C. E. School Report.

We have before us the report of Mr. Blackall on the schools under his superintendence. Mr. Blackall sets forth prominently the growth of office work. Some 4,044 letters were sent out, 1,600 quarterly return forms, 400 annual ones were dealt with, the financial statements of 64 Boards checked and tabulated, conferences held with boards, chairmen and teachers, building grant administered, and not one cent of educational funds issued without a requisition being made out and signed by the Superintendent. All this and much more of the same nature took up considerable of the time of the Superintendent, and his assistant. Mr. Blackall asks for more assistance. We would much prefer, however, to see most of the clerical work of the superintendents consolidated and transferred to a central office, in order that the superintendents might devote more of their time and energy to inspection of schools, advice to teachers, and a more intimate association with the technical side of teaching.

On the time required for the inspection of schools, Mr. Blackall comments thus:
"My assistant and myself have made a careful estimate of the time that it would take one man to inspect thoroughly all the Church of England schools once, and we find that it would be some 325 days. When Sundays and school vacations are taken out of the year, as well as Saturdays, which must be omitted as the equivalent time for travelling—an allowance which is, I fear, too small—it will be seen how ridiculous it is to imagine that any one man can inspect each school once a year, and yet how very necessary it is that this, at least, should be done! In fact, with so many of our teachers young and inexperienced and ill prepared for their work, the efficiency of the schools as a whole would be enormously increased if many of the schools could be officially visited three times a year. We find the majority of the teachers very glad to see us; they welcome the visit of the Inspector and would be most thankful if he could call and come with his counsel, guidance and encouragement two or three times in each school year. Sympathetic inspection must be of the utmost benefit to teachers and scholars, for it is perhaps the greatest of all influences towards efficiency. There can be no doubt that our educational system loses very much on account of the inadequate provision made for supervision."

This estimate has been made by Mr. Blackall and Mr. Thompson, both of whom are experienced in school inspection, on the time it would take to make an adequate inspection and the time taken up in travelling from place to place. Mr. Thompson, if we mistake not, has been travelling from school to school for seventeen or eighteen years. Thorough inspection is good enough in its way as a means of government control, but if an adequate educational value is to accrue from it, it must be something more. After the inspector has studied the situation on the spot as an educational expert and got a grasp of the particular difficulties of the local authorities, the teachers and scholars, it must be followed up by counsel and conference with the teachers. That is the real value of the visitation, otherwise inspection becomes merely inquisitorial, and the inspector a mere educational detective.

THE MESSIAH.

A full hall representative of all classes, showed that the interest in the performance of this great oratorio was general.

This is as it should be. The production of such a work is notable, and especially so here, where unfortunately the music-masters limit our knowledge of the world's great music to a degree that sometimes is unacceptable.

It is surprising indeed that Mr. Allen has not given the Messiah before. However, we can appreciate the difficulties which a performance of this sort entail—the want of a good practice room, large enough to accommodate all the players and singers, a few good workers to see to the details, and the need of a fund to clear initial expenses. A chorus to get up some good musical work each year would increase in efficiency, instead of now having to work three times as hard owing to the infrequent periods in which they are called together.

The chorus last night was fine and all their work except an anxious moment in "He trusted in God" was taken with precision. The "Amen" chorus, which we hear was performed for the first time here last night, went well and formed, as it was intended, a grand close.

Mr. Allen's choir boys sang with the soprano and their fresh clear voices were beautiful. It seems to us that perhaps the greatest result of Mr. Allen's work is shown in his boys. He has certainly the correct method of teaching them if we are to judge by the many expressions of pleasure we hear concerning their singing.

In his individual performances Mr. Allen is rather cold, and there is nothing more inspiring to a chorus conductor who is moved by and with the music.

There are details which one could find fault with, but the ambitious performance like this it is not just to be particular and as some one says, it is better to give good music with a few mistakes than to give poorer music without any. We thought the Halle-lujah Chorus went exceptionally well.

Mrs. King sang well. No multiplication of adjectives can express her full, round voice and her "Rejoice Greatly" and "I know that my Redeemer liveth" were gems which the audience could not refrain from applauding, though it had been requested that there should be no applause.

Miss Herder made a good impression, especially in the first part of "He Shall Feed His Flock" and in "He Was Despised." We think that her voice anticipates an excellent mezzo-soprano, and the promise is so far from Mr. Seymour sang his recitative and solo at the beginning very well indeed. Tenor voices are rare here and with a little more force Mr. Seymour promises to do much towards improving the want.

Mr. McCarthy was in good form and gave a splendid rendering of "But Who May Abide" and "Why do the Nations" and "The Trumpet Shall Sound," the latter being accompanied by Mr. New on the cornet.

We ought to hear Mr. McCarthy more often than we do. The accompaniments were played by Mr. Arthur Mews, at the organ; Mrs. E. F. Horwood, Florence, at the piano; Miss Bradshaw, Miss Fennell, Mr. Patton, Mr. F. Emerson, violin; Mrs. McVie, Mr. Alex. Mews, violoncello; who materially aided the performance. Taken all together the Messiah was a great success and Mr. Allen is to be congratulated on the work. It is gratifying that such a large audience attended and it should prove an incentive to Mr. Allen or some other musician to continue the work and not to leave us again for five years or more without the opportunity of hearing some great oratorio.

What About Your Cough?

Is it gradually growing from bad to worse? A person contracts a cold some way or another. Very often you do not know how you contracted it. The symptoms do not begin until 1 or 2 days after.

1st.—It affects the head, causing a nasty, uncomfortable feeling for about 36 hours, leaving the head and affecting the throat and gradually settling on the chest, which 9 cases out of 10 is neglected. This is the time when the danger is at hand.

If there is nothing to relieve the spasms of coughing and to take effect on the bronchial organs of the throat and chest, the chances of the cough leaving the system of its own accord is not very great.

As a rule in the night your cough is worse than any other time. Pheratone Cough Mixture quickly gets at the seat of all kinds of coughs and colds, and in a few hours great relief is obtained. If you mix equal parts of Stafford's Liniment and Sweet Oil in a saucer, warm slightly and apply on a piece of thick flannel, placing same over chest and allowing it to remain three or four hours, this will also relieve you a great deal.

Hundreds of people have coughs and colds gradually growing from bad to worse just because they do not take the proper treatment. If you are one of these don't delay any longer.

Pheratone Cough and Cold Cure is prepared only by DR. E. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Nfld. Price 25c. a bottle; postage 5c. extra. apr25,11

Arrested for Embezzlement.

A thirty year old clerk was arrested last night for embezzlement by Constable Lawlor under a warrant issued at the instance of Mr. Miller, Manager of the United States Picture and Portrait Company, which with the firm the accused was a servant and who was engaged as a collector. Within the past few months and during the absence of Manager Miller, who was abroad on business, the accused had been misappropriating monies collected for his own use to the extent of eighty-three dollars ($83.00). This morning the prisoner was arraigned before Judge Knight and admitted his guilt for the charge of embezzlement but pleaded that the amount was not as much as $83. The prisoner was remanded until all the receipts are presented as evidence. He has the option of going before a jury in the Supreme Court but prefers to be tried summarily in the Magistrate's Court.

A MISNAGE.—An old house on the North Side of New Gower Street, just below the Western Fire Station, was pulled down some weeks ago and left an old cellar unguarded. This place is now becoming the receptacle for old garbage and fifth of all kinds and as it is right on the margin of a busy thoroughfare it is a menace to the health of the city. The Council should compel the owner to rail it off.
