JOYS OF MATERNITY

A WOMAN'S BEST HOPES REALIZED

Mrs. Potts Tells How Women Should Prepare for Motherhood

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to childless and lonely old age. Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to a displacement of the womb or lack of strength in the generative organs.

Mrs. Anna Potts

Frequent headache and distressing pains, accompanied by offensive discharges and generally by irregular and scanty menstruation indicate a displacement or nerve degeneration of the womb and surrounding organs. The question that troubles women is how can a woman who has some female trouble bear healthy children?

Mrs. Anna Potts, of 510 Park Avenue, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

My dear Mrs. Pinkham:—During the early part of my married life I was delicate in health; both my husband and I were very anxious for a child to bless our home, but I had two miscarriages, and could not carry a child to maturity. A neighbor who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it. I did so and soon felt that I was growing stronger, my headache and backaches left me, I had no more bearing-down pains, and felt like a new woman. Within a year I became the mother of a strong, healthy child, the joy of our home. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a splendid remedy, and I wish every woman who wants to become a mother would try it.

Actual sterility in woman is very rare. If any woman thinks she is sterile, let her try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free to expectant or would-be mothers.

SHOT WHILE DUCK HUNTING.

Herbert Klotz, of Toronto University, Wounded in the Leg.

Peterboro, Sept. 30.—Herbert Klotz and Thomas Keyes of Toronto, who are been duck shooting at Pigeon Lake. Yesterday a hammerless gun in the hands of Keyes discharged accidentally while the young men were in a boat, and the charge entered Klotz's thigh, passing through his leg. He was brought to St. Joseph's Hospital. His physicians think the leg can be saved.

Demands Instant Release.

Tangier, Sept. 30.—An official of the United States legation at Tangier has gone to Fez under instructions from Washington to demand immediate repatriation from the Sultan for the refusal of Mohammed El Torres, Commissioner for Foreign Affairs at Tangier, to release an imprisoned man who is under American protection.

New Pacific Cables.

Liverpool, Sept. 30.—Geo. G. Ward, vice-president of the Commercial Cable Co., sailed for New York yesterday on the steamer Cedric, having completed arrangements for extending the Pacific cable to China and Japan. The new cables, both to China and Japan, will be laid, and in operation, on or before April 1, 1906.

TAKE MY CURE, WHEN CURED YOU PAY ME

The fear that you could not be cured may have deterred you from taking honest treatment, or you may have been one of the unfortunate who have been treated in vain by inexperienced physicians, free treatments, free trial samples, patent medicines, electric belts and other similar devices. Such treatments cannot and will never cure you, nor will these malades cure themselves. When I offer you a cure, and am willing to back my professional reputation in curing you, and have such faith and confidence in my continued success in treating these diseases that I will refund the money if you are not cured, I am sure that I mean what I say, and so exactly as I advertise, as I am positive of curing you in the shortest possible time, without injurious after-effects. My charges will be as low as possible, for conscientious, skillful and successful services, and my guarantee is simple and true. I have a diploma and certificates from the various colleges and state boards of medical examiners, which should be sufficient guarantee of my standing and abilities. It makes no difference whether you write to me for my opinion of your case, which I give you free of charge. I want to hear from patients who have been cured, as I guarantee a positive cure for all chronic, nervous, blood and skin diseases, which I accept for treatment. I not only cure the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles, blood poison, physical and nervous debility, lack of vitality, stomach troubles, etc. All medicines for patients are prepared in my own laboratory, I send the requirements of each individual case. All medicines for Canadian patients sent from Windsor, Ont., duty and transportation prepaid. I will send a booklet on the subject which contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address simply, Dr. S. Goldberger, 208 Woodward Ave., Suite 311, Detroit, Mich.

Beresford's New Cook

By A. M. DAVIES OGDEN

Copyright, 1905, by A. M. D. OGDEN

"I don't care what she is—heathen, Hottentot or bank robber," cried Mrs. Beresford desperately. She had followed her husband into the hall and now stood clinging to his buttonhole in wistful appeal. "But I must have somebody. Here are the Witherses and all those others coming to dinner and no one to cook a thing. I have telephoned the intelligence office, and Mr. Lewis says she will have a girl at the station for your train, so all you will have to do is speak to her and bring her along."

Beresford gasped. "What, me?" he ejaculated. "Speak to a strange woman in a railway station and ask her if she is a sudden fear, she sprang out of bed and ran to the dressing table.

"My sapphire bracelet!" she cried. "That girl came so late last night that I had to hurry to dress and forgot half my things. I know I left the bracelet here, but I supposed you had put it away. Did you, Norah; did you?"

Norah gave a gasp. "The sapphire bracelet, is it? Sure, I didn't see it."

"What's the row?" inquired Beresford, appearing at the door of his dressing room. His wife flung herself at him.

"The cook—the cook is gone!" she panted. "And my sapphire bracelet! And here's a letter from Mrs. Lewis saying that the girl came back to the office last night and said she couldn't find you. Who—who did you bring out then?"

