RECOGNITION BY FRANCE IS HOPE

Russia Looks for Political Advantages Following Reconciliation.

Moscow, Sept. 23.—(By mail to United Press)—That the French government will follow in the footsteps of Britain and grant de jure recognition to the Soviet government before the end of this year—and possibly within a few weeks—is the confident belief of high official circles here.

Premier Herriot, it is authoritatively said, recently told the Russian representative, Rakovsky, that France is prepared to recognize the Soviet regime even before discussing the demands of French creditors for payment of the Czar's debts and for compensation for French losses through the nationalization of property in Russia.

Since the French premier made these promises, however, certain fundamental changes have occurred in the international political situation which may postpone the granting of French recognition to the Soviet Republic and even modify the character of that recognition.

Diplomacy is notoriously remote from philanthropy, and the French government does not differ from other governments in its determination to drive the most advantageous bargain possible with Russia.

Depends on England. The strength of Russia's hand in its diplomatic tilt with France depends largely upon the fate of the new Anglo-Russian treaty in the British parliament. Should parliament ratify the treaty, the Soviet government's reinforced position in Britain will also strengthen its hand in the impending negotiations with France.

Should parliament reject the treaty and perhaps bring about a general election in Britain, the Soviet government's grasp upon French recognition may slip and, for the time being, the French may raise their price for recognition. There is excellent reason for believing that Premier Herriot wishes to be sure of the British parliament's verdict on the Anglo-Russian agreement before reversing France's intransigent policy toward the Soviet republic.

Premier Herriot may also await the outcome of the latest upheaval in China, which is directed against the rising influence of the Chinese national revolutionary movement and against Russia's increased prestige in China. If Russia is obliged to relinquish its newly-acquired foothold in China, the French position in the forthcoming negotiations with Soviet Russia would again be more firmly entrenched.

The Soviet government frankly admits that it hopes to derive political advantages of the first magnitude from its recognition with France. Britain, it is said, is able to offer Soviet Russia credits and trading opportunities. The value of these benefits is not underestimated in Moscow.

After Political Gains. But France, it is pointed out, is in a position to grant Russia political, as well as economic gains. Moreover, the political bait that France can dangle before Russia's eyes is undeniably tempting. A revision of France's ill-concealed protectorate over Poland and the Baltic states—Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia—would relieve the Soviet republic of the most worrisome element on its western frontiers. Finally, France's traditional support of Rumania in the volcanic Bessarabian dispute might conceivably be relaxed. Bessarabia, whose annexation by Rumania is regarded as an eternal challenge to Soviet Russia, might thus drift from the Rumanian fold. These may be regarded as the vital undercurrents in the impending Franco-Russian negotiations. It is not too much to say that the outcome of those negotiations may lead to a shift of the whole political constellation in Europe.

A barn belonging to B. Mooney & Sons, on "Paddy's Flats," Fairville, was destroyed by fire early this evening. The blaze lit up the sky. The loss is placed at $600, with partial insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown, as the barn is not occupied. The Fairville fire department did good work in preventing the sparks from catching on houses near by.
