OUR CONEY ISLAND

The people of Public Landing enjoyed a sacred concert yesterday afternoon. A group of members of St. Mary's Band were there and had their instruments, and played a fine programme. There was an unusually large number of motor boats at the Landing, and more people than usual at the cottages and farm houses. At the pavilion on Saturday evening more than sixty young people enjoyed the dancing programme, while a hundred or more looked on.

"We are the Coney Island of the St. John River," said one of the summer residents, coming down on the Oconee this morning.

NEW PITCHER AND NEW OUTFELDER

ARRIVED TODAY

More Coming--Shake Up of the Greeks--A Statement by the Club Owners

The shake-up of the Marathons is on a pitcher named Donchan and an outfielder named Lee, arrived from the States at noon today and one or both will probably be in the game with Bangor this afternoon. Pitcher Conley says a Boston telegram, from Manager Leonard, will arrive here tomorrow from Lynn. Socialists is here to umpire.

It was felt by the owners of the team that the Marathons would have won Saturday's contest had advice been regarded at the critical time in that eighth inning, to take out York and Ramsay. Ramsay and York were released on Saturday.

The Bangor baseball team arrived in the city at noon today for games with the Marathons today and tomorrow. Bangor has been playing good ball of late.

The owners of the Marathon Baseball Club make the following statement today.

When Mr. Leonard, who is manager of the team, released one of the pitchers in Bangor, it was with the understanding that he was to have one of the best pitchers there to replace him. A pitcher by the name of Graham was to have arrived two weeks ago to join the Marathons. When he did not arrive, Mr. Leonard thought it would strengthen his team by taking on York as an outfielder as he was highly recommended to him.

The following telegrams will show the public that the owners of the Marathon Club have acted in good faith in trying to secure the best pitcher and players available. Manager Leonard wired Woodcock a reliable pitcher, on the 8th, and received the following reply on the 9th from him: "Will report, send transportation." Signed H. L. Woodcock. Transportation was immediately sent on the 11th and after waiting for two days, they instructed the I. C. R. to find out if Woodcock had left Sydney. They reported that he had, and after waiting another day, on Friday afternoon, the following telegram was received: "Holding me here; impossible to go." Signed H. L. Woodcock.

"Wires were finally sent out to different parts of the States in an endeavor to get a good pitcher. After Saturday's game the management sent Mr. Leonard to the States to personally secure not only a pitcher but an outfielder and he is expected to bring to the city the best men available. Wires were sent out to a player named Henderson of Haverhill, Mass., who accepted their offer and transportation, but did not arrive. He will be personally looked over by Mr. Leonard in Boston today, and if not good enough will not come here. Conley, from Lynn, has been secured and will report today.

"Much difficulty has been experienced regarding umpires. It was arranged between Fredericton and St. John that Jas. Hassett should be secured by the league for the season. This gentleman is one of the big league umpires. The first offer made by the clubs was rejected and a second offer was made, and he wired on August 14 from Portland, Me., accepting offer and would go tonight, meaning that he would be in St. John to umpire the two games Friday and Saturday. The clubs, rather than put in two of their players, secured the services of Daniel Connelly, for which they paid a handsome figure for the two games.

OCCONEE GOES ASHORE BROADSIDE ON; TOWED OFF BY THE DREAM

Captain, to Oblige Belyea's Point Passengers, Went in Too Close -- A Little Delay But no Damage

"This is the first time I ever was on a boat that went ashore," said a little girl on the steamer Oconee at Belyea's Point this morning. "I like it, too," she added as an afterthought.

The rest of the passengers, nearly 200 of them, were not so sure that they liked it until they were sure of speedy relief, which happily came.

The anxiety of the captain of the Oconee to be holding was the cause of the trouble. A boatload of people at Belyea's Point, who should have been out on the street, had yet left the shore when the Oconee came along. The captain ran in too close to the shore to pick them up, and the steamer grounded broadside on, before he got clear of the point.

