HUNTING THE SPOOK

A farmer's house in a highland district of Nova Scotia was hoodooed by the woodwork were burned. The cow's tail was platted. The animals were shifted. Noises were heard. Finally the family deserted their home. There is a college in that region where a scientist from the United States was lecturing. He did not believe in spirits. It was easily explained by electricity. There was the great Marconi station at Glace Bay, not much more than a hundred miles away and there was one near Boston, five hundred miles the other way. It was the clash of their currents. Why those wicked current should hunt up this particular glen and persecute this particular house, the scientist may have known, but he did not make plain. It is usually supposed that the electric waves move in widening circles, and that the points of crossing keep changing as they widen, and that so, unmathematically speaking, they meet everywhere. Throw two stones into a pond and see how the circles behave. But what a terror! There is none of us in these days who does not live between Marconi stations and is not liable to be played with by his trickster spirits in the house of Mr. Donald at Caledonia Mills in Antigonish county. It was therefore a most unsatisfying explanation. Who might these playful waves make game of next? When telegraph wires began to stretch eighty years ago, there were a good many fears of what they would do. But none of the things happened. The Halifax Herald put a reporter from that part of the country and a detective on the job. They reported that it was disembodied spirits. They had slept in the house and had both heard things and had both been waked by having their faces slapped. As there was one there, it was plainly a spirit. But as a spirit has not fish and bones, they did not explain how they felt the slap. Believers in spirits believe much that they cannot explain. So the Halifax Herald sent to the Psychical Research Society of New York, who supplied an expert in spooks, Dr. Walter Franklin Pierce. The Franklin in him could deal with the electricity and his experience in spooks could pierce the mystery. Well, he found that there was an adopted young girl in the family, of low mentality, who sometimes acted queerly, and that none of the fires were beyond her moderate reach and none of the happenings were beyond her powers, except the slapping of those two men, which she was not there to do. Dr. Pierce holds that this girl must have been "discarnate" and was not responsible for her acts. He is not averse to a "discarnate spirit," but does not find that theory necessary. As for the slapping, he says that it is well understood that abnormal psychical phenomena can only act on a company when some person of psychic sensitiveness is present, in which case sounds and slaps felt by one are felt by others. Mere subconscious expectancy might cause an experience in the case of one, and so in both. He regards the reporter as most likely the medium in this case. On the spirit theory, he would then be the open door at which the spirit had lost his girl entered in. Dr. Pierce himself leans to the "discarnate intelligence" would, as the Scotch say, have "owr little to do" to play such pranks through a silly girl.

The Rev. J. O. L. Spraklin, who a year ago left the ministry at Sandwich, Ont., to become a liquor law enforcement officer, is about to re-enter the pulpit, it was announced at Cheboygan, Wis., Sunday. Rev. Mr. Spraklin, it was said, had accepted the appointment as pastor of the Methodist church there.

KILLED BY SWAMP WHISKEY

Isn't it about time swamp whiskey was labelled "Poison," the same as the deadly drugs and sentences made to fit the crime of selling it? Swamp booze claimed another victim on Sunday, March 12th, at the home of Geo. Keyes on the 7th con. Amabel, near Hepworth. Irwin Kidd was the victim of the poison. He was well known to many of our readers as the family at one time lived on lot 35, con. 7, Elderslie, on the Townline of Sullivan, opposite Dougald McKinnon's. The farm is now owned by Norman McDonald.

Irwin Kidd was a carpenter by trade and built many barns in Sullivan and Elderslie. He was a hard working, honorable man and was well liked in this community. During recent years he has made Warton his headquarters and boarded at the Pacific Hotel. Kidd was a champion checker player and took great enjoyment in the skillful game of draughts. On Saturday evening, March 11th, he went down to the home of a friend, Mr. George Keyes of Amabel for a friendly game of checkers and both imbibed freely of swamp whiskey. They played checkers into the night, and the next morning some of Mr. Keyes family found Mr. Kidd dead in his chair. Dr. Hough, the Coroner from Warton, was called to the place to make an investigation. He found that the dead man had been drinking swamp whiskey in very large quantities. This had caused him to vomit very violently and the vomiting caused asphyxiation. After the investigation was complete Dr. Hough decided that the man died from only natural causes and that an inquest would be unnecessary. Kidd was 60 years old.—Chesley Enterprise.

