Christ. A leading hypocrite of "the church," who had the theory of Christianity and not the practice, assailed him as to the incorrectness of his faith, a vigorous lawyer tried to argue him out of his convictions, and though they distressed the poor man because "he had no learning" and could not answer them as he felt they could be answered, still he never swerved from his allegiance to Him whose beautiful life he had resolved to take as his model. He was like the blind man whose eyes the Saviour opened. Against all Pharisaic cavilling, hypocrisy and slander, even to the extent of calling the Saviour a sinner, the man stoutly maintained, "Whether He be a sinner or no, I know not-one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I This was Sam Kimper's faith. It was not a faith merely of "how to die," but it was one that should touch and purify the life. This was "all he knew" and all that he would ever say, but it was a great deal and quite enough to influence many who came in contact with him. The story, we are told, is founded upon facts well known to the late Henry Ward Beecher.