There was a momentary murmur of dismay when the passengers discovered their predicament. Four or five went ashore and walked to Lingley to catch the train. A dozen more engaged a motor boat on the spot and set out for Westfield. The others, numbering 150 or more, decided to stay and help the captain.

Their efforts did not produce great results but such as they were. One on the lower deck put out an oar and pushed, being loudly encouraged by the passengers on the upper decks. Another slipped into the wheel house and tooted the whistle. Another rang a bell. As many as possible, perceiving that a motor boat was about to attempt to pull the vessel off by the bow, rushed to the bow themselves to lighten the stern. When the motor boat failed to move her by the bow, and took a line at the stern, they rushed aft. When the anchor was taken out and cast in an effort to warp her off, there were encouraging shouts of "Great work," "at a boy's" and others of a stimulating character, but neither the motor boat nor the anchor had any moving power.

John Frodsham, on the Dixie, and some other fortunate passengers passing by were loudly cheered, and presently the good yacht Dream was perceived hull down on the horizon in the direction of Carter's Point, where she had lain all night.

The captain of the Oconee rushed into the wheelhouse and got the signal of distress. The Dream replied, and at the same time a smaller yacht that had lain all night at Water's Landing pointed her nose toward Belyea's. Relief was at hand.

The Dream took a line, and in a twinkling the Oconee was once more in deep water. But she was compelled to lay to until three boatloads of passengers who had gone ashore to lighten her were brought on board again.

Later, in Grand Bay, she encountered a fog so dense that the shore was invisible, and she sounded her whistle until Boat's Head jammed up and the weather cleared again. While yet in the midst of the fog she passed the D. J. Purdy, which was going up, and the fog was so dense that the latter sensed only a vague and shadowy mass as she swept by. The Oconee arrived at Indiantown only half an hour late.

LEAVES $150 FOR ALTAR OF CHURCH OF ASSUMPTION

In the probate court today the will of Mrs. Catherine C. Harrigan was proved. She gives to her niece, Julia Clifford, widow of New York, $500; to Rev. J. J. O'Donnell for the altar of the Church of the Assumption, Carleton, $150. The rest of her estate she gives to her husband, Michael Harrigan, and she nominates him as executor. He was sworn in as such. There is no real estate personally $1,500. Dr. Silas Alward, K. C., is proctor.

The will of Mrs. Elvriet T. Rice, wife of Alexander Rice of St. John, was proved. After making provision for her funeral expenses and the erection of a suitable grave for her memory, she gives to her sister, Emma Foshay, $400; to her sister, Louisa Gould, $200; to her brother, Joseph Dykeman Hatfield, $100; to her stepdaughter, Alida Rice, $200; to her niece, Helen Gould, $50; to her niece, Florence Gould, $50; and after making bequests of specific personal articles to various friends, she gives the rest of her estate to her husband, whom she nominates as executor and who is sworn in as such.

There is no real estate, personal estate $2,100. Aron A. Wilson, K. C., is proctor.

THE POLICE COURT

"And how does it happen that you're back so soon again?" said Magistrate Ritchie to a man named Mayby, who was allowed to go a few days ago after being fined on a drunkenness charge. "Well, it's this way, Your honor," he answered. "When I got over that last time of mine I was feeling pretty bad, and a friend of mine told me to take a glass of brandy with a taste of peppermint in it. I tried it and it did me so much good that I kept on trying it till I finally found myself here." He was fined two months and the suspended penalty of two months was added on Saturday. Albert Lauckner and Andrew Irvine were arrested on the Suspension Bridge on Sunday on drunkenness charge. The magistrate fined them in court this morning but allowed them to have another chance by letting the penalty stand.

John Peterson, who, when arrested on Saturday, said that he had been robbed in a Mill street bar, pleaded not guilty to a charge of being drunk. He was remanded.

A man who was found drunk in the I. C. R. yard yesterday was remanded. The case against Ed. Earle, arrested on Saturday night on charge of street walking, was given a brief hearing in the police court this morning. Policemen Briggs and Harry Bridgeton gave testimony and were cross-examined by Ed. Earle. Logan on behalf of the defendant. The case was then stood over till 2.30 this afternoon.
