Why don't you make over some of your old things in this new way? This is a marvelous finish—this Celoid—a really high grade medium-floss enamel that gives the effect of a costly "hand rubbed" finish.
 It may be washed repeatedly without leaving streaks or stains—in fact, washing improves it. In addition to tinting furniture use Celoid on any woodwork anywhere on walls of wood, wood, plaster or fibro-board, or anywhere about the home which demands a finish in addition to Pure White. ILLEGITIMATE PARENTHOOD.

Dr. J. G. Shearer.
 Five thousand children are born out of wedlock in Canada every year. These children are very badly handicapped for life's struggle. They are inadequately supported, are poorly educated and socially ostracized. Their mothers, also, are most unjustly treated. They are ostracized by society, especially women, have single-handed to care for their children and bear usually the entire economic cost of maintenance. The illegitimate fathers in the past have gone scot free. Too great cads to volunteer to bear their fair share of responsibility, the laws of the past have been too weak to compel them to do so or pay the penalty.

But this is rapidly being changed in Canada. In 1921 the Social Service Council of Canada began a movement for a modern and efficient law for the care of children born out of wedlock and for the securing of justice to the mothers of such. The Ontario Legislature passed the measure in that year; Manitoba the following year; Alberta and British Columbia in 1923; Prince Edward Island in 1924; and the present prospect is that all the other Provinces will adopt the measure in the near future.

An important feature of the measure compels the illegitimate father to support the child according to the standards of his own station in life until it is sixteen years of age, and it is not left to the mother to take the initiative in putting the law in motion. This duty rests with the Superintendent of Child Welfare for the Province, who gets his information from the Registrar to whom the doctors and others are required to report the facts of each such birth. The Judge is clothed with power to decide the question of the fatherhood with all the evidence before him, and as well to fix the amount of financial responsibility of the father; also at discretion to require the mother to personally care for the child, assuming her fitness. Thus as far as possible the child is assured a fair chance in life, and the father is compelled to bear his just share of responsibility for its maintenance. This law has been in force in Norway for 8 or 9 years and has worked well, and in addition to serving the purpose for which it was enacted its operation has resulted in a steady decline in the number of such births in proportion to the population.

The law in Ontario, which contains one-third of the population of Canada has been operation for nearly three years. The latest report indicates that 2,500 cases have been reported. A large proportion of these cases are still in process, but at least half of them have been finally dealt with. In 203 cases it was impossible to establish the paternity of the child for lack of corroborative evidence supplementing the mother's statement. In 104 cases the parents were voluntarily married. In 314 cases the mothers specially desired that no action should be taken. 639 cases were settled by agreement between the parties concerned, with the approval of the Superintendent of Child Welfare and of the County Judge. Considerably over 200 cases were decided by compulsory court order. Of 1,387 cases, 920 were of Canadian birth, 467 from the British Islands—an abnormal proportion. Almost $100,000 has been collected and much more has been ordered paid but not yet due. Of $100,000 the major portion, namely $67,922 was collected in 1923. It seems probable that 1924 will itself approach the $100,000 mark.

It is, of course, too early yet to observe or report the effect in that Province of the operation of the measure on the number of births out of marriage in proportion to the population, but no doubt in future years we shall be able to make the report of decrease in the proportionate number of such births as has been already appearing from the longer experience in Norway. When are Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, Quebec and Saskatchewan going to fall in line with the other provinces in this important reform by enacting a similar measure, and thus giving the children of these provinces born out of wedlock a fair chance and their mothers something approaching a square deal?

FIRE DESTROYED HOUSE AT LEQUILLE

Annapolis—A fire breaking out at three o'clock Monday morning, completely destroyed the home of Mrs. Euphemia Thompson, an aged resident of Lequille, with all its contents. The house has been unoccupied for some time, as Mrs. Thompson is ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Eugene Joseph, and the origin of the fire, which apparently started in the wood-house, is a mystery.

THE EMBARGO QUESTION.

(Extract From an Editorial in Montreal La Presse, May 23rd, 1924.)

Very few questions have aroused so many discussions or caused so much ink to flow as that regarding the proposed embargo on our pulpwood export.

When we speak of the embargo on the export of our pulpwood we mean export of pulpwood cut on private properties—in the woods and forests belonging to individuals—as for a percentage of twenty years or more this embargo has existed as regards the export of the wood cut on Crown lands, that is, those controlled by the Provinces or leased by them.

Everybody knows the results of this policy. It has provided Canada with an exceedingly prosperous industry whose production today contributes largely to our exports, particularly our exports to the United States.

Our production of pulp in Canada, has gone up from $54,624 tons in 1908, to 2,150,251 tons in 1922. Our production of newsprint has gone up from 350,000 tons in 1908, to 1,036,000 tons in 1922. The value of the capital invested in the pulp and paper industry in Canada, which in 1917 was $186,787,405.00, has increased during the last year for which exact figures are available to $381,006,524.

The advantages of our policy cannot therefore be disputed. It is essentially consistent with the national interest, inasmuch as it has allowed Canada to operate the wealth of its forests for the benefit of its population. It has compelled foreign capital, particularly American capital, to co-operate in the expansion of this national industry. It has endowed this country with a prosperous industry whose increase is constant, and has enabled it to take possession of the American market which we supply today with nearly half its newsprint.

But the fact remains that our neighbours, who at the present time are using an average of six million cords of pulpwood for their domestic production, are securing year after year a million and a quarter cords of Canadian pulpwood purchased from individuals who permit them to economize to the extent of about 20 per cent, of their supply from the exploitation of their own forests.

Thus our neighbours preserve a part of their forest resources, while we in Canada are witnessing an increasing yearly drain upon our forests through this exportation, and fires and insects are contributing to their devastation as well. Hence the question naturally comes very logically; does not the embargo policy, which has been so profitably applied to our Crown lands, impose itself clearly upon the forest products belonging to individuals?

The Newspaper Has the Greatest Advertising Influence

The Women's Advertising Club of Los Angeles, working through the Women's Clubs of that city, conducted a questionnaire on advertising media and their influence which should be very interesting to the retail advertiser. The computation was made that 90 per cent. of the buying is done by women and that millions of dollars are squandered every year in an effort to gain their attention. All walks of life was covered and the results figured on the basis of one thousand returns.

"Which of the advertising media influence you most?" was the question. The answer was announced as follows:
