In the speeches, which were of the most vulgar and abusive character, the brewers were likened to Beelzebub, and the publicans to the Let us humbly hope that it may please the Almighty to restore the modesty to tell his audience (assembled in the Town-hall, family from the anxiety under which they have been laboring. it should be observed, by the sufferance of Mr. Tebbott, the worthy mayor), that the people of Windsor were a set of brutes, and that "they were more stultified and brutalized than the people of any other town in the kingdom," because they loved certain good things too well to join the teetotallers and sign the pledge. The proceedings throughout the evening were a series of rows, fights, and disturbances. The property of the corporation was seriously damaged; the forms and benches broken, and several chairs, during a melée, shivered into a hundred pieces. The police, who were ordered to be present after the first outbreak, ejected several of the most violent. If they had strictly performed their duty, they would have cleared the hall of every one of the rioters at the onset, taken the most uproarious to the black-hole for the remainder of the night, and the key of the door to the mayor. The scenes which were witnessed between some females of a certain class and their drunken male companions were of the most abominable description. These tectotal orgies, which commenced at an early hour in the afternoon, were not brought to a close till between 9 and 10 o'clock at night. At the last meeting of the borough magistrates (the Mayor in the chair), an inhabitant called the attention of the bench to the riotous conduct of the teetotallers on the night in question, and more especially to the conduct of the hallkeeper, who, he stated, was evidently no "pledged man," but somewhat "the worse for liquor;" for that he (the said hallkeeper), at the conclusion of the meeting, pointed out a gentleman residing in the town to the infuriated assemblage as the party who (he said) was the cause of the whole of the disturbance. This was very nearly getting the falsely accused party a broken head, but it secured for him, as taisely accused party a broken head, but it secured for him, as it was, the low abuse of the whole of the riff raff then present.

The Mayor, who strongly con-demned the conduct of this paid functionary of the corporation (who had signed "the pledge" some half-dozen times and broken it as often), stated that, from what he had heard of the disgraceful proceedings which had taken place on the evening from the Province at the outbreak of the rebellion and returned referred to, he had made up his mind never again to give his consent for the Town-hall to be similarly disgraced by a "festival" of a tectotal character, which began, continued, and ended in "a row." It is, therefore, to be hoped that the town

KINGSTON CORPORATION ADDRESS.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: We her Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the Town of Kingston, beg leave to meet Your Excellency with a cordial and respectful welcome to the Seat of Government in Canada.

The tame of the eminent reputation which Your Excellency has justly acquired in the discharge of high and responsible duties in the service of the British Government in various parts of her Majesty's extended Empire, has preceded Your Excellency's arrival in this important portion of that glorious dominion, and induces a well-founded and cheering hope, that the same uniform success which has marked your previous public career, will continue among us, and distinguish, to the latest period of time, Your Excellency's administration of the Govrnment of this country

While we are fully sensible of the cares and the labors consequent upon the exalted position, which by the command of our beloved Sovereign, Your Excellency is about to assume, we entertain a firm belief that, in all Your Excellency's exertions to promote the peace and prosperity of this Province as an integral portion of the British Empire, Your Excellency may confidently rely upon the support of the Canadian people, We regret that the joy attendant upon Your Excellency's approach to the soil of British North America should be clouded the deeply and widely lamented condition of your Excellency's predecessor in office; and to the feelings of sincere respect and sympathy which the inhabitants of Kingston Bagot, are especially interesting to us at the present time, inentertain for him on his couch of suffering, your Excellency will be pleased to attribute any omissions of public congratulation which would otherwise be exhibited to your Excellency on tated the different parties in the Colony. your auspicious arrival.

should combine together for carrying out the purposes for which the two Provinces had been wisely united under one Government. This was an essential feature of the new Government, and h must say that the course which had been pursued by Sir C Bagot, had been most entirely and cordially concurred in by her Majesty's Government. It was one of the prom features of their determination, to know no distinction of race or language between those who were willing to concur in pro-

rooting the prosperity of the Colony."

