A Cargo of Live Lobsters.

(New York Herald, 80th ) The schooner Thomas C. Rackett, arrived from Port Latour, N. S., yesterday with a cargo of 7,000 live lobsters, after having been six days on her way here. Captain Rackett, the schooner's master, said that this was the first cargo of the kind that had been shipped from such a distance and that that parfare nest cargo of the kind that had been snipped from such a distance, and that the venture was his own. He said he did not know as yet whether it would pay him well enough to repeat it. The lobsters went to Fulton Market.
