

men toil and reap in the fruitful fields, the gods look lovingly down from the plain of Ida upon their labors; for the hand of the great All-father will lift men through obedience and industry to himself.