Never judge by appearances. A shabby ld coat may contain an editor.

A man on the cars having several thousand dollars in greenbacks in his possession, and fearing to go to sleep sitting in his seat, on account of seeing some suspicious individuals in his neighbourhood, slyly slipped his money into the Bible belonging to the train, and on the following morning woke up to find his capital gone, and to learn that the men who slept with their cash in their pockets hadn't lost a cent.

A Hindoo student in an Eastern college, writing to a friend in Wheeling, concluded as follows :--- '' Very nice, indeed ! Poor stu-dents that we are ; we have to kneel down before their menaces, their widened eyes, and what not ! lest we suffer restrictions at their iron hands and be thrown into the same piti able plight as 'A bud bit by an envious Ere he could spread his sweet leaves to the air, or dedicate his beauty to the Taylor, the wizard, got a $90 house in Paso del Norte, and then, saying that he would show the assemblage a trick that would open their eves, termed "The Mystic Man, or the Disappearance," he brought out a large box and said : "I will now shat myself up in this how the trick is to find me." Five this box ; the trick is to find minutes later everybody knew that he had escaped from the rear with the receipts of the evening, and a coat belonging to an em-

In Sonora, Mex., they have lots of anakes. Among the rest is a handsome specimen, mixed red and black, cailed the coral snake. It is a singular thing that in that country everything, instead of having longitudinal bars or stripes, as with us, has crosswise stripes or The snakes are ringed, and it that all ringed snakes are poisonous. The doves are ringed around crosswise, instead of engthwise, and the trees are checkered around their trunks.

Bob Burdette says the only occasion upon hich railway trains in the United States are known to attain a speed of 85 miles an hour when you sweep in sight of a station with our overcoat only half on and the train you want just starting out. Before you can reach the platform a shot from a Parrott gun cou dn't catch that train. She may jolt along at 12 miles all the rest of the day; but for just one minute, as you go charging down the planform, she makes an easy hundred.

A Fhiladelphia man named Patrick Whelan was found in the streets a lew days ago with his throat cut-the knife with which he had been injured having laid bare the pharyax and passed through the epi lottis. As a result of three days' exposure with the gaping wound he contracted pneumonia, and the only way in which he can be ted is through is nose. A tube is inserted into one of the ostrils and down into the gullet, and by this evice he is now able to take six pints of antritious food every day.

Miss Nellie Lemon, of Millersburg, Ohio, was stricken with paralysis a few weeks pre-vious to the day set for her wedding. Be-fore her death she said farewell to her intended husband, informing him at the same time that he would follow her in a very short time. The young man, who was healthy and bust, and whose appetite seemed not to have been affected by his loss, ate a hearty breakiast on Sunday morning, and was soon after stricken with paralysis, pre-cisely as Miss Miller had been, dying in two

Dr. T. L. Nichots in the Science Monthly asserts that any given territory will sustain from six to ten men on fruits, grains, and vegetables, to one on flesh. He writes :---"Only the direct necessity, such as some-times causes cannibalism, could have induced nen to kill and eat other animals. Probably ing began with the lowest forms of life, as with oysters, for example. However the carnivorous tastes and habits of man may have risen, there is no doubt of the sufficiency of a vegetable diet." Richard Turney went from Vermont to North Carolina, where he hired with James Buck to work on the farm, and soon became namoured with one of the Miss Bucks. The father determined to turn the affection to acount, and agreed, if the young man would assist him on the farm for one year, he would give him a double-barrelled shot-gun and his daughter. Turney agreed. The term of ser-vice has expired, and Turney asked a fuifilment of the contract on the spot. Buck gave him the shot-gun and called the daughter in and asked her to agree to become Turney's wife. She refused to do so, saying that she had already given her heart to another, to whom she was to be married that night. Turney went off in a terrible rage. He threatens to sue the old mau for $5,000 for preach of contract and get an injunction restraining the girl from marrying his rival. The weil-known antiquarian of Oxford, Mr. James Parker, has finished the excavation of a Roman villa in a field near Abing-don, and drawn an accurate plan of its formation. The villa consisted of eight or ter ooms, of which the largest is about 16 feet square, the whole series being about 70 feet long and from 20 to 30 feet in breadth. Under the largest rooms was found a hypocaust or subterranean stove, for heating the building. consisting of stone piers so built and con nested that the warm air circulated between them. Under the lower wall were found a couple of drainage pipes in perfect condition, one of which seems to have been connected with a pond 100 feet away. An American visiting in Japan, evidently loes not like the Japanese beds. He writes "What a travesty upon repose is the Japan-ese 'bed.' The modus operandi of preparing it was very simple. A man brought in a big quilt, spread it on the carpet, and then looked up at us inquiringly. We looked stupid, whereupon he withdrew and dragged in annother huge blanket. Then he retired a d brought in a single very large blanket with sleeves attached for a coverlet, one for each couch, and a sample of several kinds of pil-lows, ranging from anvil-shaped blocks of wood all the way up t rolled blankets. We selected the rolled blankets after a good deal of scrutiny and experimenting." The young man kicked the mule's ribs, struck resounding whacks on the mule's hide with a heavy trace, and twisted the mule's ears. The mule tood firm. "Twist his tail," "Scratch his heels." "Tickle his hind legs," sh uted the bystanders. The driver seized the bridle and tried with all his might to haul the mule forward into place, but the to haul the mule forward into place, our and mule continued firm. While the driver was still tugging at the bridle Mr. Howser, who understands mules chanced to pass. "Haut the other way," said Mr. Howser. "Why so?" asked the driver. "Because it's a mule," said Mr. Howser. The driver hauled the other way, and the mule immediately went Enter almost any cemetery in Japan and you will find tapers, coms, trays of food, shavings for starting a fire, and other articles all showing the mundame character of the ideas which the Japanese cherish with reference to the after-line. The face of the dead is always turned toward the north, a po which is religiously avoided by the Japanese during life. O'Donnell was not acquainted with Carey on the voyage from England to the Cape of Good Hope. He was not a member of any society, but recognized Carey by a wood-cut he saw at Cape Town and resolved to kill him. He intended to go with him to a farm at Port Elizabeth, which Carey had told him he was going to take, and thus show that there was no spot where Carey could be saie. Finding himself, however, alone with Carey, he could not resist the desire to kill him.

³ he could not resist the desire to kill him. Carey perceived his danger, and said, "Do you know me?" O'Donnell repled, "You are Carey, the informer. To hell with you !" The bullet sped with the words, and the deed was done. Carey clutched his own revolver, but too late. O'Donnell fired two more shots, and Carey rolled to the deck. No-body saw the encounter except O'Donnell's companion, who threw her arms around him and filled the ship with her cries. He had told her that morning he meant to kill Carey, and would hang for it.
