NOT LOVED, YET WEDDED

When they were alone, Caroline Selwyn, sinking upon a couch, burst into tears. The officer stood contemplating her, the keenest misery depicted on his countenance. Finally, in accents thrilling with sadness, yet tenderest compassion, he said:

"My darling, why this distress? Caroline, you have no cause to fear me. It is true I found you alone, but I have taken every means to hide from me. I ought not to have sought you, yet I have but for one purpose, and only one. I wish to tell you that you need not hold me in dread. I here promise I will never intrude myself upon you. If you married against your inclination, I, poor child, you do not love me, you are free."

With a quick cry the wife dropped on her knees.

"Not love you!" she exclaimed, in pleading tones. "Oh, it was because I did love you—that I so highly respected your pure, noble nature, that I did."

"Caroline! then—oh, my darling—do you love me? My grief, after all, has no foundation."

His arms went about her; he would have raised her to his heart, but, distractedly, she pushed him away.

"No, no," she reiterated, "do not touch me until you have heard all. I have sworn that you shall not."

"Then, for heaven's love, Caroline, speak," he exclaimed, every nerve trembling. "Think how my soul hungers for you."

"Not more than mine for you," she answered. "I should not hesitate—only—I dread your opinion."

"Without foundation, Caroline, I am sure," he said.

"Without foundation, Caroline, I am sure," he said.

"Without foundation, Caroline, I am sure," he said.

"Without foundation, Caroline, I am sure," he said.

"Without foundation, Caroline, I am sure," he said.

"Without foundation, Caroline, I am sure," he said.

"Without foundation, Caroline, I am sure," he said.

"Without foundation, Caroline, I am sure," he said.

"Without foundation, Caroline, I am sure," he said.

"Without foundation, Caroline, I am sure," he said.

while my father stood silent by, with insulting words of regret and battery. He extolled my beauty, but protested his sorrow that his circumstances would not permit his wedding a penniless girl. Recalling in loathing indignation, the veil falling from my eyes, I fled to my father's side. Instantly his arm was placed protectingly around me.

"This lesson is a severe one to you, Caroline," he remarked, gravely, "but it is deserved, and will prove most beneficial. For that purpose I will not spare you. You shall be made fully aware of the character of the scoundrel to whom you would have entrusted not only your happiness but your honor."

"At that, Capt. Lascelles, with well-assumed indignation, broke forth; but sternly my father checked him:

"Silence, sir," he exclaimed. "I make no assertion without proof. I am going to the door, he called in his companion; I recognized in him an old, valued friend of my father's—a doctor, residing in the north of Scotland. At sight of him I perceived Capt. Lascelles turn ghastly pale."

"Macdonald," said my father, "tell this unhappy girl the truth."

"It is soon done," answered the other. "Your gentleman—indicating the officer—is already married. Four years ago he summoned me to his wife, she was incurably insane. I gave him a certificate to that effect. He removed her to a private asylum in Germany, where she now is, though he has reported her dead."

"My father let the villain free, without punishment or exposure, on the one condition, that he would keep the whole affair a secret."

"I returned home overwhelmed with shame and humiliation. I vowed never to marry, feeling myself unworthy the affection of a good man. Thus, I have lived, however, you were introduced to our family, and for the first time I knew really what love was. Your honest, pure-thoughted honorable nature made me almost worship, and I was so young. You loved me, and I loved you. I was delighted, but resolutely I told him I would not accept your attentions. My heart, however, pleaded on his side, and finally I consented, on his promising that you should be acquainted with that event in my past life. He expostulated at what he termed my folly, for you had so warmly expressed yourself upon the subject of feminine behavior and purity."

"This I was firm, and my father gave his word that he would inform you."

"The next day he told me that he had done so, that he had expressed deep sympathy for me, saying I was far too young to be bound, ending by expressing a wish that I would never mention the subject to you, or in your presence. I was delighted at such generosity, and when I met you the next time, though I did not speak, I tried to show my gratitude in my expression and manner. You proposed, I accepted you; you know the rest. Soon after your departure my father was seized with a mortal illness. I was his only nurse, and as the end drew near he confessed he had never told you about Capt. Lascelles. I was distracted; I thought, should you ever find out, with what bitter scorn you would regard me. I could not bear it and directly the grave had closed over my parent, I fled—fled almost a beggar, for my father had lived beyond his means, and his debts exceeded the value he had left. I tried for a situation as a governess, and found one here. Now you know all," she concluded meekly. "Was I right or wrong?"

