IS IT INFANTICIDE?

Inquest Tonight on a Baby Born on Saturday -- Sad Story of an Unfortunate Girl

At the police station tonight an inquest will be begun upon the body of an infant child. The circumstances surrounding the case are of a sad nature. About a month ago a girl named Lily Errol came from St. Catharines and secured a position as cook at the home of a prominent London citizen. On Saturday last the girl remained in her room all day, and refused to admit anyone. In the evening entrance was made into the room, and the girl appeared to be suffering great agony, and in a valise in the clothes closet was found the dead body of a newly-born female infant. The child was in a healthy and well-formed condition, while indications pointing to its death by suffocation were present. The body was taken charge of by the authorities, while the mother was removed to Victoria Hospital, where she now is. After hearing the circumstances Coroner Piper ordered the inquest.

Clad in their kaki uniform, their muscular broad shoulders, their appearance, as they walked down Richmond street, proclaimed them as types of the sturdy Canadians who have done so valiantly for their Queen in South Africa. Their presence brought into prominence another fact also, that of the strongly cemented bond of union that exists among all races in Canada-for Marentette is of French extraction. The best that picnicked at Port Stanley on Saturday, the city had to offer was theirs. They were members of the London's Company, and anything that London had they could have. Half a dozen aldermen grabbed them at the city hall, and Ald. Brener, chairman of the reception committee, could hardly wait for the mayor to ask the boys to dine the guests of the city, so eager was he to give them cordial welcome. As Graham's father, who had met them at the station, had already made arrangements for their dinner, they were not able to accept Mayor Rumball's invitation Both Marantette and Graham were invalided home, but to look at them, bronzed and brawny, one would suppose that they could still stand any amount of hardship. The fate of the capital appears to threaten other towns like Tien Tsin, Che Foo, and even Shanghai. The defeat of the allied forces at Tsin seems to place that town in desperate straits, and if retreat to Taku should be necessitated observers consider that it would be likely to decide the policy of wavering viceroys.

TRIC SHOCKS. Engineering has an interesting article on this subject, in the course of which they point out that the electric resistance of the human body is neither constant nor one-valued, as in the analogous case of inorganic bodies. richty, offering but little opposition to a steady flow of current. The seat of obstruction is at the terminals, where difficulty is found not only in making an entrance, but also in effecting an exit. The skin, when clean and dry, is the arch-obstructionist, as we see by the singeings and burns inflicted upon persons incautiously touching live wires. Since the resistance of the tissues is small, very little of the energy of a passing current will be converted into internal heat, the greater part of the energy absorbed in transit being employed in doing electrolytic work. If this process of chemical change be kept up for some time, it is obvious that the comfort and health of the subject may plan, but simply to talk over the situ- of 100 volts or so, a slight commotion is felt on closing and on opening the There is reason to believe that 8,000 circuit, and likewise whenever the curas rapidly as possible, and hurried to or diminution.
