An accident, the result of which might have been fatal, happened to Miss Maber Oliver, of Bluevale. While playing on the embankment by Nixon's grist mill she fell into the water, a distance of 20 feet. Fortunately where she fell the water was not shallow or the fall might have caused instant death. When first seen after the tumble she was climbing the embankment. One day lately George Armstrong, of the Thames road, Usborne, lost a valuable borse by a peculiar accident. A young lad was engaged harrowing a field. In turning too short the harrow was upset, and falling against the horses they ran away. Finally they got into the road, and in their mad race one of them by some means fell on the upturned harrows, killing it almost instantly.

TOBACCO KILLED THE SNAKE. The Big Rattler Couldn't Stand Nice

A gentleman who came in from the Tip Top country states that on last Sunday morning a well-known prospector who stands six feet in his stockings and wears a No. 13 boot was enjoying the genial sunshine by taking a ramble on the south side of a hill when he stepped on the tail of a monster rattlesnake, which was also enjoying a sun bath.

ing a sun bath.

The first intimation the prospector had ing a sun bath.

The first intimation the prospector had of the snake's presence was a sharp, angry hiss, quickly followed by a swishing sound as the great snake threw itself in a whip-like semicircle through the air, dashing its head against the prospector's left top vest pocket, which contained a large, square plug of chewing tobacco, into which it was unable to pull them through the cloth vest, and there the snake hung, with its tail fast under the prospector's boot and its head in a few inches of his mouth, thrashing its body against his overalls with the sound of three hotel chambermaids beating a carpet.

The prospector stood like one mesmerized, inhaling the sickening odor which rose from the mouth of the hissing snake, with his eyes fastened on the bead-like orbs of the enraged reptile. But the snake's struggles grew weaker and weaker, as the tobacco-colored venom cozed from the sides of its mouth, the tobacco making it sick, and, in a short time, it hung limp, dangling from the prospector's vest like a great rawhide rope.

The tobacco had made it deadly sick, a film passed over its eyes, the charm was broken, a spasmodic movement of the prospector's arm and the reptile's head was crushed against the plug of tobacco, when the horrified prospector fell over unconscious, where he was soon afterwards found by a companion, all tangled up with the dead snake. He was disengaged, restored to consciousness and felt for his plug of tobacco, cut out a bright green piece from the middle of it, took a chew from one corner of the plug and told the above story.—[Prescott Courier.

in the vicinity, having resided here over fifty years, and is highly respected as a man of the strictest honor, whose word is as good as his bond.

As will be seen from his letter, four physicians had attended him, and it was only after he had given up hope of cure that he decided to try Burdeck Blood Bitters on the recommendation of a neighbor who had been cured of a similar disease by its use. Mr. Haun writes as follows:

Dean Sms,—I think I have been one of the worst sufferers you have yet heard of, having been six years in the hands of four of our best doctors without obtaining permanent relief, but continually growing worse, until almost beyond hope of recovery, I tried your Bitters and gor relief in a few days. Every organ of my body was deranged, the liver enlarged, hadened and torpid, the heart and digestive organs seriously deranged, a large abscess in my back, followed by paralysis of the right leg, in fact the lower half of my body was entirely useless. After using Burdock Blood Bitters for a few days the abscess burst, discharging fully five quarts of pus in two hours. I felt as if I had received a shock from a powerful battery. My recovery after this was steady and the cure permanent, seeing that for the four years since I have had as good health as ever I had. I still take an occasional bottle, not that I need it but because I wish to keep my system in perfect working order. I can think of no more remarkable case than what I have myself passed through, and no words can express my thankfulness for such perfect recovery.

Gentlemen,—I have been personally acquainted with Mr. C. C. Haun for the last 20 years, and have always found him a very reliable man. You may place the utmost confidence in anything he says with regard to your medicine. He has on many occasions within the last four years told me that it was marvellous the way the Burdock Blood Bitters had cured him, and that he now felt as able to do a day's work as he ever felt in his life. Although quite well he still takes some B. B. B. occasionally, as he says, to keep him in perfect health.
