Further Particulars of Tragedy In Which Two Died

GLOVER CLEARING LAND

Was in His Right Under Law as He Was Carrying Out Provisions of the Settlement Act for Richards Manufacturing Co.

In addition to particulars already published here, the Campbellton Graphic has the following on the murder of Elvin Annett, a lumber foreman, the shooting and wounding of John Glover, a lumber jobber, and the suicide of the murderer, Peter Rioux in the woods near Anderson in Restigouche county, on the intercolonial Railway:—

Sydney Burns, a native of Gaspe, a cook, tells the following story:
After the other men had left the camp which was before daylight he saw Peter Rioux leave his camp which was only about six feet from the lumbermen's camp. He had his rifle with him and went in the direction taken by Annett. Some time later he saw Rioux return but without his rifle, enter the camp, and leave again with a small pack or satchel on his back. He went into the woods in the opposite direction this time and a few minutes later he thought he heard a shot. Soon after, Arthur Patterson came into camp and told him Glover was shot. He went with him and the others and carried the wounded man to camp, and later to Anderson.

The Shooting of Glover

Arthur Patterson, Glover, Joseph Annett, and Anthony Annett, and Edwin Campbell left the camp before daylight and went to the scene of their operations on the Rioux grant. They were engaged skidding up logs. They had been working some little time when they were startled by the report of a gun. Glover, who was upon a log with an axe trimming off the limbs and was thus in a stooping position, fell over among the brush in a little hollow under the log, and a moment or so later called for help. Patterson who looked round in the direction of the sound, saw the smoke of the rifle shot.
Annett and Campbell went to Glover's assistance, while Patterson was hurried off for the assistance of the cook. This was about 7.30 in the morning. Together they carried the injured man to the camp which was close by. There they made an examination of the wound and bound it up as well as they could. Glover was conscious all the time and talked with the men. They then made a stretcher of blankets, rolled Glover up warmly and started for Anderson, which was about two miles distant, over a road in which the men with their burdens frequently went to their knees in mud.

Arriving in Anderson, Glover was made as comfortable as possible until the arrival of the express from Campbellton. On this train he was taken to St. Leonard's, but as Glover wished to be taken back to Campbellton a doctor dressed his wounds on the train. Arthur Patterson stayed with the injured man until relieved by Dr. Lunan at Richards.

These two men both say that they saw Rioux talking with Annett and Glover several times recently and understood that he had threatened to shoot if they cut the lumber on his lot, but he was not taken seriously. There had never been any very angry words.

Glover Threw by Night

The Graphic gives an account of the finding of the body of Rioux, who had ended his life with his rifle, and says:—
"The primary cause of the murder was undoubtedly the fact that Glover was cutting lumber and trespassing on the lot of 100 acres which Rioux had made application for and had been approved by notice published in the Royal Gazette, dated November 6."

"According to an act passed in 1875 any British subject over eighteen years of age who owns no other property in the province can apply for a grant to 100 acres for settlement purposes only, and upon approval a permit is issued, which calls for certain obligations which include the clearing of an area of three acres and the planting of a certain number of trees. By this act, if the lot so granted is leased to a third party, the leasee of said limits has until the next August 1st to cut off the lumber on this granted land."
"In this present case the lessee of the timber limits were the Richards Manufacturing Company and they had given the ground in the vicinity including the Rioux lot to the jobber, John B. Glover with instructions to cut over the Rioux lot at once. The men were following these instructions when shot."

TO HELP FIND THE DROWNED

Murky Depths of Chicago River Are To Be Illuminated

The submarine light has long been a practical reality, but its use as a means to help the police in their ordinary routine has been left to the Chicago Police Department. The submarine light will be part of the equipment of a new motor boat that was recently launched on the Chicago River, and will be used to illuminate the river bottom at depths ranging from 20 to 30 feet.
This light is of special value in Chicago because of the number of accidents that occur in the Chicago River, where the water is very dirty. The boat which carries the light is 38 feet long and 10 feet beam, and is supplied with a 40-horsepower four cylinder motor capable of driving it at a speed of fifteen miles an hour.
Two police crews of four men each working on twelve hour shifts will man the little motor craft. Day and night they will patrol forty-seven miles of river and twenty-seven miles of lake frontage.
The boat is not only intended to facilitate the recovery of dead bodies; it is equipped for rescue and resuscitation work as well. In the little cabin is a hospital cot which can be drawn out from a slide in the stern. Then the seats are folded back and there is ample room to work over an exhausted person. A first aid set is in a cabinet at one side of the cot.

FISH THAT FELL UPWARD

Life Impossible Only at Depth for Which Fish Are Designed

According to Sir John Murray, one of the greatest authorities on oceanography, the bottom of the sea is a desert of pitch black darkness, penetrating cold and total silence.
Worms, sea puddings and coral polyps sluggishly crawl or sway in the almost currentless depths, and only two species of fish, both of them small, with much head and little body, have been found deeper than a mile and a quarter down.
The range of fishes in the sea is as though it were divided into layers, one above the other, and no fish can live above or below his layer.
Thus many of the deeper fish—three quarters of a mile below the surface—have been found floating at the top; they had swallowed a fish as large or larger than themselves and its buoyancy had lifted them out of the strata to which they were accustomed.
The physiology of a bottom fish is almost impossible to know, because they are built to resist a tremendous pressure of water, and when they are brought to the surface in a net—sometimes the fish has believe it, but your mother says it is true. He paused to wipe a tear away. "What is true?" breathed his beautiful daughter, eyes distended. "That you're engaged to five young men at the same time," whispered her parent. Then the beautiful maiden broke into merry laughter, and patted her father's shoulder playfully and joyously. "You dear old dad! Don't worry. They're footballers, every one, and I'm to marry the survivor at the end of the season—if there is a survivor."
