ARCHIBALD SCOTT, Esq.
SIR,—As the Agent of various Fire Insurance Companies, it beg to bring under your notice my PATENT ARTIFICIAL SLATE. This

composition has been apwards of, three years extensively used in New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, the Canadas and Nova Scotia, principally for covering shingled roofs, as you will perceive by the accompanying circulars of certificates. It has been severely tested, and proved most successfully its fire proof qualities under most extraordinary circumstances; so much so, that I am of opinion that Time Lower and Companies should encourage its general circumstances; so much so, that I am et opinion that Fire Insurance Companies should encourage its general application to all kinds of wood building (where the color would be no objection to its being asset, such as the back walls of dwellings in the city, out houses, ware-houses, &c., as well as the roofs) by lowering the premium of insurance on such buildings as are covered.

Halifax 14th July, 1853.

Sin,—In answer to your note of the 12th inst. I consider the use of your "Artificial Slate Paint" on schingled Roofs, as greatly diminishing the risk against Fire—I have frequently reduced the premiums on Buildings in the Country, upon its application, I am, sir, your ob't servant.

TEMPERANCE.

THE LAW OF MAINE AND THE LAW OF GOD.

The Effects of this Law in its practical developement for several months are such as a proper regard for the Law of God would produce. If it multiplied the forms of human strife and misery, if it swelled the wail of sorrow through the State, and filled with spinish of sorrow through the state, and filled. with criminal offences the calender of courts; yea if its effects for good were not traceable upon the growing interests of the Common-wealth, we might reasonably doubt its co-incidence with the Law of God. For Christianity, allowed free course through the marts of trade, and circles of human intercourse, would purify, and transform, and elevate on every side. At the touch of its almost magic wand new forms of moral beauty would start to life, and the frightful spectres of vice flee before its celestial purity. The haunts of bacchanalian revelry would close their doors upon the slaves of would close their doors upon the slaves of appetite, and bid them escape the accursed bondage. Homes of penury and wretchedness would smile to behold the 'horn of plenty,' and to welcome the angel of peace, The dying embers of love at domestic altars would be fanned to lame, and repenting prodigals would be seen returning to the sweets of family friendships.—Instead of the thorn would come up the fir-tree, and instead of the brier would come up the myrtle-tree. The mountains and the hills would break forth into singing, and all the trees of the field would clap their hands.

The effects of the maine Law approximate as nearly to this as the achievements of known civil statutes can. From the Moosehead Lake to Casco Bay, from the St. Croix river to the Hampshire line, glad tidings of its success are borne upon every breeze. Besotted manhood rises from its degrada-tion and lives anew. Vice yields up its "strong holds" of corruption, and disappears in unexpected and unexampled rapidity. Disgusting inebriation is banished ity. Disgusting inebriation is banished from lane and street of cities to reform in families, or die in solitude. Crime is di-minished from fifty to seventy-five per cent. in the largest and most immoral townships in the largest and most immoral townships. Almshouses, and prisons, and institutions to reform the vicious, are comparatively empty.

—Abodes of misery have become the happy retreats of thrift and joy. Rent and scattered housholds have been reunited in the bonds of cultant love by the return of their wandering members from the paths of drunkenness. The once wretched, but now drunkenness. The once wretched, but now rejoicing wife sees her husband leave the door, at morning, and blesses God that no open drunkery will arrest his safe return. The glad father looks hopefully upon his ecause he can walk the streets and perform his business, without a score of human hyenas prowling along his pathway.

And the minister of Christ is inspired with new interest and zeal as he beholds men, just reclaimed from their cups, coming to fill the vacancies in the temple of God And all because the fire of the last distille ry in the State has ceased to blaze, and ountless dramshops have closed their gates of woe. Surely upon this scene of delight-ful improvements the Most High will bes-tow his benediction! His beloved Zion will feel the influence of this legal wisdom, and gather new trophies for Christ, the Conqueror! A law which scatters such blessings abroad must harmonize with His. olessings abroad must harmonize with His.

port against the willest foe of human rights and happiness. A class of men whose love of money is stronger than their love of virtue, create three-fourths of all your taxes by their "trade of death," and enrich themselves by the business. You complain of the "onerous tax" for the support of public education; and will you be content to pay four times as much to support the rumsellers of Massachusetts? Will you see four hundred dollars wasted, and worse than wasted, for strong drink, as often as one hundred dollars are expended upon education, and yet not move your tongue against it? Are you willing to cancel the bills for erecting almahouses and prisons for venders of intoxicating drinks to fill at enormous profits to themselves? Will you not remonstrate against this unjust taxation? Or will you cherrfully liquidate the debts which they incur by their property-destroying traffic? You are suffering wrong, in the invasion of your rights, for which there is found redress in the provisions of the Maine Law. Lend your influence to the support of that Law, give it the co-operation of your heart and and, and your reward will be the blessing of an improved citizenship.