KASTNER MILL AT WIARTON BURNED

By the destruction of the Kastner Lumber Co.'s mill by fire at Warton last Monday night, that town loses another of its industries. Between 8 and 9 o'clock, the fire was first noticed, but had made such progress that all the efforts of the firemen and volunteers to save the building were unavailing. The building was of frame construction, and rapidly fell a prey to the flames. The mill, which was completely destroyed, was valued at about $15,000. The loss was only $4,500. About $1000 worth of lumber in the mill was burned, but a considerable quantity was saved by the excellent work of the fire fighters.

Just how the fire started will probably remain a mystery as it has been closing the whole of the winter and had not even been visited by the owner for a considerable time. No preparations had been made to fit the mill out for the summer's work and anyone who would be on the property would be trespassing. It was probably either deliberately set on fire or some possibly a tramp, or some careless person, was in the building and dropped a match.

The building was located on the east shore of Warton bay and was one of the few industries remaining in Warton. Mr. Gideon Kastner, the owner of the burned mill, is a former reeve of Warton and Warden of Bruce County. It is not definitely known whether he will rebuild the mill or not, but an announcement may be expected shortly.

SUIT AGAINST TOWN PROCEED

An examination for discovery was held at the Court House here on Tuesday morning in the suit being brought by Mrs. George Ernest of Warkenton for $5000 damages for the death of her husband, the late George Ernest, who was killed in a runaway accident on Yack's hill north of the Sauguenay foundry here on Armistice day Nov. 11th, 1921. The plaintiff claims that the town at this point was in an unsafe condition, and alleges that it was responsible for the mishap. The town which has had an engineer take the municipality, etc. deputies that the municipality was not in any way responsible for the tragedy, and has engaged Mr. David Robertson, K.C., to defend the suit. Mr. C. J. Mickle, barrister of Chesley, who is acting for Mrs. Ernest, was on Tuesday conducting the examination for discovery. Mr. Ernest of Brant, father of the victim of the mishap, is associated with the plaintiff in the action.—Herald & Times.

E. C. Beck of Chilliothe, Ill., said that he has not been able to sleep for two weeks owing to the babble of voices, and music in the air, and he declared this wireless business has got to stop. Besides the voices and music he frequently gets shocks while lying in bed. He went to the authorities at Peoria to take action against the Radio-Phone Co. as a disturber of the peace. He says music, lectures, market reports and voices break the silence of his bedroom every night, and he blames it all on the huge radiophone sending set. The operators claim that his bed springs are an ideal aerial and attract the signals, but just how he is able to hear is a mystery.

Mr. F. H. Hay M.P., leader of the Liberal Party whose home is in Listowel was the guest of a banquet in his home town last week.

The man who once most wisely said "Be sure you're right, then go ahead," has added this, "Be sure you're wrong before you quit."

LO. THE POOR WITNESS

To be summoned by the Crown to attend court at Warkenton as a witness has become one of the rawest of tasks that a man can have played on him, as a number from Bruce township who attended the Spring Assizes at Warkenton last week in that capacity will testify. These men were subpoenaed, under penalty of fine for non-appearance, to attend the Stanley vs. West Wawanosh Fire Insurance Co. trial and give what evidence they could on those receiving the legal cap journeyed as commanded to the Bruce capital on Monday and as the Stanley case didn't come up until Tuesday and stretched out till Thursday found the county buildings for the best part of the week. As recompense for their service to the crown they were paid the liberal sum of $1.50 per day while their hotel bill amounted to $3.00 per day. Besides losing their own time some of these men had to hire help to take care of their stock while the courts were playing "put and take" on their money—put two and take one. For a bare-faced swindle it is hard to beat, and leaves the victim without a comeback. In the first place it isn't the most pleasant experience the walls of the witness stand and bally-rag you at his own pleasure but when you have to pay real money for the nerve-racker is when the big howl goes up. Justice in this particular is weighed in the balance and found wanting, as a number of Bruce farmers' purses bear evidence.—Port Elgin Times.

