CURRENT TRADE CONDITIONS.

ONTARIO.

The scarcity of cars for the shipment of lumber is seriously affecting the trade. Some manufacturers have orders booked for hundreds of cars, and much of this stock could be shipped but for the inability to obtain carriers. In other respects the situation at the mills is satisfactory. The retail demand is not large, but there is no difficulty in effecting sales. White pine stocks are light. A dealer who recently visited the Georgian Bay district states that not a single firm will carry over more than 10,000,000 feet of unsold lumber, and by far the greater number will have no stock for sale at the close of the season. In view of the competitive buying this year, we may expect that dealers will shortly place contracts in advance for their requirements of next season. Norway is very strong and likely to advance. Again this week we hear of mills shutting down earlier than usual so as to send the men into the woods.

Much talk is still heard regarding a further advance in the price of hardwood lumber. It seems that such a move has been held in check by the fear that it would stimulate the production of logs this winter to an excessive degree and possibly bring about a break in prices. With an average log input this winter hardwood prices are likely to continue firm next season.

Shingles and lath are steady and in constant demand for shipment to the Eastern States. In Toronto B. C. 6 to 2 inch shingles are selling at $3.