The instructions are wise and politic. We have ever advo cated the admission of the French Canad ans to a proper share in the Government. No other policy could succeed, for any | per acre; and for the third concession from said road, 1d her would have been founded in injustice, and would have ended in complete failure,

But the question is—Has Sir Charles Bagot followed these nstructions either in spirit or to the letter? Let his celebrated petition to Mr. L fontaine answer. The deep disgrace brought on the Crown and the loyal population of Cahada, by a British Governor condescending to entreat any individual to join his councils-that individua! a short time previously in open rebellion for the purpose of overthrowing British suprenacy in the Colony, was rendered deeper by the humiliating terms of the petition; and this disgrace is now proved to have been inflicted by Sir Charles Bagot in direct opposition to the ustructions of the Imperial Government.

Mr. Lafontaine was offered a carte blancke as to all the and not content with this humiliating condition as the strongest inducement to join the present government, Sir Charles ssured him that this offer was made because Mr. Lafontaine belonged to and represented a distinct race. To Mr. Cherrier the offer of Solicitor General was made for a similar reason, with the further understanding that this office should not at all interfere with his peculiar political opinions. Did Sir Charles Bagot thus fulfil his instructions either in spirit or to the let-ter? But one answer can be given—Lord Stauley is equally at fault when he describes the policy of Sir Charles Ba having "produced peace and contentment among the whole population of Canada."

Why was the thrice rejected Mr. Baldwin driven to seek the support of the free and independent electors of Rimouski? Mr. Baldwin would not assist in quelling the late rebellionshe was suspected of secretly aiding the rebels-he was the bosom friend of the great French leader-indeed, a very con venient and very prominent part of the great leader's tail—
nevertheless, the British population among whom "contentment had been so fully produced," thrice indignantly rejected
Mr. Lafontaine's friend, and drove him to a constituency who are content to let others think for them in political matters. Lord Stanley it appears has yet to be informed that the persons whom he has described as those who had stood loyally by the Crown—those who boldly repelled the hordes of plunderers from their soil-those who had sacrificed their lives-those who had boldly opposed rebellion and treason from within, and lawless in vasion from without - not only (as he says) would this Society be ordered to notify the other Societies of the in have reason to complain that the memory of their sacrifices | tended meeting. should be lost, and that those who were suffering a moderate and legal punishment for their crimes should be at once restored their country and placed upon an equal footing with those who had conducted themselves loyally and well-but that they do complain that such persons have been dismissed and studi ously excluded from offices which would place them upon an equal footing with the distinct race which Mr. Lafontaine represents. They do complain that "this distinction of race" should be the passport to office, and that previous rebellion should be pre-Ferred to tried loyalty. Such has been the policy of Sir C. Bagot, and whether Mr. Roebuck did or did not use the language attributed to him by Lord Stanley, "that those who led the people to revolt now held high places in authority,"-it is nevertheless true. He might have added that it was not the fault of Sir Charles Bagot that a greater number of these gentlemen are not in places of authority. These places were offered for their acceptance, but as by Mr. Girouard, were refused.

Was such a policy very likely to produce contentment among That it has had a very difthe whole population of Canada? ferent effect upon the minds of the great body of those who lately saved the Colony to the Crown, in spite of the influence the leaders and guides who have now obtained a footing in the Council of Canada," is notorious.

Whatever may be the policy of Sir Charles Metcalfe, his previous character gives us ground to assume that he has and can form an opinion of his own, and that he will not be led blindfolded by a body of Councillors who have showed their appreciation of his predecessor by disregarding what they supposed would prove his dying request.

of Good Hope. There is no foundation for the report.

The Montreal Herald states that Mr. Leach "has been recognized as an ordained Episcopal Clergyman by the Bishop of Toronto," With feelings of the most friendly regard and respect towards Mr. Leach, whom we hope to welcome as "an ordained Episcopal Clergyman," we must set our valued co-temporary right. The Bishop of Toronto could not recognize Mr. Leach's Presbyterian orders, for, in the eyes of the Church, a Presbyterian minister is even less than a Church layman, that is, he is regarded by the Church as a layman in a state of schism. An account of the election of a minister for St. George's Chapel, Montreal, will be found elsewhere. As we see that the matter has given rise to controversy, we will say nothing about the parties concerned, but will only express our regret that any minister should ever be elected. The system is bad in theory and practice, as we will soon show by some recent

The resolutions respecting Colonial Colleges, on our fourth page, will be read with much interest. Newfoundland seems to arrive nearer to sound principles than Nova Scotia; though both are much at sea. If the Church is to share the public give no support at all to any denomination. The Common School Bill, in this Province, is getting more and more unpopular every day.