BIG FIRE AT ALLENFORD

A disastrous fire occurred at Allenford yesterday morning when the garage owned by Joseph Temple along with ten motor cars and one truck and 40 batteries went up in smoke. The fire was first noticed at about 8 o'clock and in a few minutes the whole building was a mass of flames. The village has no fire fighting appliances and nothing could be done to save the building or contents. There was no one in the building at the time and the origin of the fire is a mystery. Of the eleven cars which were burned, only one was insured, that of Mr. Fothergill's. The following cars were destroyed:—S. Diebel, Ford Coupe and truck; K. Fothergill, Maxwell; Dr. Uhquhart, Ford Coupe; Dr. Hammond, Ford; F. Brigham, Chevrolet; Wm. Moore, Ford; Jos. Temple, 2 Fords; Dan McDougall, Ford; Jas. Elliott, Maxwell. The loss in cars is estimated at nearly $8,000. Forty batteries were also destroyed, along with two gasoline engines. The building was valued at $2,000 and was partly covered by insurance. The walls of the building are still standing and it is likely Mr. Temple will rebuild.—Tara Leader.

INSURANCE COMPANY ORDER TO PAY UP

The hearing of the suit of Frank Stanley vs. West Wawanosh Mutual Fire Insurance Co. before Mr. Justice Orde was concluded at the Assizes at Warkenton, the verdict being in favor of the plaintiff. In giving his decision, Justice Orde ordered the fire insurance company to pay Stanley the full amount of his claim of $1,375, together with interest at 5 per cent. from July 1 last, also to pay the Supreme Court costs.

The case arose from the burning of Stanley's barn in Bruce township about a year ago. The fire was of incendiary origin, and the insurance company refused to pay Stanley the amount of insurance which he carried on the contents. The burning of the barn has resulted in much litigation, the cases arising from the occurrence having occupied the attention of the courts last summer.

CATTLE BROKE THROUGH ICE

On Monday evening a couple of cattle while being driven out of town by Mr. Andy McKague, ran down the embankment near the McKenzie bridge and went out onto the ice and finally broke through into the river. It was a good deal of hard work that they were at last lassoed and pulled out of the icy water almost an hour. Mr. McKague waded out into the water to help them out. Several passersby assisted in the rescuing of the animals. The veterinary gave one of the animals a good dose of liquid which some one hinted was alcohol, and on hearing that one of the men who had assisted in the rescue said he believed he would jump in the water too.—Wingham Advance.

CHIROPRACTIC IS RIGHT

This physical machine of ours is perfect in theory only. It will do just what any other good machine will do—work all right as long as it is kept in shape. Rolls will not grind flour unless they are perfectly adjusted. Good printing cannot be secured from the best type on a press house of the cerebrum cannot find proper expression throughout the body when the transmission lines are not free and adjusted properly.

When the adjustment is correct, the result is physical health, with mental health as a natural consequence.

You owe it to yourself to investigate the claims of Chiropractic. Someone has said that nowadays the world advances so rapidly that the fellow who says "It can't be done," is interrupted by someone doing it. Thus, while skeptics are protesting that spinal adjustments cannot be made by hand, the Chiropractors are getting results in practically all cases, and the X-ray pictures confirm their contentions.

PRETTY HOWICK WEDDING

A pretty wedding was solemnized at 4:30 on Wednesday, March 15th, at "The Maples" the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Metcalf, when their second daughter, Laura M., was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Nelson G. Gowdy, by Rev. Mr. Laing of Fordwich. The bride who looked charming in sand and crepe carrying a beautiful bouquet, was given away by her father. Miss Jean Stewart of Wroxeter played the wedding march and during the signing of the register, Miss Clara Metcalf, sister of the bride, sang very sweetly, "One Fleeting Hour."

After luncheon the guests, numbering about fifty were entertained by music, speeches, etc., and dancing until the wee sma' hours. The many lovely gifts testify to the popularity of the happy couple who have taken up residence on the groom's farm on the 13th concession of Howick.
