BOOK THAT HELPS TO MAKE CANADIANS

Some of the interesting facts contained in Alfred Fitzpatrick's Handbook for Canadians.

We have several times taken pleasure in heartily commending the work of Alfred Fitzpatrick, and his associates, among the lumbermen, the men engaged in railway construction and other workers who toil far from the centres of civilization says a writer in the Toronto Mail and Empire. "These devoted men are qualified teachers, but through the day they are engaged at the same work as ordinary laborers and at night gather them in the bunkhouse and try to provide them with the education that otherwise they would go without. A great assistance to them will be a book recently prepared by Mr. Fitzpatrick entitled, "Handbook for New Canadians." This book is full of valuable hints for the instructors, and indeed one would require little other equipment except enthusiasm for the work to qualify as a teacher. Its great importance lies in the fact that it is intended to give the adult foreign-born a general knowledge of the English language and such information about Canada and its customs as will prevent him from being the victim of swindlers and demagogues.

The immigrant.

In days like these when Bolshevism is recognized as a menace to every cherished institution in every civilized country, it would be difficult to exaggerate the importance of such influence as this book is calculated to exert. In his introduction, Mr. Fitzpatrick says: "The immigrant finds himself in the midst of new conditions. He lacks the language, and everything combines to make him the prey of the unscrupulous. Even the better informed of his own race already to take advantage of him. Particularly does this apply to the masses of unskilled laborers. The influx of non-English-speaking peoples into Canada is very large in proportion to the population. We allow newcomers to live in settlements on the prairies, or what is worse, to form colonies in large urban and industrial centres. Their racial characteristics are continued and encouraged by native societies and leagues, forming unassimilated groups which are a menace to Canadian unity. The tendency is for the foreign-born to make little effort for naturalization. We have a right to demand that every man who comes to Canada become a citizen of this country."

Do Not Become Citizens.

The immigration from 1897 to 1914 amounted to something more than 2,000,000.

000, that from the United States and the United Kingdom being about equal with more than a million each. The non-English speaking immigration in that period was more than 800,000 and Mr. Fitzpatrick cites official figures to prove his assertion that the foreigner, as a rule, shows little interest in becoming a Canadian citizen. Of the adult males in 1911, only the Germans and the French showed as many naturalized citizens as un-naturalized. Of over 24,000 Russians only four thousand odd had become citizens, and of more than 46,000 Russians only 18,000 had become British subjects. There are two ways of remedying this condition, one by a Dominion law obliging every person who has lived in Canada for a certain length of time to take out his naturalization papers and the other is by teaching the immigrant the advantages that would accrue to him. Mr. Fitzpatrick's book makes it easy for the instructors to explain our system of Government, and to stir the ambition of every immigrant to become a citizen of this great Dominion.

Duty of the Government.

The author says there is need for a Dominion-wide system of educating the alien in Canada for citizenship. As matters now stand the requirements for obtaining naturalization are outlined, but little effort is made for carrying them out. "We say an alien must have a knowledge of English or French, as the case may be, but no provision is made to help him acquire that knowledge. The Dominion Government should set the standards and the text books, and then provide a way for adult aliens to take two oral or written examinations at a nominal fee some time during the five years required for naturalization. The final examination should test the applicant's knowledge of Canada in general. Citizenship should be granted only to those who have complied with the requirements and have shown themselves during the five years' residence to be worthy of the franchise. Eligibility might be based upon qualifications of intelligence, knowledge of Canada and personal character. Immigration officials, teachers, Frontier College instructors, Y. M. C. A. and K. of C. secretaries, the
