DAZZLING, BLINDING DOUBLE PLAY PROVED THE WATERLOO FOR AMERICAN LEAGUERS

Giants Crowned Kings of Baseball Universe in Game a Fitting Climax to the Most Remarkable, Best Played and Hardest Fought Series in History of Diamond Classic.

With his curve ball, and game and effective in a pinch as a Plank in his heyday. What a match they made out there on the turtle back, pitching for all they were worth—pitching now with their brains, now with their flexible muscles—one hurrying to prevent a great victory, the other striving with every iota of his young enthusiasm and determination to stave off disaster for that one, all important day and force the opposition to stand the test of a ninth game.

Each got himself into trying situations. Neff got himself into trouble mainly through wildness; Hoyt found himself in hot water through hitting the wickets, while the Yankees hits were singles, while the National leaguers showed among their collection a trace of doubles both contributed by the scribes, wonderful money play, or Rawlings. He also got a single, giving him half of his team's hits—five of the eight bases for which the Giants scored the ball. In the second round Rawlings hit his first double.

The Elsie Won At Gloucester

Captain "Marty" Welch Was at the Wheel of Winner in Elimination Race.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 13.—Captain Martin L. Welch, who last year sailed the Gloucester fishing schooner Esperanto to victory over the Canadian champion Delawanna of Halifax in the North Atlantic fishermen's cup races, will be at the wheel on another Gloucester boat to defend the cup in the races this year.

The Elsie with Capt. "Marty" at the wheel and manned by a large number of the same crew that handled the Esperanto a year ago, won the elimination race on Gloucester today, crossing the line eleven minutes and twenty-two seconds, or nearly a mile ahead of the second boat, the Ralph Brown, under the command of Capt. Alvaro Quadros.

The Arthur James finished third, with the Elsie G. Silva and Phillip P. Mania, a Provincetown boat, a mile and a half behind the James. It was a perfect racing day, with just enough chop on the sea and a twenty-five mile wind blowing north-northwest. The forty mile course ran along the shore from the master's head wharf buoy of Eastern point and then in a 90 mile triangle out to sea. Scores of boats peered with spectators and thousands along the shore, saw the start and finish.

The race wasn't exactly a thriller outside the first lap, because the Elsie after rounding the first post 15 seconds behind Arthur James, overtook him in the second lap, and the Elsie, and a collision nearly occurred at the turn. The second lap, or first ten miles was a close race and Capt. "Marty" brought the Elsie right out in front, putting her ahead of the Brown higher in the wind. At the second mark she led the Brown by two minutes, the Silva and James running two minutes behind the Brown and the Mania half a mile in the stern. The next lap was a broad reach, the boats going on a port tack with booms well off. The Elsie greatly increased her lead and passed the mark this time eight minutes ahead of the Brown. The next ten mile leg was a dead beat to windward, the Elsie making it in two minutes, a short leg and a long start and the first five mile leg was the last leg in which the Elsie lapped on three more minutes to her lead.

The defender is a fisherman, 187 tons gross, 98 tons net, 106 feet in length, 26 feet wide, and 11.5 feet deep. Built at Essex in 1910 and now owned by Captain Alden Gale, Capt. "Marty" and his crew will sail the Elsie east to Halifax on Saturday, at which time the Canadian elimination race will be held.

NEW YORK NATIONAL GIANTS GOOD, NOT GREAT, BUT GAME BALL CLUB

John McGraw's Men Are Hard to Beat in the 1921 World's Series—Pittsburgh Was Easy Picking for Giants Throughout the Season.

Ability to knock off its leading contender was the determining factor in the winning of the National League pennant by the New York Giants. Pittsburgh was easy picking for the Giants throughout the year. McGraw's team won 16 out of the 18 clashes. That wide margin of difference between the two clubs decided the issue.

That would make it seem that New York was the superior club. There seems to be considerable difference of opinion on that point. The fact remains that the Giants could beat the Pirates almost as they pleased. With scarcely a month to play, Pittsburgh enjoyed a seven and one-half game lead. Then followed a five-game series between New York and Pittsburgh, the former winning five straight. That was the blow that killed the Pirates.

Giants Not Great Club. The New York Giants are not a great ball club. There are no great teams in either the American or National leagues. However, the Giants are a game, tussling aggregation, led by two of the most aggressive managers in the game, John McGraw and Hugh Jennings. Such a combination of playing strength and leadership makes the Giants size up as a pretty formidable aggregation to beat in a world series, which calls for gameness and aggressiveness more than anything else.