Philanthropist! whose errand of mercy is to bear relief and consolation to the victims of want and misery; you have here an inicating drinks to fill at enormous profits to

to bear relief and consolation to the victims of want and misery; you have here an instrument that will spare you many heart-rending scenes, and wipe more tears from sorrow's eye in a single month than your tireless efforts could in a year. You have wept and prayed at the pauper's bed-side. You have lifted the debased from the mire of his degradation, and breathed saving counsel into his leaden ear. Your heart has ached as you have stood by the wasted form of suffering in some cheerless attic or celvlar,—the heart-crushed mother, with children starving at her breadless board, and a babe pining at her withered breasts. Your soul has been thrilled with horror as you have passed from cell to cell in the gloomy prison, and listened to the sad recital of depravity, that attaches to human hearts. Amid the wrecks of humanity, and the sighs of distress, and seenes of corruption, with which your life has been familiar, you have been constrained to cry, "O God! who is sufficient for these things? Where will this pravity, that attaches to human hearts. Amid the wrecks of humanity, and the sighs of distress, and seencs of corruption, with which your life has been familiar, you have been constrained to cry, "O God! who is sufficient for these things? Where will this dreadful vice and suffering end? When will this wave of desolation cease to roll? O God, help, or sin will triumph." Hail, then, this statute to suppress intemperance, and three-fourths of these tears, groans and crimes are stricken from your sight. Then you may hope that the "saved and trembyou may hope that the "saved and tremb-ling," whom you have restored to their weeping families, will not be torn away again from the loving fellowship to wallow in degradation worse than the first.

W. W. SEVI

Parent! watching with deep solicitude the career of your youthful sons; see you not the stealthy tempter at the corners of the streets, and in the crowded marts of trade, and along the public throughfares, sceking youth and early manhood for its prey? In every path trad are seen allurements to tip-ple wine when it sparkles in the cup. On ple wine when it sparkles in the cup. On every hand the decorated saloon and dramshop invite them to the toastirg company. The probability of their yielding to the temptation to drink is very marked. In this regard you have just reason to be auxious. No form of vice is so much to be dreaded as this, for none is so successful in multiplying victims. Welcome, then, a Law which closes these alluring abodes of vice, and empties decanters and barrels into the street or dock. Execute this Law, and close the hosts of groggeries, and quench the fires of distilleries, and your sons may go forth to life's callings comparatively untempted. Your greatest fears may be allayed, and you may feel that youthful virtue has a guardian and protector in the State, It may save your sons from the drunkard's grave, and the drunkard's doom. Christian! waiting for the reign of millennial peace and purity; how long must you wait if alcohol is allowed to fill the earth with strife and wickedness? You have been as this, for none is so successful in multi-with strife and wickedness? You have been wont to believe that the more nearly human agencies accord with the truth of God, the more certain may the Christian toiler be of final victory. Here, then, is a Law, accordant with the Law of God, and mighty to cope with this conqueror of of earthly conquerors, that demands your aid. Were the bands of its provisions stretched across the land, from shore to shore, the flock of Christ would scarcely lose a wandane by the melister for the stretched across the land, from shore to shore, the flock of Christ would scarcely lose a wandane by the melister for the stretched across the land, from shore to shore the stretched across the land, from shore to shore the stretched across the land, from shore the stretched across the land the la would whiten the field of Christendom for the sickle of the Christian reaper, than ever yet has gladdened the eyes and expectant hearts of the faithful. Pray for success of this timely curative that faring father to his son as he hung tremb-ling at the mast-head looking down upon his danger, while the vessel was rocking and plunging in a furious storm; "LOOK and plunging in a lurious storm; "Look ALOFT, OR YOU ARE GONE!" A view of his danger from that dizzy height, by one down-ward look, might have swept him from hie hold. Christian, "look aloft"! However doubtful and unpromising the enterprise, "look aloft"! "The Lord reigneth."

DR. TROTTER ON THE SAFETY OF

Pray.

