KLIM

Delicious Cakes

When the recipe includes milk, try KLIM—pure separated milk. For cakes, pies, and all cooked dishes, KLIM gives that delicious genuine milk flavor.

KLIM is the food part of pure pasteurized separated milk dried into powder form. In the drying process, only the water is removed from the liquid separated milk. This you replace when making liquid milk.

KLIM will not sour nor spoil and remains fresh and sweet until the last particle is used. One pound makes four quarts of liquid.

One great advantage in using KLIM is that you spoon the dry powder out of the tin and dissolve it in water by briskly whipping for a moment just whenever you need it, for cooking, baking, tea, coffee, or cocoa, etc.

Keep an ample supply on hand and you will find it as convenient and economical to use, and the flavor so satisfying, that you will use KLIM in preference.

Your grocer has KLIM in the blue-and-white striped half pound, pound, and ten pound tins.

Early Fall Millinery Commands the Attention of Good Dressers

THE FABRIC HAT, fashioned of Duvetyn or Taffeta, is proving a favorite for wear between seasons. The shapes are unusual and interesting and are enlivened with touches of embroidery or other distinctive decorations.

VELOUR FELT HATS are unsurpassed for practical wear. After weeks of steady use they still hold to their original shape and look well.

SEMI-READY VELVET HATS are also featured among the early fall arrivals.
