Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON.
THE INNOCENT.

"Oh, what," cries Prussia's chief, "have I not done to save the world from all this grief?" We wear the Kaiser's rear; the old red Kaiser weeps the tears of crocodiles, his victims strewn in heaps, in windrows, stacks and piles. The countless dead men lie on Europe's bloody plain, beneath the blue spring sky, by Wilhelm's orders slain. The Kaiser's long range gun fired from its secret perch, has cruel murder done among the babes in chrysalis. There is no crime so base that Bill would at it balk, no abyss of disgrace in which he will not walk. The victims find their feasts wherever Wilhelm goes; old men and girls, and priests he butchers, as his foes. He leans against a gun, and we can hear him roar, "Chee, what have I not done, to sidestep all this gore?" "The Kaiser's victims sleep, uncounted, everywhere; they're buried in the earth, they're slaughtered in the air; they're dragged from hut and hill; and from the church, to die; they're backed against a wall, and shot, and know not why. Now cries the royal man a gag as that! "He Oh," what have I not done to stop this jaundice?" "Come off your perch, old boss! Cease talking through your hat! You cannot get across with that! In leagues of flanders mud we're dripping blood; it's dripping from your clothes!"
