Foster regretted that the Minister of Militia had not seen fit to say one generous word in reference to his services on the occasion of the departure of a General who had work-ed hard to bring the militia of this country up to the standard he believed they should attain. Mr. Oliver (Alberta) said it appeared the question had been introduced de-liberately for the purpose of endeavor-ing to fix the stigma of political ad-minister of Militia. The press conveyed the information that the gen eral was going to the front in South Col. Hughes, who is now in South Al Africa, and it seemed to him that it Africa, and it seemed to find that it was far too serious a matter for the militia of Canada to swap horses while crossing the stream. He thought it was most deeply to be deplored that if his departure was owing to friction the Government had not seen

Col. Hughes, who is now in South Al-rica. Dr. Montague repudiated the idea that there was any politics in the speech of Colonel Prior. Outside of those who had come into conflict with him in personal matters the general conviction was that General Hutton did his duty, ably, maufully, to the best of his ability and as a true British soldier and commander. He knew that to say this might be to criticize Col. Hughes, but that matter must stand by itself. If the General was shown to have acted wrongly in that matter no one would be more willing to blame him than the members of the Opposition. He expressed the opinion that to ap-point a Canadian commanding officer fit to the overhiment had how seen if to try and bring about a good understanding between the Minister and the general. Gen. Hutton was acknowledged to be a man who had a grasp of the whole situation, a good fantryman and a good cavalry and mantry man, in this combining qual-ities rarely found, who has had large experience in the field and also in deal-ing with militiamen and volunteers in Australia and the colonies. Col.
