINATING LETTER

Which Proves That the Minister of War Had Suppressed Important Documents.

Paris, April 7.-M. Jaures, a Socialist deputy, today launched his promised revelations of the Dreyfus case in the Chamber of Deputies. They proved to be more censational and more important than was anticipated, and reawakened much of the angry excitement that marked the sittings of the Parliament when "l'affaire" was tearing France to pieces. M. Jaures undertook to show that a document of the most serious importance, which might have procured a decisive investigation of the case, was systematically suppressed, that the spurious letter attributed to Emperor William, was, like Colonel Henry's forgery, done at the ministry of war, and that highly-placed officials were responsible for it, and that this fraudulent document was afterwards slipped into the ministerial dossiers in manner that enabled it to be procured as evidence without incurring the risk of public scrutiny.

DUPE OF THOSE WITHOUT HONOR M. Jaures' speech was long, and though it was eloquent and powerful, it need not be followed in detail. Its purporting to have been written by General de Pellieux in August, 1898, the day Col. Henry committeed suicide, to M. Cavaignac, who was the minister of King Says Affairs in Balkans Are They Object To Paying the Customs war, asking permission to resign because he realized that he "was the dupe of those without honor, and unable to longer rely on the confidence of my subordinates and unable to trust my superiors, who have made me work

"I know that on Aug. 14, M. Cavaignac was convinced of Col. Henry's first forgery, although he did not inform me of it until Aug. 30. Today I learn for the first time of the existence of Gen. de Pellieux's letter. M. Cavaignac did needs order, unity and peace. Curious Libel Suit.

London, April 7.-The jury in the libel suit of Richard Ganthony against the Daily Express, returned a verdict today in favor of the plaintiff and damages in the sum of £200 were awarded. The libel consisted in a statement by the Express that George Hawtrey rewrote Mr. Ganthony's play, "A Message from Mars." Mr. Ganthony denied this. He said the idea and construction of the play were entirely his own, and that George Hawtrey merely changed the scene from New York to London, and introduced a few sayings to make the play suitable

Messrs, Small & Stair, lessees of the Grand and the defunct Toronto Opera Houses, will also have a stake in the Princess Theater next season. The new theater to be built to replace the Toronto Opera House will probably be called the Majestic Theater, but a new site will be chosen. Thus, next season will find the Princess, the Grand and the proposed Majestic pracperilous attempt, the animal tamer, armed only with a whip, tried alternately to coax or drive the big beast from the outside cage into the inner quarters. He won, but only by the use of the "water cure." The unruly beast was Prince, an African Barbary lion, which was bought last week from a circus in Wisconsin.It is the only representative of the species in this country and cost the zoo $1,400. Prince is a magnificent animal, larger than the ordinary full-grown lion, with a great, shaggy mane and a massive head. He is 5 years old. Prince was shipped to the park on Saturday, and yesterday was let into the outside cage for the first time. The animal proved the chief attraction for the crowds all day, the other lions suffering from comparison. Prince was complacent enough until a cold wind sprang up late in the afternoon and then he got peevish. He roared for De