"Wrong, my darling—oh, most wrong," ejaculated Capt. Selwyn, fervently. "Wrong to yourself—wrong to me. Caroline, did you think that I had a heart of stone, not to be touched by such high-souled sensitiveness—such repentance for a childish indiscretion—such a tender consideration of feelings? My love—my wife, may I now take you to my arms?"

She rose up before him, her eyes filled with a sweet, bashful, rapturous joy, were too timid yet to meet his. Words trembled on her lips; but only one was audible:

"Husband!"

And as it was whispered forth, his arms were about her; she was being pressed to his throbbing heart. Her head sunk on his shoulder, while his eager lips were rapturously kissing the fair cheek, warm with blushes, and no longer white and sad.

Late that night the happy wife, creeping into Maria's room, with radiant eyes and quivering lips, told her friend how she had been right, and she, Caroline, wrong, how he had blamed her foolish flight; how he loved her dearly, fondly still; and in speaking she revealed her husband's name.

A surprised look came into the Italian's eyes as she heard, and softly she whispered it beneath her breath, while her mind drifted back to Lucille and that book she kept among her favorites, on the title page of which was written "W. Selwyn."

A strange coincidence. How could it possibly be other?

Every man watches his balance in the bank, and his balance in the cash account pretty closely. There is another ledger account that the average man entirely forgets to his own undoing. It is his account with death. It is more important than a "profit and loss" account, for it is a "life and death" account. It is a man's duty to himself and family to look up this account once every day and see that the balance is on the right side.

It doesn't pay to let this account run on, and have it debited with indigestion, and then impure blood, and finally nervous exhaustion, or prostration, or deadly consumption. When these diseases come it means a debit balance with death brought down in the blood red ink of another ledger account, the ledger of foolish overwork and neglect of health. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the appetite keen, the digestion perfect, the liver active, the blood pure, and it is the great blood-maker, firm, healthy flesh, but does not produce corpulence or raise the weight above nature's normal.

It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption, bronchitis, throat and catarrhal affections. Honest dealers don't urge substitutes.

"My wife had suffered for seven years with dyspepsia, sick headache and constipation," writes Mr. Almo D. Janssen, of Danbury, Vermont, N. H. "We tried many doctors and many kinds of medicine but all were of no avail. We purchased six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which together with the pleasant pellets, has entirely restored my wife's health. We cannot say enough to you in thanks for these valuable medicines."

It may save a life. Send 31 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of customs and mail, only to World's Dispensary Med. Assoc. Inc., Buffalo, N. Y., for a paper-covered copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser; cloth binding 50 stamps. Contains 1008 pages, over 300 illustrations, a valuable medical library in one volume.

Serious Accident Near Moncton, N. B.—Sleeper Laid Across the Track—Train Derailed and Burned—Marvellous Escape of the Train Hands.

Moncton, N. B., Oct. 11.—A serious accident happened about 11 o'clock Sunday night at Hodgins siding, near Beaudun, north of here. Conductor Davidson's special was coming east and the headlight showed a sleeper across the tracks. Driver E. Hayward reversed his engine, but too late. The locomotive was derailed, and, with seven cars piled on top, fell over into a ditch.

An oil tank car then caught fire and exploded, setting the wreck in flames. Driver Hayward and firemen Geo. Smith were both in the wreck, and how they managed to crawl out is a mystery.

Brakeman James Harvey was also badly bruised by the shock. The whole wreck and contents were destroyed by fire.

The sleeper was evidently placed on the track for the purpose which was accomplished.

All the injured men belong to Moncton.

