

In the Realms of Sport

THE NONPAREIL, HAD WONDERFUL RING COURAGE.

Johnny Reagan in 45 Rounds
on Long Island With Leg Badly
Cashed by Spike in Shoe.

(By JAMES J. CORBETT.)

In the matter of ring courage I think it is the entire history of the sport that there was ever a more wonderful display than that of Jack Dempsey.

The Nonpareil—back in 1887, Dempsey was suffering a single defeat, and he was matched to meet Johnny Reagan in a finish battle for a $2,000 prize. The rules of the fight were to be a bare knuckles, London prize rules to govern. Inasmuch as Dempsey was world middleweight champion at the time, the title was at stake.

Reagan Uses Spikes.

Reagan rushed at Dempsey with the call of time, jumped into the air and gashed Jack's leg with his left leg. Then he leaped again and gashed Jack's leg with his right leg. Below the knee, and ripped a six-inch gash one inch deep—a ghastly wound. Jack caught Reagan on the head with a right hander and Reagan went down on his back. Reagan was over, as in those days a fight was over when a man was down and ended each round.

Reagan was gushing in torrents from Dempsey's leg and covered the wound where he stood. Jack, tottering and pale as a ghost, had to be led to his corner. Dempsey's second demanded the fight on the grounds that Reagan had twice fouled. The referee refused to grant Reagan the right to continue, and ruled that the fight was over.

Dempsey was in a terrible way. He stopped the flow of blood with his hand. He spat out in a constant stream. His seconds wanted him to stop. But when time was called for the second round, Dempsey immediately walked to the center of the ring and resumed fighting.

Reagan continued his rushing attack. Reagan purposely fell into Reagan's trap, throwing all his weight on Reagan. He roused Jack in every possible way, using every conceivable trick. But his efforts were unavailing. Jack fought on—and on—and on—until the fourth round more trouble was added to those of Dempsey. The incoming tide had flooded Reagan, forcing the fighters to bathe in the icy waters up to their shoes. Soon the water was up to their knees. At the end of the eighth it was deep—and carrying with it the chill. The referee then called a halt and, with several spectators, moved another ring on dry ground.

Sublime Gameness.

When the contest resumed, Reagan continued to rush the crippled, weary Dempsey. But Jack, using his wonderful brain, and his amazing cleverness, was able to get out of the way of Reagan's terrific swings. The gameness of the "Nonpareil" was sublime. In that fight Jack Dempsey displayed courage that no man ever had eclipsed. The weary-as-a-dog spirit ruled him, and though faced by disheartening odds, he battled on—and on.

For thirty-five rounds Reagan fought aggressively. Then, weary of his own efforts, he was forced to back on the defensive. Wherever Jack Dempsey started his remarkable rally, jabbing, hooking, he would wear down Reagan with his solid smashes to the face. The fight came in the forty-fifth.

Reagan for the call of time in the forty-fifth, Reagan was met with a back-hander to the face. Dempsey followed with another right to the place as Reagan clinched. Then Reagan threw him to the ground.

Reagan, whereupon Reagan's second jumped into the ring and yelled:

"Stop the fight! We give in for Johnny Reagan."

Paddock Covers 100 Yards in Record Time.

Beats Gun, So Mark of 6.00 % Unofficial; Defeats Rivals by 5 Yards.

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Charlie Paddock, of Pasadena, Calif., the world's fastest sprinter, to-day convinced his admirers he is ready to uphold the honors of America in the Olympic games when, in a downpour of rain, he ran an exhibition 100 yards in the unofficial time of 0.09 6-10, equalling the world's record, as the headline attraction of the Drake relay.

The famous California athlete, competing in a race for the first time in two years, beat the gun by a fraction of a second at the start, but the form he displayed in the judgment of track experts dispelled whatever doubt might have existed concerning his speed after a two-year lay-off. Paddock wanted to run the race over, when announcement was made that he had beaten the gun, but the condition of the track, with rain still drenching it, was such that he was prevailed upon to wait until to-morrow.

Paddock raced against a trio of freshmen—Phelps and Everingham, of the University of Iowa, and Phillips, of Butler—beating them to the tape by at least five yards.

Luis Firpo was a very happy man after his victory over Farmer Lodge.

All his joy did not come from that cause, but, Luis says, "I have discovered a left hand!" He recalled how he flattened Lodge with a portside slam in the first round and also again in the fifth, and, receiving the shouts of his country, declared: "Now I find I have a usable left hand, and with a left hand of that kind I can beat Jack Dempsey."

Perhaps he figures he can accomplish the feat, but we'll say for the champion he hasn't missed any meals as yet or been disturbed by bad dreams in his slumbers because of the portside weapon which the "Wild Bull" has discovered among his assets. Firpo is well aware Dempsey has a left to be reckoned with, for it was the champion's left which sunk about three inches in the midsection of the "Wild Bull" torso and made him grunt so it was audible to all those seated near the ring. That proved the finish of Firpo—darkness prevailed then and there.
