ON THE DEATH OF THE LATE
MICHAEL O'BRIEN.

There's a newly made grave out in lonely Belvidere
And one of Nature's noblemen is laid to rest there;
You will seek among thousands his equal to find So noble, so generous, so true, and so kind.

But death's dark angel that always brings woe Had entered his dwelling and laid dear Mike low;
To his most bereaved family the warning was brief But others do share in their heart-rending grief.

His death has cast over the city a gloom
The poor and the needy shall weep o'er his tomb.
On the weak and the erring he looked not with scorn But with kind words of pity helped them to reform.

For the wait and the outcast
He had a kindly word;
He is gone to God's kingdom
To gain his reward.

K.D.

The Lily Of The Valley.

Once upon a time a long while ago there lived in a tiny house near a large garden a fairy's mother with ever and over so many fairy children.

All the children were dressed alike, in green slippers and stockings, white suits, and white pointed caps with a dewdrop shining on top.

One evening the fairy mother said:
"You may take your small ivory buckets and fill them with dew from the flowers in the garden but be sure to come home before the sun rises."

Oh they started, running and swinging the buckets in their hands; but when they reached the garden, instead of working, they began to teeter on the grass blades and play hide-and-seek among the flowers.

And, do you know, they played and played all that night and forgot all about the dew and the ivory buckets till the great sun could be seen.

It was past time for going home
and played all that night and forgot would the fairy mother say?

"We'll hang our ivory buckets on these stems and to-night come and fill them," they said.

Then they went home, and they felt very sorry when they saw how sad their fairy mother looked.

As soon as the sun went down they hurried to the garden. First one little fairy, then another and another tried to pick a bucket from the stem where he had left it, but it was of no use. All the buckets were tightly fastened to the stems and turned upside down.

They have been fastened that way ever since, and perhaps if you look in your garden you will find some of the fairies' ivory buckets.

Ferryland Roads.

REFLECT CREDIT ON SIR M. P.

CASHIN.

A gentleman who visited and toured the Southern Shore yesterday as far as Ferryland, was so favorably impressed by the attractions of that part of the country as a resort for tourists that he wonders there is not more said about the beautiful scenery and good motor roads, and above all the hospitality of the people there.
The condition of the roads is a credit to Sir Michael Cashin, and they are all kept in good order without pauper relief money. All the work is done out of the ordinary District grant. A motor drive right up the Shore to Ferryland is a easy as any road in the suburbs. The fishery continues good at Cape Broyle and Bay Bulls, and boats are getting three quintals a day.

Personal.

Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Bond, who came to town to attend the funeral of the late R. H. O'Dwyer, returned to town by to-day's express.

Mr. H. J. Russell, Secretary to the General Manager of the Railway, has been out of town for a few days on company business.

Mr. E. H. Fort arrived by the Rosalind to make arrangements for the filming of Newfoundland's first moving picture. His company will arrive here next week.

Graphite in Siberia.

Extensive deposits of graphite exist in northwestern Siberia, on the left bank of the River Kureika, near its junction with the River Yenisei, 90 miles from the mouth of the latter river. The graphite area forms a horizontal plateau, the elevation of which varies from 20 to 50 feet above the normal level of the River Kureika. The plateau contains two layers of graphite, which is of a solid steel-gray color, soft and of an excellent quality for the manufacture of pencils. It is believed that in the future these graphites will supply Russian demands and that large quantities will be available for export. The chief sources of graphite have been Ceylon, Bohemia, Germany, France and the United States. The annual world production has been approximately 120,000 short tons.—Indianapolis News.
