EIGHTH YEAR

ANDALUSIA'S STRANGER IDENTI FIED AS GEO. S. HERCHMER.

Yesterday Leave no Doubt as to This Fact—What His Townspeople Lave to Say About the Sad Affair—The cause of

The exclusive statement published in World yesterday that George S. Herchme ex-manager of the Central Bank at Brampto was the unknown man found dead last Thursday morning at Andalusia, Pa., is fully borne out by the investigations of our reporters

The Waltham watch found on the deceased was sold to Mr. Herehmer in October, 1873, by P. L. Woods, a jeweler on Main-street, Brampton. An invoice was shown The World by Mr. Woods, which disclosed the fact that watch was bought from R. Wilkes, Toonto, Aug. 28, 1873, and a reference to the books showed that its purchase was made by Herchmer in the following October.

"Here is the entry," said Mr. Woods: Waltham watch, William Ellery, 659,559. When I saw Monday's World I recognized the description, and upon looking over my books all doubts were removed. I know the watch well, and it is one I sold Mr.

The ring found in Mr. Herchmer's posses ion is what is known as a plain wedding ring, which he purchased two years ago from W. A. Mitchell, also a Main-street jeweler. firm in this country has business stamp as mine, which same business stamp as mine, which I invariably engrave upon every article I manufacture," said Mr. Mitchell to the reporter." "The stamp comprises my initials, "W. A. M.: 'the lotter 'B' for Brampton, and 18k. The Philadelphia papers do not mention the letter 'B,' which I account for on the supposition that it was not legible, from long use. I am positive the ring is the one Mr. Herchmer purchased from me."

sed from me. from me."
Still Another Proof. Another article of jewelry worn by Mr. Herchmer was a topaz pin, and both of the jewelers mentioned, as did also a score of acquaintances, that they had frequently seen it in Mr. Herchmer's shirt front. The Waltham watch had been promised by Mr. Mitcheller. it in Mr. Herchmer's shirt front. The Waltham watch had been repaired by Mr. Mitchell at different times, and the reporter was shown an entry in his order book indicating that on April 5, 1886, it had been left for repair.

The statement that the joint or hinge of the watch found on the dead stranger was broken, was also investigated. A few days prior to his departure from Pragman Mr. Herchmer was also investigated. A few days prior to his departure from Brampton, Mr. Herchmer called upon a jeweler to have it repaired, but upon learning that it could not be done at once he said he would call again and leave it.

If anything was now lacking in establishing the identity of the dead man it was furnished by Mr. Robinson, of Robinson & Stark, who in answer to an inquiry as to the sale by his firm of the braces found on deceased, said: "Two weeks ago Mr. Herchmer bought a pair of braces from us, and from the description published of those foundupon the man, I have not the least doubt, he is Mr. Herchmer. The pattern I remember well, and the letters and figures 'R.D.—75,' found upon the white cloth, are our private mark."

Facts Recalled By Friends of the Bead Man. Having completely established the fact that the watch, ring and topaz pin found on the An ialusia victim was the property of Mr. An ialusia victim was the victim was the property of Mr. An ialusia victim was the prop Herchmer, The World sought information in other quarters, as to the views entertained of identity. Not one of his acquaintances was found who would express an opinion that the person was not Mr. Herchmer. Several dedured they recognized in The World's wood cut a certain and unmistakable resemblance. Councillor Chaney, an intimate friend, said he was unfortunately forced to the conclusion that Mr. Herchmer and the dead man were one and the same person. He based this opinion upon the description furnished of the build, hair and clothes of the deceased, and the more important fact of the finding upon his body of the watch, ring, topaz plin and braces. Mr. Campbell, editor of the Conservator, expressed the same view. He said Cashier Allan of the Central Bank, Toronto, was mistaken in saying Mr. Herchmer's complexion was florid and that he wore a long mustache. His complexion was remarkably fair; the mustache had been removed about three weeks ago. Other gentlemen intimately acquainted with Mr. Herchmer said the description given convinced them that Mr. Herchmer's no more.

was prostrated with grief. Although she was hopeful the remains would not be identified as that of her husband, the family felt that there was no ground for the was nopenia to her husband, the family felt fled as that of her husband, the family felt that there was no ground for the belief that the person was other than Mr. Herchmer. The various articles of jewelry and elothing, the reporter was told, were identified by Mrs. Herchmer as those worn by her husband. On Tuesday last Mr. Herchmer left the house, saying he was going to visit his friends in Belleville, since which no word had been received from him. The family were investigating the Andalusia story, and to-day the mystery, so far as Mr. Herchmer was concerned, would be settled definitely.

Why the Went to Philadelphia. The object of Mr-Herchmer's visit to Philadelphia is found in a statement recently made by him to Mr. John Gordon, to whom he said that he proposed visiting the Quakor City to meet an old bank associate who was now niving there. It was also learned that Mr. Herchmer had frequently stated that Mr. Herchmer suppose that he left Brampton. Some of his acquaintances say he was seen early Wednesday morning, but others aver that he left Tnesday. On Sunday last he telegraphed to Belleville friends that he would likely start for that city in aday or two. Mr. Lewis, a cattle dealer, is reported to have said that Mr. Herchmer told him he was going east, but he afterwards saw him board a west-bound train, and supposes that his destination was Detroit. The railway agents at Brampton could throw Bo light upon the point. The route taken by him is also merely a matter of conjecture. The object of Mr. Herchmer's visit to Phila is also merely a matter of conjecture.

