

Scribner's Monthly.

Conducted by J. G. Holland.
The Standard Illustrated Magazine in the World.

THE American edition of the periodical is more than 70,000 monthly. And it has a larger circulation in England than any other American magazine. Every number contains about one hundred and fifty pages, and from fifty to seventy-five original wood-cut illustrations. Several illustrated articles descriptive of Canada, Sports and Scenery have recently appeared in its pages, and the magazine during the coming year will devote much space to matters of special interest to the Canadian public.

ANNOUNCEMENTS FOR 1879-80.

"Haworth's," by Mrs. Francis Hodgson Burnett, author of "The Lady of the Lake," is now in the hands of the publishers. The scene of Mrs. Burnett's new novel is laid in Lancashire; the hero is a young inventor of American birth. "Haworth's" is the longest story Mrs. Burnett has yet written. It will run through twelve numbers of the Monthly, beginning with November, 1878, and will be profusely illustrated.

"Palomberg," by H. H. Boyesen, author of "Gunnar," "The Man who lost his Name," &c.
"A Story of New Orleans," by George W. Cable.

"Portraits of American Poets." These portraits are drawn from life by Wyatt Eaton and engraved by T. C. Johnston. Nov. 18th, 1878.

"A new view of Brazil." By Herbert H. Smith, of Cornell University, a companion of the late Prof. Hart, is now in the hands of the publishers. The artist who accompanied Mr. Edward King in his tour through "The Great South," preparing for Scamman a series of papers on the present condition, the cities, rivers, and general resources of the empire of South America.

"The Johnny Red" papers, by an "ex-Confederate" soldier will be among the next contributions to Scribner during the coming year.

"The leading European Universities." We are now having prepared, for Scamman articles on the leading Universities of Europe.

"How Shall we Spell?" (two papers by Prof. Lounsbury). "The New South," "Law-Planning for Small Places," (by SAMUEL PARSONS, of Fitchburg, "Crusade of To-day," "American Art and Artists," "American Archaeology," "Modern Inventors," also, "Papers of Travel, History, Physical Science, Studies in Literature, Political and Social Science, Stories, Poems," "Topics of the time," "The Great South," record of new inventions and Mechanical Improvements; Papers on Education, Decoration, &c.; Book Reviews; fresh bits of Wit and Humor, &c., &c.

New York Weekly Herald.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

THE circulation of this popular newspaper has more than tripled during the past year. It contains all the news contained in the DAILY HERALD, and is arranged in handy departments. The Foreign News embraces special dispatches from all quarters of the globe. Under the lead of American News, are given the telegraph despatches of the week from all parts of the Union. This feature alone makes the WEEKLY HERALD the most valuable chronicle in the world, as it is the cheapest. Every week is given a faithful report of Political News, embracing complete and comprehensive despatches from Washington, including full reports of the speeches of eminent politicians on the questions of the hour. The Farm Department of the WEEKLY HERALD gives the latest news as well as the most practical suggestions and discoveries relating to the duties of the farmer; hints for raising Cattle, Poultry, Grains, &c. Under the lead of Home News, are given the latest news, with suggestions for keeping buildings and farming utensils in repair. This is supplemented by a well edited department, widely copied, under the lead of the Home giving receipts for practical dishes, hints for making clothing and for keeping up the latest fashion in the lowest price. Every item of cooking or economy suggested in this department is practically tested by expert cooks, and is given in the most reliable manner. Letters from our Paris and London correspondents on the very latest fashions. The Home Department of the WEEKLY HERALD will save the house wife more than one hundred times the price of the paper.

The interest of skilled Labor are looked after, and everything relating to mechanics and labor saving is carefully recorded.

There is a page devoted to all the latest phrases of the business Mar, Crooks, Merchants, &c., &c. A valuable feature is found in the specially reported price and condition of the Produce Market.

Spending News at home and abroad, together with a story every week, a sermon by some eminent divine, Literary, Musical, Dramatic, Personal, and Sea Notes. The Pass of Brander.

By the Author of "John Halifax, Gentleman."

Along the Pass of Brander,
Full many a year ago
There trudged a widow woman
Deep through the blinding snow.

A weary widow woman,
With sweet soft English tongue;
A stranger in the Highland glens,
Feeble, and pale, and young.

And with her simple story,
She passed from door to door:
"O give me just a piece of bread
And a night's rest once more."

"My husband was a sailor;
He sailed from Oban Bay;
I want to take his baby home,
And lay it where he lay."

"I'll lay it on his mother's breast,
And then I'll gladly go;
And she held up a thin, thin hand,
As white as any snow."

Along the Pass of Brander
The wind sank, soft and still;
He hailed from Oban Bay,
Ben Cruachan's mighty hill.

The Ave was like a river of glass,
And, doubled in its tide,
The great black Pass of Brander
Rose on the other side.

An eerie place to travel through;
But she was not afraid
Of ghost or wrath, of beast or man,
"I am too near God," she said.

