Commission Started Proceedterday.

The royal commission appointed by Hon. T. W. Crothers, the minister of labor, under the Public Enquiries Act, at the request of Toronto machinists, to investigate conditions existing in munition factories in Hamilton and this city, commenced its first session yesterday afternoon in the city hall. The chairman of the commission is Judge Snider of Hamilton and the other members are John Inglis of the John Inglis Co. of Toronto and John McClelland, vice-president of the International Machinists' Union.

From the evidence given by William

Toronto and John McClelland, vice-president of the International Machinists' Union.

From the evidence given by William Hagen, business agent of the Toronto District Machinists' Union, the commission was able to decide in what way the enquiry would be conducted. It was apparent from Mr. Hagen's testimony that the unrest prevailing at the present time in munition factories was mainly due to the rate of wages paid and the hours worked.

The commission will today deal with the complaints made regarding three Toronto concerns, the Massey-Harris Company, Allis Chalmers Company (Canada Foundry) and the Fairbanks-Morse Company.

At the outset Judge Snider warned the press to exercise great discretion in reporting the proceedings, "The commission asks that all names of workmen giving evidence be omitted from reports, but names of factories and employers may be used," he said.

An agreement read by Mr. Hagen, which the machinists entered into with a number of employers, showed that the hours agreed upon were 50 a week, the working hours each day being from nine till five. All the time over this should be considered as overtime and for work on Sundays remuneration should be at the rate of time and a half.

The following factories were named by the witness as ones in which trouble had occurred: Allis-Chalmers, Massey-Harris, Fairbanks-Morse, Toronto Laundry and Machine Company, Consolidated Steel Company, Polson Iron Works, Martin Pump Works and the Holden-Morgan Company, In all of these factories trouble had been experienced regarding working hours, and with the exception of two there had been disputes concerning wages.