A Feeling of Beep Regret. The general feeling in Brampton over the affair is one of deep regret. Mr. Herchmer was universally liked. He was generous to an unlimited degree, and his charitable deeds en-deared him to many households. To his ds he distributed gifts with a princely enerosity; money had, in fact, no value, and is conduct in this respect may be most aptly sescribed as eccentric. Prior to his assuming he management of the Central Bank in 1885, the had been connected with the Merchants lank, and to his business ability present tanding of the Central is chiefly ascribed. His suspension from the bank's management bout a fortnight ago proyed upon his mind, and he spoke in his despondent moods of going to Texas. Whatever difficulties he had with he bank were satisfactorily adjusted through its friends.

Facts About Herchmer's Sudden Death.
PHILADELPHIA. April 5.—Crowds, still continue to throng the morgue at Bristol to view the remains of the dead stranger. There is little doubt now but that his identity has been the remains of the dead stranger. Here is little doubt now but that his identity has been established by telegrams and letters sent on here from Canada. The information telegraphed from The World office in Toronto easily led up to a conclusive clue. Word has also been received that the dead man's brother-in-law, Mr. C. F. Gildersleeve of Kingston, is now on his way to Philadelphia.

The post mortem examination shows that florchmer did not meet with foul play, but died from fatty degeneration of the heart.

There is no doubt now about how the man got to Andalusia; that part of the mystery has been cleared away. He was suddenly taken sick on the "owl" train from New York, which stopped near Andalusia at 2.55 last Thursday morning on account of a freight wrock at Borie's station. He got off the train evidently to get the fresh air, and fell down beside the track. The train proceeded on its way, and Herclmer expired as described by the section man, who found him gasping in the throes of death. Nearly every one who has called at the morgue came out of sheer curiosity. Many hundreds of well-dressed women were among the number.

The Globe's Wondrous Theory.

The dizzy old Globe was as usual badly left on the Andalusia sensation. The Deacon and his staff were not only distanced in obtaining any reliable facts, but they printed a picture of Mr. Horchmer in their 'sporting columns under the belief that it was Hi Stoddard, the well-known sporting man of New York. The Deacon ought to increase the salary of his able detective-reporter. The idea of such a well-known character as Hi Stoddard, or even Billy Muloney the exile, lying in a morgue within fifteen miles of Philadelphia, under a constant review of all kinds of people, among whom were dozens of sporting men, and no one to identify him. The Globe must have a spite against Stoddard's reputation.

A BIG FIRE AT WINDSOR.

A Hotel and a Number of Shops Burned to the Ground.

Detroit, April 5.—This morning the stable attached to the Beeman House at Windsor, Ont., caught fire, and being old and as dry as I tinder, resisted all the efforts of the firemen to extinguish the flames. The hotel proper caught fire, and although the Windsor firemen worked hard they could not control the flames. The Detroit department was telephoned and two stanners and hose carriages were immediately sent over on the ferry Victoria. The Beeman House and the frame stores to the south of it were quickly destroyed. By this time the Detroit refler party had arrived, and finding that they could not make connection with the hydrants, they ran the suction directly into the river and had the fire out in a few minutes. The following are the losses: Barn on Chatham-street owned by Wm. Douglass and used in the storage of agriculcultural implements, $500 loss. Arthur Brumner, a well-known resident of Windsor, narrow ly escaped being burned in the hotel. The other losses and insurances are: Thos. Manning, loss $20,00 insurance $1600; Joseph Maisonville, loss $5000, insurance $3000; G. C. Ayres, (ailor, loss $5000, insurance $3000; G. C. Ayres, (ailor, loss $5000, insurance $1000; R. Although she was hopeful the remains would not be identified as that of her husband, the family feit that there was no ground for the belief that the person was other than Mr.

THE SECOND READING OF THE CRIMES BILL MOVED,

The Government Will Postpone the Divi-sion on the Measure Until April 19— Mr. Gladstone Accused of Abetting Robbery in Ireland.

LONDON, April 5.-The House of Commons is practically taking a week's holidays, so many members are pairing. The Government insists that the debate on the Irish Criminal Law Amendment Bill shall proceed but will postpone the division on the bill till April 19. The Conservative whips retain enough members to keep their majority secure in order to bers to keep their majority secure in order to prevent a surprise.

The Secretary of the Birmingham Radical Union states that the ward elections for delegates to the Liberal Association have resulted in a large increase in the Unionist strength.

In the event of the Cocroin Bill becoming a law a number of Radical members of Parliamont promise to join the Parnellites and go to Ireland to dofy the act.