"Oh, my soul!" murmured Beresford, with a swift recollection of the big woman. "Never mind, puss; I'll find it for you."

"Find it?" wailed Mrs. Beresford. "My lovely sapphire bracelet! Your wedding present to me! Oh, Harry, reproachfully, 'how could you bring such a person into the house?'"

"Well, I like that!" exclaimed Beresford. "How was I to know?"

"You—you ought to have," wept his wife. "And that was her last word. He should have known."

The bracelet, a very handsome one, was of rather an uncommon pattern, and Beresford had no doubt of being able to trace it, yet his effort met with no success. And then one morning Mrs. Beresford, languidly opening a letter postmarked Boston, uttered a little shriek.

"Listen, oh, listen!" she cried. "It's from the cook! Listen!"

Dear Madam—I cannot hope for your forgiveness, and yet I think if you knew the whole story you might be a little bit sorry for me. I am a widow with two children to support, one of whom has been ill for a long time. All illnesses are terribly expensive. All I own in the world is a small property that my husband left heavily mortgaged, and the mortgage was coming due. As I stood in the station that day, having come to New York in the vain hope of finding some one to help me, I was mad with fear and anxiety. How was I to meet the mortgage? What was to become of my children? And then your husband spoke to me. Can you utterly condemn me that I caught at the chance? I was desperate. I came. You know the rest. I can cook. I did my best with the dinner. And then, pleading sickness—and God knows that was not entirely untrue—I think I must have been crazy—I got upstairs, and when your maid went to fill the hot water bag it was easy enough to seize the bracelet off the dressing table. It seemed as though it had been left there for me. And it saved us. But here is the pawn ticket, and if I work my fingers to the bone you shall have the money too. Try to pity me. MARY MATHEWSON.

Mrs. Beresford, whose sweet voice was by this time shaking suspiciously, laid down the letter.

"Oh, poor thing!" she cried. "What did I tell you? I felt somehow all the time that she was all right."

"Oh, did you?" ejaculated her husband in some indignation. "Well, you took a queer way of showing it."

But Mrs. Beresford, a reminiscent look creeping into her face, heaved a regretful sigh.

"Yes," she murmured yearningly, "she certainly was a good cook."

Heaving the Anchor.

Sam Pemberton, who had been in his younger days captain of a whaling vessel, was invited with his wife to take tea at a neighbor's, and during the meal some one passed the captain a plate of cheese, whereupon his wife became much agitated and exclaimed: "Sam Pemberton, you be very careful how you get cheese. You know how I have to suffer whenever you do." All who were seated about the table were curious to know how it was that Mrs. Pemberton should suffer when Mr. Pemberton ate cheese, and so the captain explained after this manner:

"I'll tell you what Marlar means. Ye see, about a week after I'd left the ship we were visitin' our daughter Jane down in th' city, an' one night we had for supper some cheese or good deal like this, an' as I like cheese I eat quite er lot on it. Waal, after I'd gone ter bed I had th' greatest dream ye ever heard tell of. I dreamed that I was aboard me ole ship, an' there cum up such er storm as ye never see. I see there wasn't but one thing ter do, so I yelled ter th' first mate, 'Heave over th' bow anchor.' Waal, he tried, but somehow he couldn't do it, whereupon I sprung up an' yelled, 'Stand aside, ye landlubber, an' see me heave it.' An' after tuggin' a good deal over it went. But, would ye believe me, thet ole bow anchor begun ter holler: 'Sam Pemberton! Sam Pemberton, what are ye er doin' off?'"

"Thet waked me up, an' what dew ye s'pose I'd did?"

"Instid of throwin' over the bow anchor I'd pitched Marlar out of bed!"

Washington After Retirement.

George Washington's life, after he retired from public service and went to live on his beautiful estate, Mount Vernon, was simple and methodical in the extreme. Every morning he rose early, made a plain toilet, and, although he had a body servant, washed and shaved himself. Before breakfast it was his custom to write a few letters with his favorite gold pen and then visit the stables. He kept his own accounts very carefully, and his handwriting was remarkable for neatness, accuracy and uniformity of stroke. His breakfast usually consisted of Indian cakes and honey and tea or coffee. After leisurely partaking of it, he daily mounted his horse and visited every corner of his property. His appearance on horseback was most imposing, as he always wore a riding frock of handsome drab colored broadcloth, ornamented with plain gilt buttons and a waistcoat of fine scarlet cloth trimmed with gold lace and gilt buttons. His special attendant, Bishop, in scarlet livery, always rode behind him.

The Oxford Chancellor coal range gives a continuous and plentiful supply of hot water. This is a point that should instantly appeal to every household.

The Oxford Chancellor is fitted with an extra powerful water-front which is so placed in the front of the fire-box that it gets the direct and immediate benefit of the fire.

Oxford Chancellor Range

Plenty of hot water is an excellent feature in a range but it is only one of many that make the Oxford Chancellor so much excellent work. We would like to send some of our literature which tells the whole story. Won't you write it?

A post card will do.
