NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—"I have come from the pole. I have brought my story and my data with me. I have not come home to enter into arguments with one man or with fifty men, but I am here to present a clear record of a piece of work over which I have a right to display a certain amount of pride.

Such is the sum and substance of the first message Dr. Frederick A. Cook brought home in person to America to THIS EXPLORER

At five o'clock this morning, the explorer was on deck. There was an anxious wait at quarantine while the tugs bobbed nervously about, the news-papermen on board them shouting broken queries thru megaphones at the black sides of the Oscar II., high above them. Dr. Coook lowered in signed statement in a pail to The As-sociated Press and resumed his walk to-and-fro, to-and-fro, up and down

The tug bearing Mrs. Cook and her two daughters came along side, and, while the heavy swell running ground her fenders against the plates of her big sister, Dr. Cook clambered nimoly down the Jacob's ladder, and with no concern for the cameras trained on him, made a rush for his wife. For the moment, he even missed the children, who stood a few feet away, until his wife silently led him to them. Then, as he lifted his youngest daughter to his shoulder, the silent, watching crowd that lined the rails of the Oscar II. broke into a storm of cheers.

As he stepped ashore it was noticeable that no representative of the nation, the state, or the city was there to greet him. Bird S. Coler, president of the Boro of Brooklyn, had welcomed him on the Grand Republic for that boro, but the City of New York sent no official representative. But sincere and enthusiastic to the point of tumultuousness, his welcome may be best described as a neighborly affair, devoid of official significance.
