Granite Club Has an Active Membership of Women Curlers.

BONSPIEL TUESDAY

Four Women's Clubs Will Send Rinks to Compete for the Coveted Trophy.

The Women's Granite Curling Club is preparing to defend the tankard next Tuesday when three other women's curling clubs of Toronto will endeavor to win it from them. This curling event will be one of great interest among lovers of the sport.

The Granite ladies' club was organized in 1914 and they have about 30 members, nearly all of whom are active. During the war this club has always aimed to devote the proceeds of any entertainment to some war charity. Last year the club was able to donate over $300 to war relief work.

The president of the club is Mrs. Z. Gallegar, the secretary Mrs. W. Cork.

One Big Event.

The outstanding event of the club's year is, of course, the annual play for the tankard, which this club won last year, and hopes to keep for several

SWISS RED CROSS WILL NOT HAVE TO CLOSE

Generous Donations Have Enabled the Society to Resume Its Good Work to Help Canadians

Among the last mail received from Switzerland by Prof J. Cusin, presi-cent of the Swiss Red Cross, there is an item of gladness, as the committee of the international agency for prisoners of war at Geneva had been threatening to close its doors for want of financial help Among the generous answers uppermost was the Prix Nobla, amounting to $70,000, with some financial help from sister socie-ties of the Red Cross- This saved the committee from closing its doors, and now without any interruption the Red. Cross in Geneva will look after the Canadian boys, prisoners war in Germany, making inquiries about their health, forwarding money, parcels and correspondence to them.

The running expenses are very high $10,000 a month, and the whole work is done free of charge. The agency is supplied by voluntary contributions and donations. The American Red Cross gave $21,324 and other Red Crosses $30,133. There are over 1000 workers in the Swiss Red Cross. Most of them are first volunteers unpaid, but half of the help is now salaried workers under the direction of Guslave Ador, acting minister of fore:gn

The Swiss Red Cross in Toronto in ction with the international agency for prisoners of war at Geneva is still faithfully doing its humani-tarian work, free of charge, helping Canadians to find the missing father, son or friend supposed to be prisoner of war in Germany.

GIRLS By ... Rosalind

Rosalind gives advice to girls in both the daily and Sunday World. Both papers, therefore, should be watched for her answers. Writers sometimes ask that answers be given either in the daily or Sunday paper; but so many letters are received that it is impossible to separate them. Letters requiring private answers must contain self-addressed, stamped envelopes.

DEAR ROSALIND: I wish to ask your advice on a question that has puzzled me for quite a long while. About three years ago I met a young man with whom I became very frierdly. I kept company with him for about three months when I had to leave the city, we kept corresponding for about six weeks after I had left, after that time his letters came less frequent and he also promised to come and see me while I was away but he disappointed me and sent week ar cuses until our correspondence gone back to the firing line again. Since then I have written two or three times and he has answered just in a friendly way. But since he was sick he has never been out of my thoughts. I dream of him at nights also. This is my question. Do you think it is his love calling me, or is it just a foolish idea that I should try to forget him?

happy. Read back to my answer to unhappy seventeen. I do not think you are unhappy over your affair; but you might become a little bit melon-choly if you think too much about your dreams. Since the soldier boy has no claim on you, you need not refrain from being friendly with other boys. A good deal depends on whether you care for other boys' companion-ship; and what you mean by it. A girl can have boy friends, you know without "keeping company."

Somewhere in Ontario. DEAR ROSALIND: I am writing you more because I must tell someone my troubles, than for advice.

There is a man, as there always is, in a girl's life, one noble, true and perfect. I want you to help me. I have a lady friend, many years older than I. She married a man of her own age. As a friend and she chaperoned me. While at her home I learned to love her husband, were there ever girls with troubles like mine? We even dream of each other by my interest in machinery. He loved his car, and his attention was absorbed by the machine when driving the car. Well to shorten a long story, he let me drive the car. I was careful to hide my love from him. I kept out of his company as much as possible and at last went to a distant city. When I left he missed me, and he found out that he loved me too. We each loved, without the other one knowing. I stayed away as long as possible, but had to return. I then went to live with my aunt near his home. I never went to any parties that he was at, or to his home, but his wife was my dearest friend and she coaxed me to go out with them, and I gave in. I know my duty but failed knew my duty but failed.

This continued for several months, when one night at a ball, after dancing with him I could not enjoy myself, and wandered out on the grounds, not knowing he had done the same thing a few minutes before. We met. He spoke and passed on with a few remarks about the weather, when I fell and sprained my ankle. I fainted with pain, and when I awoke I was in his arms. I closed my eyes again as I felt those strong protecting arms around me. But he was frightened and kissed me, and implored me to speak to him. I could yet have turned back to the former way, but I did not, I freed myself from his arms and sat down on a bench, he sat down too.

I forgot the pain for a minute in I forgot the pain for a minute in the joy of knowing that he loved me a little bit. He tried to beg my pardon for his conduct but ended with, "hang it all, what is the use of acting, I love you and only you. My wife is a good woman, and I respect her, but you are mine. Answer me, Do you love me? I tried to say No, but could not, and wept in his arms. How long we sat there I do not know. My ankle pained, but I could not. At last he carried me to the balcony. I then left him and limped into the house. His wife made him take me house. His wife made him take me for a drive the next day while she went shopping. We talked it over and came to the conclusion that we should keep our love a secret for the sake of the dear woman we both loved. I went to England and was away four years, but it was telling on me. I came back. It had told on him, too, he looked hag-gard and weary. I lived at his home two weeks and we improved. His wife said my presence cheered him. I went away, and when I came back he said: "I can't stand it, I am going to enlist, at least a graye in France is better than to live without you." So he went. I had sent him, and my heart yearned for him. He came back three fingers off, and the struggle has started over again. What can has started over again. What can we do? I love him, I love him and want him. It is killing me. I

I want him. It is killing me. I have written you everything, it is the secret of my heart.

A FALLEN ONE.

A FALLEN ONE: I hardly know what to say to you. If you had not said it is a matter of years I would say, "Forget about it." If you had not said you had gone away, that would be my first thought, to tell you to leave the city where you continually see this man and have to fight your battle. Nevertheless, what else can I say? You cannot marry the man; so you must go away. You must make up your mind that he is not for you, and then put away all thought of him. You must interest yourself in some work that will take up your time and occupy your thoughts to the exclusion of everything else. Go among new of everything else. Go among new

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due, nine times out of ten, to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach, Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous, and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion, or they can eat as they please in reason, and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation, by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bisurated Magnesia, and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent, But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five-grain tablets taken in a little water with the food, will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present, and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble, and the meal digests naturally and healthfully, without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate, and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan, and eat what you want at your next meal, and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."
