All the best and kindest mother can

Example is more than precept, and actions more than words. It is a dangerous thing to deceive a child in even a trifling matter. It is the seed of distrust which may grow to such dimensions as to poison the whole nature. If a boy or girl is called on to bear the pain of a slight surgical or dental operation, which does not require an anaesthetic, it is always better to tell the truth firmly and quietly. It is wonderful how much, courage it gives the child if he has learned to in some such way, and once lost such confidence is not easily regained. A mother who retains the confidence of —It is so easy when you are young and pretty, and long for the good things of life, to drift into a flower-covered path that leads—where? Therein what it will end. The other path may seem harder to walk on; it may offer few attractions, but if you look closely at it you will find that along the sides there are little blossoms that do not fade quickly like the more brildo not fade quickly like the more brilliant quivotic ones—blossoms that bring happiness into life. There are the blossoms of self-respect, of duty done, of knowledge gained, of honesty, and, best of all, there is that neverfading flower of true womanliness. Which path are you going to take? You cannot afford to hesitate. And there is no middle road. Sometimes you may have walked a little way in that path of folly and then turned back. If you have done this give never-ceasing thanks for your salvation. But think it all out, and, giving it the thought it should have, take the right path at first, the path that ends in love and happiness here and hereafter—Ruth Ashmore.

JEALOUSY AND ITS CURE.

While a wife may win her husband's ant it is better than smooth dissimilation. To maintain happiness and a band and wife once the shade of doubt has darkened either mind the business and social relations of each should be made known to the other, and the first barrier of deceit should be torn down by a full and honest acknowledgement of any wrong that has been long. The Bousehold.

The old question, "Which came first, The old question, "Which came first, the fowl or the tgg?" appears in various forms, as nature's wonders impress the untutored mind. A daily paper gives this incident, reported by a protessor of science who had gone south with an expedition to observe an eclipse. The day before the phenomenon the professor called to an old negro man belonging to the house where he was staying:
"Sam, if you watch your chickens tomorrow morning, you'll find they'll all Don't forget that the nurses of a woman's beauty are seven—fresh air, sunshine, warmth, rest, sleep, food and whatever stirs the blood, be it exercise or enthusiasm.

Don't neglect sleep. You can sleep yourself into good looks. A long nap and a hot bath will make any woman more attractive and lift years from her shoulders. her shoulders.

Don't eat when tired, and don't work when tired. It is a mistake to work when not in a fit condition—bad for the work and worse for you.

Don't miss your 'beauty sleep.' It is a mistake to go to bed late at night, rise at daybreak and imagine that every hour taken from sleep is a hour gained.

"Sam, if you watch your chickens tomorrow morning, you'll find they'll all go to roost at eleven o'clock."
Sam was skeptical, but at the appointed hour the heavens were darkened and the chickens retired to roost.
The negro's amazement knew no bounds. He sought out the professor, and approached him in awe.
"Massa." said he, "how long ago
did you know dem chickens would go

THE MODERN MAGICIAN.

A group of women were talking about the stupidity of men at all times and their enormous denseness when their wives were trying to give them a hint. "You know one day we had company unexpectedly, and we hardly had enough to go around," said one woman. "I tried to catch my husband's eye to convey to him that he was serving the meat out too generously. But he would not take the hint. When he had given out the last bit, there were two plates left unfilled. What do you suppose that shameless man did? He simply called all the plates back again and scooped enough off each one to fill the remaining two."

"I shall always take my husband aside beforehand and tell him, a few things," said an engaged girl.
