

WELL FITTED FOR THE LAW.

"So you think you will let your son Josh study law?"

"Yep," answered Farmer Cornlossel. "John will make a good lawyer. He's got what I call a legal mind."

"What is that?"

"He kin find a good excuse for doin' about anything that suits his particular convenience."

NEW PUBLIC HALL OPENED AT PORT WASHINGTON

A Most Enjoyable Musical Evening Was Spent by the Citizens in the New Structure on August 28th.

A delightful entertainment was held at Port Washington, Pender Island, B.C., on August the 28th, when the new public hall was opened.

Mrs. Fison, a talented lady violinist, from Victoria, and Mrs. Chas. A. Gaunt, soloist, were most enthusiastically encored on each appearance, as was also Master Bob Nicholl, the champion boy step dancer of Scotland, who has won 37 medals and several cups. Another medalist was Mr. Tom Reid, who gave several selections on the bagpipes and was repeatedly encored. Mr. Spencer Percival gave an original song, in character, which was loudly applauded and he was called back twice. Nearly every piece and song were encored by the music loving and enthusiastic audience. Mrs. Gaunt, after giving an encore had to return again, so determined was the audience to have just one more. Miss Flora Hodson (the talented vocalist, a grand-daughter of the late Mr. Lawson, formerly editor of the "Colonist"), was also encored. She has a very sweet voice. Mrs. Bagshaw's beautiful songs were much appreciated and she was recalled after singing "Thora," "Tom Bowling," sung by Mr. S. Church, was also encored. Mrs. Spencer Percival was accompanist for the singers, and Mrs. Gaunt for the violin.

The entertainment concluded with "God Save the King," after which refreshments were served and a dance forwarded.

Among the Merchants.

The Sidney Trading Co. are well provided with ammunition for the coming shooting season, which opens on September 15. They carry the popular brands of the U.M.C. Powder Co., and have all the different sizes of chilled shot in stock.

D. M. Evans, the tailor, carries a well assorted stock of men's furnishings in connection with his tailoring business. His lines are up-to-date and the young men around town need have no hesitation in buying from him.

Patricia Bay, just across the peninsula from Sidney is fast becoming an industrial centre, and the latest addition to the list of merchants and mechanics that have established themselves there is Mr. C. E.

Haycroft, the boat builder. This gentleman has had many years experience in the boat building line, having served a numbe of years in the best shops on the West coast. He was one of the men that helped to build the little motor boat, "Detroit," the launch that created world-wide fame by crossing the Atlantic. This boat was built by Mathews Bros. Co., of Ohio, U.S.A., in whose employ Mr. Haycroft worked for a number of years. Besides building boats, both large and small, the proprietor makes a speciality of quick repair work, for which his new shop, now almost completed, will give him ample room.

Sir Edmund Returns

Montreal, Aug. 17.—On his return from England, Sir Edmund Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, expresses himself very hopefully on the money situation, and in an interview Saturday stated that there was no need of anxiety among reputable Canadian business men engaged in ordinary business ventures of a sound nature.

"There is nothing wrong with Canada," said Sir Edmund. "The whole trouble is with the world supply of money. The production of gold has increased, but not sufficiently to keep up with the world-wide prosperity of the last few years, and the tightness in the money market is due mainly to this cause, though of course the war in the Balkans has also helped by diverting money from commercial channels. The only reason why Canada has been singled out for criticism," went on Sir Edmund, "is that she is the most prominent borrower, and therefore attracts most of the attention when capitalists begin to discriminate in making their loans. Canadian credit is not in the least injured, and interest in Canadian investments has not flagged, but investors in England are obliged to discriminate more carefully and to charge a higher rate."

OLD ROMAN HOTELS.

The traveler who is prone to complain of sleepless nights spent in uncomfortable hotels in this country may find some solace in this account of the Roman hotels in the days of the late republic and empire.

Most of the hosteleries and taverns of Rome, says Humbert d'Aurefois, were situated along the Appian Way. Some of them were passable. It was at one of the better ones that Cicero used frequently to stop and write his letters.

The most interesting hosteleries, however, were near the circuses and amphitheatres. The shrewd and generally dishonest owners had a double purpose in selecting that situation. It was well chosen for the patronage of the huge crowds that went to see circuses on holidays to see the fights between wild animals and the gladiatorial combats; and the landlords could buy conveniently and reasonably those animals that had been slaughtered during the day, to be served on their tables.

Thus a merry-maker might witness a battle between a lion and a tiger in the amphitheatre in the afternoon; and if he went to a nearby hotel might find parts of the same lion or tiger in his stew for dinner. A bear's steak was considered a great delicacy in Rome.

The furnishings of the common-room, which in these hotels served as dining-room, parlor and tap-room, were severely simple. A few wooden tables, a few wooden benches, and a sort of elevated throne were the only pieces of furniture. On the raised chair or throne sat the owner of the inn, and watched over his guests and probably his belongings.

A large number of the hosteleries displayed upon the ceiling of their common rooms a painting representing a rooster. The painting bore an inscription, the spirit of which will never grow old: "When this cock crows, then will we give credit."

That is the one link that binds the crude, uncomfortable tavern of ancient Rome to the elaborate hotel of the present day.—Youth's Companion.