RAN INTO THE SHEDS. Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 11.—A Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway engine, hauling three loaded freight cars over the Hamilton and Dundas Electric Road to Dundas on Saturday left the rails when nearing its destination, and crashed into the Hamilton and Dundas Railway sheds. William Crove, fireman, was thrown from the engine car, and had one leg badly cut and bruised. The car shed was badly wrecked.

FATAL COLLISION. Omaha, Oct. 11.—A double-headed Premier, Elkhorn and Missouri Valley freight train ran into the rear end of an Omaha passenger train in the yards on Saturday. The last car of the passenger train was the dining car, "Delmonico." It was split almost in two lengthwise.

Killed—Harry Jones, waiter, of Chicago. Fatally wounded—Otto Homedale, conductor dining car, scalded and injured about the body; lives at Boone, Iowa.

Seven were seriously injured.

In Galt, on Saturday morning, Miss Barbara Simpson was found dead in her bed at the residence of Mr. Adam Davidson. She had been suffering from heart disease.

The barn of Frank House, on lot 12, con. 5, West Oxford, near Peables, was destroyed by fire on Saturday afternoon. The building and contents were a total loss. Loss about $1,000.

About 12 o'clock Saturday night Mr. McLeod, Seagram's representative at San Francisco, was struck in the head with a club at Galt, and robbed of his gold watch and chain and about $750 in cash.

Stratford's oldest and earliest settler passed away in the person of John A. McCarthy, sen., at the ripe age of 87 years and 2 months. He was Stratford's chief of police for a considerable period, being still on the roll of the force up to the time of his death.

A pleasant event took place on Saturday, the 8th inst., at Mr. John Penhale's residence in the township of Yarmouth, when his daughter, Miss Mary Ann Penhale, was united in marriage to Mr. Charles Andrew Brower, M. P. P. for East Elgin.

On Sunday evening, shortly after church-time, the chimney of Dr. Secord's fine residence in Kincardine was observed to be on fire. The fire brigade was quickly on the scene, and succeeded in putting out the blaze, but not before serious damage had been done.

The Ott tannery, of Brantford, was completely wiped out by fire on Sunday morning. The loss will be in the neighborhood of $4,000 or $5,000. The building was owned by the city, and is insured for $3,000, while Messrs. Ott have a policy of $1,000 on the contents. Cause of fire unknown.

A special appeal was made to the congregation of the King Street Methodist Church, Ingersoll, on Sunday, for $300 to apply on the debt of the church, and they responded in a rousing manner by placing $337 47 on the plates. Last year the debt was reduced by about $600, and the board expect to do that much or more this year.

Woman's Way.

"I'll just rest a minute, and that pain will pass away."

Many a self-sacrificing woman has said this, only to find the pain come back again with greater force. Most of these pains and spells of illness come from the stomach, and are caused by indigestion or some of its kindred ills. Between these ills and the many worries and cares of a household woman becomes old before her time. Take a teaspoonful of

Outlived Consumption

Many people outlive consumption. They have it all their lives, but keep it in check by the use of Shiloh's Consumption Cure and finally die of some other disease or of old age. Jeremiah Day, LL.D., formerly president of Yale College, lived to be nearly one hundred years old, notwithstanding the fact that he suffered several years in his youth from consumption. It is not the mere fact that the lungs are touched by consumption that causes death, it is the amount of lung-tissue that becomes diseased and disorganized beyond repair that is of serious import. Personal care and the administration of Shiloh's Cure according to directions will overcome every case of tubercular affection when there remains enough tissue to make a foundation. If the forces of life are reinforced before it is too late the process of decay will be conquered and the patient will get well. In other words consumption is cured. Fifty years of uniform success have made Shiloh's Cure the standard remedy for consumption in every form. J. H. Caldwell, of Malta, Idaho, writes as follows to the S. C. Wells Co., of Le Roy, N. Y. "I have used Shiloh's Consumption Cure many different times, and always received great benefit from it. I believe it saved my life in a case of congestion of the lungs, and kept me from an attack of consumption, as many people said I had it."

Shiloh's Consumption Cure is sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee that your money will be refunded in case of failure. 25c, 50c, and $1 a bottle in United States and Canada. In England 1s. 2d., 2s. 3d., and 4s. 6d.
