FARMER'S HEAD CRUSHED SON UNDER SUSPICION

Elijah Fenton, of Stony Creek May Have Been Victim of Fog Play - Son Arrested as Fugrant.

HAMILTON, April 27.—(Special).—The neighborhood of Stony Creek, a village about six miles from this city, was started by the finding of the dead body of Elijah Fenton, a well-known and wealthy farmer, and the detention of his son, Thomas, by the county police. The remains of the elder Fenton were discovered near his barn yesterday afternoon, the head having been apparently, battered in, death being due to a fractured skull.

The body had been lying where it was found for several hours and death appears to have been instantaneous. Coroner Thompson conferred with Crown Attorney Washington and early this morning Chief Twiss of the county police went out to the scene and took Thomas Fenton into custody. He was brought before Magistrate Lawson at Dundas, charged with vagrancy, and remained a week. The most important announcement made to-night was that the overall of the young man, and on which stains were noticed, will be examined to ascertain if they are blood stains. The autopsy on the body was asperformed this afternoon by Dr. Edgar in Hamilton. The funeral has been set for Friday at 2 p.m., and the inquest is set for the same day.

The deceased was known to be worth about $40,000. He had suffered a great deal of late from a disease which had a number of fainting spells. His son, David, was a partner in the business. The deceased was a near friend of the deceased. On Monday night Elijah came over to my house and had a talk with me. He told me that he must refuse to report a word of what he had seen to me now. It will come out soon enough, and I don't want to be mixed up with any of them now.

Tom went away from his father's home on Saturday night, and did not come home till late Monday night. The son was at the Court House Hotel, Hamilton, when the news of the death of his father came in, and he went out home at once. At first he declined to go out to see his father's body. He said that his father must have been hit over the head by a stone and thrown as he lay. He carried a lot of money in his pockets.

It is understood that the son went out to the barn on Saturday night, a short while after his father. The jurors say there are marks of bloody fingers on the barn door, and that the head man was wearing a hat with a four-cornered instrument. Jacob Alter and J. Sinksfeld have been summoned to appear before the jury in connection with the recent hearing of a gambling case. Addressing the jury, the auxiliary to-night, Bishop DuMoulin said, the spirit of the people should wake up. He complained of the coldness of the reception given to the kind of general as he passed thru the streets last Friday. Addresses were also given by Canon Abbott and Bishop Sweeney of Toronto. The latter said the kind of women needed in auxiliaries were workers.

A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Patrick's Church this morning at ten o'clock, when Rev. J. H. Coty united Henry Baby, Montreal, and Miss Frances Jeanette Baby, 475 East Main street. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Madeline Baby, and the groom's brother, Arthur Baby, Montreal, was best man. Canon Sweeney, Dr. Ralph Windsor, and Bert Murphy, Hamilton.

Woman's Auxiliary Meeting. The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the diocese of Niagara was opened in Christ Church Cathedral this morning. Bishop DuMoulin presided at the opening ceremonies and addressed the delegates. They will be in session for two days.

George Roach, proprietor of the American Hotel was this morning fined in all $110 by Magistrate Jett for selling liquor after hours and obstructing the police on April 20. He will appeal.

Lizzie Corcoran has elected to be tried by a jury and will come up in June.

MANITOBA'S FIGHT FOR FULL CONTROL OF LANDS

Enlargement of Boundaries and Financial Terms Are Discussed in Commons.

OTTAWA, April 27.—(Special).—The Manitoba boundary question came up in the commons to-day, as an amendment to the motion to go into supply, moved by Alexander Haggart of Winnipeg. The amendment recited various correspondence and resolutions and concluded: "That this house affirms that the Province of Manitoba is entitled to equality of treatment with either the said Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan to the west, or with the said Provinces of Ontario and Quebec to the east, and regrets that the government of the Dominion did not agree to give to Manitoba such equality of treatment."

The attitude of Manitoba was: "Give us the same terms as Alberta and Saskatchewan. If you cannot do that, give us nothing but the province, and Quebec. Give us the land, the timber and the natural resources. If you cannot do that, don't say that you will give us nothing but the province, but give us the land, the timber, and the natural resources. If you cannot do that, don't say that you will give us nothing but the province, but give us the land, the timber, and the natural resources. If you cannot do that, don't say that you will give us nothing but the province, but give us the land, the timber, and the natural resources."

The debate was closed by R. L. Borden, who took exception to the premier's statement that an amendment to the motion to go into supply could not be accepted by the government. "As far as I am concerned," he said, "I can see no reason why the public lands of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba should not be dealt with by their respective legislatures."

SHACKLETON'S LECTURE THRILLED AND MISSED

Also It Started Promptly at 8 o'Clock, and There Were Many Who Missed Opening Remarks.

Sir Ernest Shackleton spoke for exactly an hour and a half last night in Massey Hall, to what was probably the largest audience ever assembled to hear a lecturer in Toronto. His easy style and bright humor enchanted his hearers, and the laughter and applause testified to his popularity. The master of one of the great chivalric wanderers who have made empires of ice at the same time. The possession of the North Pole, he explains his success in leading his men thru such extraordinary hardships, and the police and balance of character which enabled him to handle, with the critical exactitude necessary, to save their lives when it was imperative to stop on the southward march, leaving a trail of blood for 97 miles from the pole. The applause which greeted the picture commemorating this incident indicates the pride which Canadians take in their fellow-imperialist.

Lieut. Shackleton is a sturdy built man of 5 feet 7 inches, weighing 150, and looking good. Younger than 36, in spite of the hardships he has endured. He speaks with a clear voice and cultured untraceable accent which has not been injured by Cambridge or Oxford or any other centre, but might be from Edinburgh or Dublin or the Middle Temple of Boston. There was a suspicion of drawl about some of the sentences which recalled the tradition of Artemus Ward and Mark Twain, and added largely to the droll effect. This trait appeared as soon as he began to tell about the expedition and how it "labored under severe financial stringencies." That does not look like a humorous sentence till you hear Shackleton's intonation.

Too Many Cooks. He pointed out on the map the various achievements of earlier explorers, ending with Captain Joseph Cook, 1874. Then as a drawing afterthought, "No relation" Everybody guffawed with delight. The only thing approaching them were those shown by Fliala last November. Shackleton's pictures are wonderful. The pictures of the penguins, especially of the emperor species, were especially good. The whole routine of the toilsome journey was clearly shown, and much of the danger attending it illustrated. Sir Ernest, who only talk about the party, had his feet frozen and a great toe amputated. He did not lose it, said the lecturer, as he keeps it.

Misled Some of It. People kept coming in for half an hour after the lecture began, after the Toronto world had closed. A middle Mont Erebus was thrown on the scene a lady marched up the aisle with a recent hat. The shadow was obvious on the ground. He drew "Somebody's got into the crater." The audience just howled. The scanty life of the regions traveled over with the expedition, and the life found in the ice. On a frozen flog were found minute rotifers. After being thawed out from 50 below and raised to 20 above they were already lively.