The path grew longer, longer—
Such poor soft English feet!
But 'twas a brave young English heart,
Patient, and calm, and sweet.

At length her steps grew heavy as lead;
The baby woke and cried;
She stopped and fed it at her breast.
Upon the lone moor-side.

Then strange, strange thoughts came into
her head;
She saw her cottage door;
She heard sweet English bells chime faint
Across the Highland moor.

Deep sleep was stealing o'er her lids,
A soft sleep, without pain;
She rose and clutched her baby tight,
And vainly to wake him.

But tried the struggle, vain the toll;
"It is too late!" she cried,
And from Ben Cruachan's lofty top
She saw white angels glide.

"They'll rob me, without any lack,
In shining robes all new."
So once by force, to wrap the boy,
Her garments off she drew.

Warm sheltered, like young bird in nest,
She placed him by a stone,
Saying, "The angels watch thee, child,
Until this night be gone."

Weeping—"If I should see thee, child,
No man will show me scorn."
Then lay down, white on the white snow,
As bare as babe new-born.

It is a brave young sailor:
He hails from Oban Bay;
His grandmother's pride, his shipmates
boast.

So handsome, bold and gay,
But his cheek will pale of a sudden,
And his tears gush like a tide,
If you name the Pass of Brander,
Where his English mother died.

Note.—This anecdote, which I have only localized, was told me as a fact by the late Dr. Norman MacLeod. He had referred to it once in a sermon (preached, I believe, at the Hebdomadal meeting), and I have been told by him, "Sir, with a burst of tears, 'that story of yours was true. The woman was my mother!'"

There are 10,000 Israelites in San Francisco, and 10,000 more in the rest of California. They comprise all nationalities, with German Jews the most numerous. They control several branches of business, a large part of the importing dry goods and fancy goods trade being in their hands, as well as many large wholesale grocery houses. They have nearly a monopoly in book and station manufacturing and the hide, leather and wool trade. Many of them are very wealthy, and are liberal patrons of the fine arts and bookshelves. Musical people say that they would never have had a first-class opera in San Francisco if it had not been for the patronage of the Hebrews. They control several of the theatrical managers say that they would have to "shut up shop" in these hard times were it not for the money they get from them. They have five synagogues, one of which cost nearly $200,000, and three religious weeklies. In point of belief, they range from ultra orthodox to the ultra reformed and liberal. Their rabbi preach in English and German. They have representatives in all professions, in agriculture and mining enterprises, and in politics, and there is no part of the country in which they are not friendly footing with their neighbors of other faiths.

Miss CALLAHAN, who was a prosperous milliner in Boston, married Patrick Cain, who was a lay teacher. The match was not liked by the young woman's family, and her brother John, who was passionately fond of her, brooded over the matter until his hatred for Cain became a mania. At last he went into the couple's bedroom at night, shot Cain four times as he lay asleep, and then killed himself. Cain is recovering. Miss Meadows's marriage to Elijah Lane, in Waco, Texas, was displeasing to her family. Her brothers induced her to return home, and when Lane went there to get his wife, she shot him dead on the doorstep. A less summary, but equally murderous, course was taken by Henry Williams, in Wall, Miss., who poisoned his son-in-law in order to rid his daughter of a drunken husband.

The great banquet of Lord Dufferin at Belfast was, as he said in his speech, the greatest compliment ever offered in Ulster. It was attended by all the Tory as well as Liberal peers, and by the Protestant and Roman Catholic bishops and men of all parties. No other man in Ireland could have brought together such conflicting elements.

Christmas, 1878.

Written for the Chignecto Post.

Again the holy season of Christmas has come round with all its pleasant memories. How vividly we recall the happy days of childhood, when we looked forward so eagerly to the "Merry Christmas," with its bright and cheerful associations. And well may we greet it joyously, for it is not a season fraught with pleasure and enjoyment, such as no other season can be? The time when the home circle is made complete—when all rancorous feelings are laid aside—when all good thoughts are called into action. Well may we look forward to celebrate it with thankful hearts, when we think of Him who, at this time, was made man, and dwelt among us. It is indeed enough to make our hearts glad and feelings of gratitude. And as we think of the holy child Jesus, may we put away from all proud thoughts, and in meekness endure, if so be we are called upon to endure. If we are friendless, alone, if we have no home circle to join, no kind friends to bid us welcome, let us visit that lowly manger—there we will find a ready welcome, and if Christ be in our hearts, it will be as a merry season, it will be a happy one. G.M.

Farming in South Australia.

The editor of the Australian Star, Adelaide, South Australia, in an interesting letter to the American Agriculturalist, writes: "In your July issue, you remark, 'The Australian farmer can by no means rejoice over his American brother; on the contrary, the latter may congratulate himself, that he is not the only, nor the worst sufferer from small wheat crops.'—It is true that our average yield is small, for
