ST. JOHN'S CRIMINAL RECORD SINCE MAY 1

442 persons have been Arrested, 43 on Serious Criminal Charges—List runs from Playing Truant to Murder—Many Youthful Offenders.

A glance over the arrest book in the central police station will show that the members of the police force have been kept busy for the past three months and the number arrested for breaking, entering and stealing from residences and stores has been so numerous that it has broken all criminal records in this city for a like period.

Since May first up to date there has been arrested by the local police no less than 442 prisoners. A greater number have been placed behind the bars for drunkenness, the other charges have been for assaults, fighting wife beating, pocket peddling and many other minor charges even to boys playing truant from school, in fact the list runs from playing truant to murder.

In the county jail yesterday there were seventy prisoners and of this number only two were females. The turnkeys have more work than they can properly attend to. There is only one man on by day and one by night and they are kept very busy.

Of the seventy persons behind the bars one, John Braman, is charged with murder, and during the three months there were no less than 43 persons gathered in by the police on the charge of stealing. Of this number of suspected thieves, seventeen were youths under the age of twenty.

Just contemplate this intense situation and then find out why "A Million Dollars" is considered such a wonderful film production; A mercenary and heartless mother forces her daughter to marry a millionaire whom they came across in their London travels. The girl is broken-hearted and pines for her chosen mate at home, a rising young physician. In mid-Atlantic the millionaire's yacht party are fearfully wrecked in a collision, the owner being left as dead from a terrible blow on the head during the crash of craft. His wife is saved, the perfidious mother perishes. In due course the young man marries her surgeon lover, now an eminent brain specialist. She does not know her wealthy husband floated ashore by merest chance on a raft of wreckage. The blow on the head had bereft him of his memory and the simple French fisherfolk teach him common things. Years ago the millionaire wins heavily in gambling. Now wealthy again he seeks the famous brain specialist to have his memory restored. His wife meets him but he does not know her; the specialist, innocent of the identity of his patient consents to perform the operation. And right here ensues some of the most wonderful silent dramatics the screen has ever shown. Imperial Theatre today and Tuesday. Hours, 2, 3.30, 7 and 8.50. Boxes reserved. No extra prices.

DARING THIEF DIPS TO ROB STABLE SAFE

Short Bros. premises broken into Saturday night—Burglar, unsuccessful, made good his escape.

A bold attempt to break open the safe in Short Bros. stable, Princess street, and steal between two and three hundred dollars was made shortly after midnight Saturday by a thief, who was well acquainted with the premises. It was about midnight when one of the men employed by Mr. Short put up a horse, locked the stable doors and left the premises for the night. There is no one left on watch in the stable at night. The stableman was on his way home, when he met two employes in Warden's stable a few doors away from Short's.

The trio were in conversation at the door of the Warden stable about 12.20 o'clock when one of Warden's men informed the man from Short's that he had left the stable electric lights in the office. The young man remarked that he was sure that he had put them out when he left and they telephoned to the stable to see if Mr. Short was there; getting no answer on the telephone the trio walked toward the stable and when near the office window they could hear someone pounding on the safe door. One of the number then hastened along Charlotte street and summoned Sert. Scott and Patrolman McNamee and all the time he was after the police the pounding on the safe door kept up.

When the police arrived and the door was opened the thief was heard running along the floor of the stable. He managed to make good his escape. He went up in the loft of the barn, then out a window under a roof of a house at the rear and finally managed to climb over a fence and escape on Duke street.

Some time before the break one of the residents near the rear of the stable heard a noise and he thought that there was two men climbing a fence at the rear of the stable. He, some time afterwards, heard them escaping that way.

When the officers entered the stable office it was plainly seen that the burglar had been there for some time on the front of the safe but had been frightened away before they could get the door open and steal the money.

For about six inches around the dial in the centre of the safe, the varnish was scraped off where the thief was working with a hammer and chisel. The dial was bent down over the handle and looked as if the thief was attempting to cut off the handle of the safe, thinking that in this manner he could get the door open.

Other than finding the window open in the barn loft and the marks of the thief's shoes where he climbed the fence the police had nothing more to work on and left the premises. Harry Short, the proprietor of the stables, was notified and had considerable difficulty in getting the door of the safe open. It had been damaged so badly. There was nothing stolen and the thief took the tools with which he had been working on the safe away with him.
