If we consider how much the comfort, or the uneasiness of all around us, depends upon the state of our own temper, we should surely endeavour to render it sweet and accomodating.

When young persons afflicted with illness, how greatly do they endear themselves to all about them, by being tractable, considerate, gentle, and grateful! but how painful it is, to see them peevish, self-willed, and unthankful! How much do the former qualities lessen the affliction! and the latter increase it! Deceit discovers a little mind.
