

confession, was anointed, received the holy viaticum, and shortly after, surrounded by his parents and relatives died a most happy death. To the members of the bereaved family THE REVIEW tenders the sincerest sympathy of the faculty and students. They can judge of our sorrow only by comparing it to their own. Requiescat in pace.

JOHN McDougall, ex. '99.

To the list of our departed college friends it is also our painful duty to add the name of Mr. John McDougall, ex '99, whose death took place on Dec. 25th. Deceased was an Ottawa boy and the youngest son of ex-mayor McDougall. During the two years that he spent with us, his genial and kindly temperament won him hosts of friends, while his many accomplishments made him a most entertaining companion. After his departure in 1893 on account of ill health, nothing seemed to delight the students better than a visit from "Jack." His untimely and unexpected death is regretted by all the teachers and students, and the members of the bereaved family have the most heart-felt sympathy of all in the irreparable loss they have sustained. —Requiescat in pace.

BY MICHAEL E. CONWAY.

The new year seems to have opened auspiciously for our Exchanges. Judging from the contents for the present month and the numerous and various features promised for the remainder of the year, every reader must admit that their influence will be more beneficial and far-reaching.

In the Ave Maria of January 7th, Rev. Dr. Shahan begins a very interesting description of a summer vacation spent in the Maritime Provinces. Here are lands of a romantic and mysterious past described by a writer who has evidently put to use the best of the characteristic gifts of a born traveler—a keen eye, a mind alive to close observation and a memory redentive in picture holding,
