In most provinces it would appear that, even without y special arrangements such as those which have not been veloped in Ontario, the extent of the responsibility of the ivate sponsors of refugee families, once they have been landed Canada, does not normally go beyond a year or two at the most.
e Federal Government will continue to work with the provincial overnments to the end that refugee families entering Canada will e enabled to come under the protection of existing health and lfare legislation as soon as they are eligible to benefit erefrom, and in this way, with the active interest and support voluntary organizations, together with the joint efforts of overnments at all levels, my colleagues and I are satisfied that e shall continue, even after the end of World Refugee Year, to ntribute in an important measure to the solution of this mpelling human problem.