IMMEDIATE ABSTINENCE. "It has been a doubt with some physiians, whether, even if the patient were willing, it is proper at once to leave off wine or spirits. The body (say they) being long accustomed to this stimulus cannot be deprived of it, without sustaining manifest injury. This mode of reasoning is founded on the observation that habit has a powerful on the observation that habit has a powerful influence over many of the actions of the animal economy; it becomes a part of our nature, and some important operations of the living system are entirely governed by it. The general fact being admitted, it does not follow that such long continued stimuli as have a tendency to destroy the functions of the body, should not, all at once, be laid aside. Let us sumpose a person for years of the hody, should not, all all once, he into a side. Let us suppose a person for years living in a dungeon unwholsome and unventilated, till diseases appear from these causes, would any rational being hesitate a moment to bring forth the squalid sufferer into the light of day, that he might have the full benefit of a pure atmosphere? The case is exactly in point; the confined person died.

New Series. No. 68.

The nature of the human stomach cannot accomodate itself to ardent spirit, and dyspeptic symptoms are the early signs of its being hurtful. The nervous, viscous, and muscular coats, the gastric and mucous follicles of the stomach, instead of feeling it necessary for their functions, by every repetition of the draught, resist it the more, till at last digestion is overcome, a fixed disease takes place in these organs, and the fibres become hard and insensible. It is disease takes place in these organs, and the fibres become hard and insensible. It is true, that during all these corporeal ailments the mind is gradually forming a bad habit; it receives pleasure from the first, but the body nothing but disease and pain. We daily see in all parts of the world, men who by profligacy and hard drinking, have brought themselves to a jail; yet if we consult the register of the prison, it does not appear that any of these habitual drunkards die by being forced to lead sober lives. If at any time an inebriate dies after he has been compelled to temperance, his death is not to be attributed to the want of spirituous potation, but to the too long continuance of potation, but to the too long continuance of it, which rendered his disease incurable. The whole of these arguments tend to prove that vinous stimulus may be safely quished at once; the debility of the body, if any exists, is then to be cured by whatever may restore the weakened organs. In most cases nature will effect this, as these organs have only been exhausted by unnatural means."—Dr. Trotter's Essay on Drunken-

A WORTHY SPEECH FROM AN INDIAN.

At a recent council of Indians of different At a recent council of Indians of different tribes held near Fort Smith, Arkansas, Parhe-yokah, a Camanche chief, delivered the following speech, and the Fort Smith Herald says it is a fair specimen of the whole of the speeches made on the occasion. We could name some speakers nearer home who might take a lesson in moderation and charity from the Camanche chief. Parherakah said — "The Great Smith! I have no yokah said:-"The Great Spirit, I have no doubt, is very glad to see so many Indians of different nations meet together for the purpose of establishing peace, and give their pledge to each other to live by it for ever. I am very happy, indeed, to see and meet with my Eastern brothers in council. We allder men become correctly for what these people, who do not understand the transac-tion of to-day, the true meaning of our counask God to succor it amid the waves of opposition that toss, and defend it in the battle of hot debate. Have faith—more faith—strong faith—faith in the might of a favouring God. Falter not like a coward before the serried ranks of intemperance. Your lines may have fallen on "troublous times" and true meaning of our council; and let our rising generation be trained up and grow fast in this great white talk we are receiving to-day. Brothers, our lives are not in our hands; we cannot last always; the Great Spirit will call us away some day, and will put somebody always. Your lines may have fallen on "troublous times," and the foe may be entrenched behind imposing barricades; but "hope through in God." Dwell not on dangers. Count not the probabilities of failure. If Count not the probabilities of failure.

God is on your side look up, and take courage. "Look Alort!" cried a seawhite teeth, but it has no effect on the roots. It is just so with us; we cannot die with this talk. While, we live, we make council fires; but after we are gone, this talk still survives, and still has its odorous talk still survives, and still has its odorous smells to all united nations. (Here he held up his right hand toward heaven.) May the Great Spirit sanction our doings to-day, and faithfully make us keep this good talk given us from our brothers at the rising

PRECIOUS STORES. -The "Alta Califor ractious STURES.—Inc "Aria California" states that specimens of beryl, and topaz of remarkable value and beauty, consisting of emerald, both stones of the first water, have been found on Tuolumne river, and the present high price of this gem, being next in value to the diamond, will warrant extensive exploration in search of warrant extensive exploration in sea them. FREDING Horses.—Having two horses to feed I tried the two following methods:—First, I took a grist to the mill, consisting of half corn and half cats for feed. Countof half corn and half onts for teed. Counting the toll at the mill, waste, and loss of time, it cost one-seventh of the grist. I save all this now by soaking the feed in water for about two hours, with just about as much as will cover it, which makes it greatly increase in bulk, and the horses thrive just as well on it as on ground feed,