Good pitching is most essential for a pennant-winning team. During the greater part of the 1921 campaign the Giants did not get good pitching. They can't get the impression from that statement that the Giants are lacking in capable pitchers. It just seems that at no one time was McGraw able to have four pitchers working smoothly.

During the greater part of the season, the last month of play excepted, McGraw usually had only two pitchers on whom he could depend. The dependable pitchers were not always the same fellows. For perhaps a month two certain pitchers would carry the burden, and then, as two more would round into form, the two dependable would develop a mediocre streak.

Giants Game Despite Hurling. It takes a game ball club to keep plugging along with a pitching staff lacking in consistency. At one stage of the race it seemed the Giants were hopelessly out of it. It seemed impossible for McGraw's club to combine hitting with pitching. Then there came a break, the pitchers rounded into form. Good pitching was aided by timely hitting and brilliant fielding, and the Giants were on their way.

Some idea of the clip at which the New York team travelled during the last six weeks of the campaign can be gleaned by consulting the "flyers." With less than 50 games to play, McGraw's team sliced away the Pittsburgh margin of seven and one-half games, and was able to win with a couple of spare. The Giants in a short space of time accomplished a seemingly impossible task.

In that stretch of games, New York beat Pittsburgh in eight out of nine clashes. Ability to knock off the leading contender decided the issue in favor of the Giants. Let us look over this team, which was able to come with such a remarkable rush, after the pennant had practically been conceded to other quarters. So certain had it seemed that Pittsburgh would win, at one stage of the race, that Owner Dreyfus of the Pittsburgh club had started arrangements to enlarge his ball park. However, the sudden reversal of form on the part of the Pittsburgh club, and the "Garrison" finish of the New York team, stand out as the two big events in the closing days of the National league race.

Hockey Players Meet This Evening

All Who Are Interested in Having An Enclosed Rink Will Discuss Matter.

Frenchman Runs 300 Meters In 36 Seconds

Paris, Oct. 12.—Thirty-six seconds for the 300 meter race was the time credited to Gaston Ferry at a meet held at St. Cloud today under the auspices of the French Athletic Association. If this time is approved it constitutes a world's record.

He's Making Bid To Regain Crown

Johnny Ertle, the clever St. Paul boxer and ex-world champion bantam weight, is doing a great "come-back." After losing the title, he retired for more than a year, but he is now out to wrest the crown from Johnny Buff. Ertle has won the three bouts he has contested recently, gaining considerable prestige by knocking out Johnnie Rickles in third round. Ertle will be put to the acid test here on Oct. 17, when he meets "Babe" Asher, of Chicago.

Two Fine Right-Handers. Phil Douglas is a great apitball pitcher, but inclined to be erratic. Douglas has a most deceptive delivery, and his observations, coupled with his pitching mastery. The result has been seven victories over the Pittsburgh team. That is certainly a very remarkable performance for a pitcher knowing that the upper hand he is in possession of in the style of all four men tries a complete assortment, which he mixes with telling effect. Once he gains the upper hand he is poison. Early in the season he discovered the Pittsburgh club was made to order for him. He made a careful study of the Pirates. Then he put into execution his observations, coupled with his pitching mastery. The result has been seven victories over the Pittsburgh team. That is certainly a very remarkable performance for a pitcher knowing that the upper hand he is in possession of in the style of all four men tries a complete assortment, which he mixes with telling effect. Once he gains the upper hand he is poison.

Back of the bat New York is well fortified. There may be individual catchers on either Smith or Snyder, but no club can offer a greater combined strength. Both are fine receivers, good throwers and hard hitters. Smith, a left-handed hitter, is used by McGraw with a right-hander opposing, while Snyder draws the assignment against a southpaw.

The New York infield is a bit lopsided. On the right side of the diamond goes to prove that the New York pitching staff is good but not great. The addition of Meusel from Philadelphia rounded out the New York club, despite the fact that Meusel failed miserably at bat for two or three weeks. A natural hitter, he was not to be denied, and he struck his stride just at the time the Giants went into high gear as a team. George Burns is a great ballplayer, who has never attracted the attention he has merited. Burns, Meusel and Young can hit, throw and field, also run, and are sure to be heard from in the series.

In conclusion the Giants are good, but not great. However, they are game, and game ball clubs are often harder to beat than great ones.