Sir Edward Clarke, Solicitor-General, accused Mr. Gladstone of having bartered all of his convictions and his future freedom in order to guin a position, the danger of which was recognized in 1885 and fillustrated in 1886, namely, dependence on the Parnellites. Did he still hope by obstructing business and forcing an appeal to the country to obtain a majority independent of the Parnellites? [Cries of "Yes" from the Irish benches.]

jority independent of the Parnellites? [Crics of "Yes" from the Irish benches.]

The Second Reading Meved.

London, April 5.—The second reading of the Irish Crimes' Act Amendment Bill was formally moved this afternoon by Mr. Balfour. Mr. Samuelson, Gladstonian member for Banbury, moved an amendment that the bill would, if passed, increase disorder in Ireland and endanger the Union and Empire, and therefore should be rejected.

Henry Chaplin (Con.) defended the bill. The land laws which the Radicals now condemned, he said, were passed while Mr. Gladstone was at the head of the Government. Mr. Chaplin asked Mr. Gladstone, not as a Liberal, not as a politician merely, but as an honest man, to disown before Iroland and the whole world the reign of sheer plunder now preached in Iroland. If there was any robbery in connection with the present land system of the country the author of it was Mr. Gladstone. It was he who fixed the ronts in Ireland, under a solomn guarantee that they should remain unaltered.

There is no reason why the city detectives, who have worked so energetically for the past ten days, should give up the case, although it is suggested that they consider their mission ended in view of the intrusion. Here are a few theories about the case which are generally discussed by citizens. Suppose the unfortunate young man got lost in a snowstorm of the fatal night the thaw of the past few days ought to reveal the body. Young Hamer undoubtedly had money on his person which last seen. Suppose the body should be found and no money in the pockets of the clothes, are not the circumstances suspicious? What course should the detectives take? Those possibilities are talked about by citizens, and the detectives are looked upon to elucidate the mystery.

TRENTON, April 5.—Abut 10 a.m. a fire broke out in the stables of the Empey Hotel. Fanned by a heavy northwest wind the fire quickly spread to the adjoining stables and barns of the Daly House, which, being large and built of wood, made a fire which threatened at one time to sweep the principal part of the business portion of the town. WORK IN COMMITTEE. The Gas Bill in a New Form-The Tatooed

When Chairman Gibson called the Private Bills Committee together yosterday morning, Room 16 was crowded as it has been every time the Gas Bill and the City Bill were on the program. Mr. James Austin, President; Mr. Wm. Mulock, M.P., and Mr. Larratt W.Smith, Wm. Mulock, M.P., and Mr. Larratt W.Smith, solicitors, and Secretary Pearson of the Consumers' Gas Company were present to press their measure. Mayor Howland and Ald. McMilland hold the city's end up. After a good deal of talk on both sides. Chairman Gibson asked if it would be agreeable to the city to change the bill, so as to authorize the Gas Company to increase their capital, the increase not to exceed fifty per cent, of their present capital of $100.000. Mayor Howland said he thought that would be agreeable. It would prevent the company raising the puice of gas, at any rate.

Afterwards the company's solicitors and the city representatives met and entered into an agreement on this basis:

The company to be allowed to increase their capital stock to $2,00,000. the new stock to be parton the market and sold at public anction to the highest bidder, the preparation on the new stock to be invested in proper securities and to form a rest for the company; after the premium on the new stock to be invested in proper reserve had been formed the remainder of the surpius to form a fund which is to bear interest to go toward the reduction of the price of gas.

The committee will report the bill in its amended form.

The City Bill was next considered. The clause proposing to authorize the city to borrow money on the Horticultural Gardens property to erect a music hall was considered. Mr. Pellatt said the society was willing to keep the Gardens open all night if the corporation would be provide police protection for the flowers and plants. On concert nights they would keep open till 7.45. Hon. A. S. Hardy was prepared to vote for the movement which would give us a large music hall, or anything that would tend to encouraging plenty of good music in Toronto as cheap as it could be had. The members of the committee should be deeply grateful to some of these gentlemen for their efforts in behalf of music. He thought the statements of Mr. Pellatt were very reasonable. The clause was then put and carried by 14 yeas to 9 nays. The bill was reported, as the chairman said, "with very considerable amendments."

Chairman Gibson reported from the subcommittee, to whom was reported the bill to unite Woodstock and McMaster Hall, stating that the sub-committee had gone over the bill carrefully and made only a few amendments. The points amended by the sub-committee were read, considered and carried without discussion, and reported.

Jimmie Durnan, aged 16, of 47 Nassau-street, employed in The World composing rooms, met with a lamentable accident at 4.15 yesterday morning. While passing the Bullock printing machine, which was turning out Worlds at the rate of 15,000 per hour, his overcoat was caught in between a pair of cog wheels low down on the press. The poor boy was instantly drawn down and his left arm, just below the shoulder, was caught between the rapidly-revolving teeth. The sudden jerk threw the belt off the fly-wheel and the machine stopped at once, The unfortunate lad's arm was so terribly mangled that amputation may be necessary. He was removed to the Hospital, where everything possible was done for him. Jimmie has been in The World office for three years, and was a great favorite with the entire staff of the paper. He bore his terrible sufferings with remarkable bravery.
