KEY CANUCK FOR THE SENATE

pointment of a Woman Urged Upon Premier.

on Mr. Meighen's Troubles Added to by Pressure for Appointment of Mrs. Murphy—Vacancies Not Many, Applicants Legion.

(Special to The Times)
Ottawa, Aug. 25.—The first woman to be appointed to the Senate by Mr. Meighen may be Mrs. Emily Murphy, police magistrate in Edmonton, Alta., for women and children of whom she is known widely to the public for writing many original and trenchant books under the pseudonym Janet Canuck. If she is appointed, she will not be for lack of whole-hearted support by organizations of women in Canada. Last evening Mrs. Nellie McLaughlin, author of "Sowing Seeds in the Sun" and other books, one of the most prominent speakers in the movement of women in the Senate, called on Premier Meighen to appoint her. She was accompanied by Madame Marchand, president of the Federation of French-Canadian Women, and vice-president of the local Council of Women in Ottawa.

Both women spoke warmly of Mrs. Murphy and the universal esteem felt for her by women all over Canada. Premier Meighen has a difficult task to perform in connection with this proposal. Women now have the vote. They are in the provincial legislature and undoubtedly there will be one or two in the next federal house. The proposal is that Premier Meighen should take time by the forelock and show his sympathy with woman's cause and woman's ambitions by this appointment. So far, so good.

But, on the other hand, it is not difficult for him to visualize the thrill of horror which would run through the minds of Tories who form a good part of the personnel of this last ark of refuge for patronage and sanctuary for the defenders of privilege. Some of the senators can scarcely endure Senator Gideon Robertson because he always takes up the cudgels for organized labor and is a union man himself. There are some there who speak for liberty and the common weal as occasion demands, but a woman is anathema to the Tories. Perish the thought. It would be the beginning of the end. The senate might even be reformed to measurable extent, they fear, and the debates become interesting.

There are other difficulties for Premier Meighen. There are parliamentary followers of Mr. Meighen who failed to bolt when others did and who would see themselves stranded if an appointment like this were made. The premier would be accused of rewarding the past by paying up for votes rendered in the past. But there are people to tell the premier it would be good politics to appoint Mrs. Murphy, and Mrs. McClung says that Janet Canuck would raise an authentic voice for progressive measures that came before the senate. "As long as the senate is in existence we want the best people we can get for it," said Mrs. McClung.

Clung, "and nobody would better represent the women of Canada than Mrs. Murphy."

A Canadian Press despatch says: "Premier Meighen will consider the proposal. It should be remembered, however, that senatorial vacancies are not numerous and that applicants for them are legion."

HEARING STARTED IN NEGUAC MURDER

The preliminary hearing in the case of Millett S. Stewart, charged with shooting and killing James Ross of Tabusine at Neguac on the night of August 2, was begun in the police court at New Brunswick yesterday. George McDade of Chatham appeared for the defence, and A. A. Davidson for the prosecution. At the morning session Dr. W. S. Leggett of Chatham was the only witness. He told of viewing the body where it was found and the condition when found. He said that Ross had probably been dead twelve hours. There were two rough torn wounds on the neck. The examination of Dr. Leggett was continued at the afternoon session by Mr. McDade and Mr. Davidson, seeking to find out from what direction the missile had come. The hearing is being continued today.

W. Pile and A. B. Logan and a good medal was presented Charles Ledford for his long service and good work for the Sons of England as secretary of the lodge.

The singing of J. Simpson was heartily enjoyed and R. Coupe proved a pleasing accompanist. Thanks were expressed to all those who participated in the programme which was brought to a close with the singing of the national anthem.

DYING KIDNIE FEARS "MOM" MAY WORRY

Three-year-old Youngster's Last Thought Is For Sick Mother.

"Don't tell Mom!" Although his skull had been crushed by the fall of a heavy gate, and his little body was bruised and abraded, the first thoughts of Harold Flynn, three and a half years old, were for his mother, whom he knew to be ill.

Harold and a group of boys, among whom were his two brothers, were playing at a great iron gate in Dewitt Clinton Park, New York, when the gate fell on the boy. The other boys tugged vainly to lift the gate from Harold, and then screamed for help. Policemen and men from numerous automobiles hastened to lift the gate from the boy. All the way to the Roosevelt Hospital the little fellow kept pleading with his rescuers, "Don't tell Mom; it would worry her."

He lapsed into unconsciousness just before arriving at the hospital and died while physicians were working to restore him.

GLAD TO HAVE IT, SAYS MARY SMITH

Does Not Mind Appendicitis After Having Broken Neck and Lived.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Most persons undoubtedly would consider appendicitis and the concomitant surgical operation "hard luck," but here is one woman who is "glad to have it"—Mrs. Mary Smith, twenty-one years old, 4660 Winthrop avenue, because Mrs. Smith is one of the few persons in the world who have had a broken neck and have lived to have appendicitis or anything else for that matter—afterward.

The young woman, her head and shoulders in a plaster cast, still convalescing from the broken neck, says she is here—meaning alive—because of the skill of Dr. Lloyd A. Burrows. "I went swimming on July 12," said Mrs. Smith. "I swam under water and struck with my head one of those iron posts, on which the life line is fastened, and felt a sharp pain in my neck."

"I thought at first it was spinal meningitis," says Dr. Burrows. "During that first thirty-six hours I thought several times Mrs. Smith was dead. Once for an hour, there was no heart action and no respiration. Artificial respiration finally brought her back."

Natural Question.

"I remember," said grandma reminiscently, "that when I was a girl we used to make our bread with soda."

"And did you use ice cream soda when you make cake?" asked her little granddaughter.
