NURSERY

CONDUCTED BY R. Elinor Murray

Sympathy.

Personal sympathy after all is the base of every human influence. The girl and boy grown up and out in the world seldom recall the work done for them during their childhood by their father and mother. The labor and sacrifices are remembered, but taken quite as a matter of course, as things that all parents undergo for all children.

But the good times together, the confidences, the adventures, when mother belonged to the boy's domestic science club, and to the boy's canoe club, these are the remembrances that linger until old age.

There are few grown-ups who do not try to live up to the faith which their mothers had in them. What hold then will the mother have on the adult life, who is not the intimate friend and comrade during childhood?

The benefits which come to a boy from intimate companionship with the father are very great and lasting in their effects. The boy's heart and brain are seething with vague hopes and ambitions. He is not likely to reveal them to a busy father, who from a sense of duty, occasionally puts down his paper long enough to ask him how he is getting along at school.

A flood of misunderstanding, icy cold flows between these two. The boy goes away from home companionship for his friends and pleasures. Very different is the father who holds a big place in his son's life. They are just chums; they go fishing, they take long walks, they have the handiest chummiest talks in which few subjects are not reverently touched. When we ask ourselves: How shall we deal with the boys and girls growing up around us, would it not be well to carefully consider the strongest factor in child-training, personal sympathy.

The Barnardo Musical Meetings.

During the past few days Rev. W. J. Mayers has had very large audiences attending his successful meetings at Dovercourt, Presbyterian Church, Parkdale Methodist, St. Paul's Anglican, Trinity Methodist, and the Bible College Hall. The illustrated story of Dr. Barnardo's work has awakened great interest, and the skillful playing of the Barnardo boys on their hand-bells, bagpipes and other instruments has been much admired. While very frequent encores have been given, the collections for the Canada Hall fund have been very encouraging. Mr. Mayers and the boys leave on Monday next for a month's tour in Western Ontario. They return to the city at Christmas, when another series of meetings will be held.

CREDIT MEN MEET

Misconception as to Work of the Association Cleared Up.

A number of speakers at the regular monthly dinner of the Canadian Credit Men's Association, held at McConkey's last night, emphasized the fact that the association has not been instituted to do the work of mercantile agencies. The rather popular misconception on this point was cleared up by A. G. Malcolm of the Gordon MacKay Co., who presided, by the secretary, L. G. Ball, and a number of other members of the association. Mr. Duns and Bradstreet's still useful and helpful agencies, but the informing department of the credit men furnishes details necessary for the successful management of a large wholesale credit house, which is difficult to obtain from any other source.

Mr. Ball went thru the different business forms used by the association, showing them on a canvas. He explained how, on request of a member, any retailer's standing will be furnished, together with the history of his dealings with other wholesale houses for a period of years. This system is valuable, he said, both in the case of the doubtful party being exposed or vindicated.

Reference was made to the Bulk Sales Act, which is legislation designed to protect wholesalers from retailers who sell out under value and flee from their creditors. Solicitor McClelland expressed the hope that the present session would see its passing into law. Mr. Ball stated that 158 members representing the largest and most influential wholesale houses are now connected with the Toronto office. An active campaign for new members is being waged.
