HOW ADVANTAGES OF CANADA ARE MADE KNOWN ABROAD

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, 146,396 immigrants were welcomed to this country. This was an appreciable increase over the preceding year, when the number of immigrants registered was 130,331. From July 1, 1882, to January 1, 1906, over 81,000 men, women and children have come from all parts of the world to make their homes in this fair Dominion. Of these, 41 per cent. are from the British Isles, 29 per cent. from the United States, and the remainder mostly from Europe.

How come these hundreds of thousands of our fellow mortals to the south and across the sea to hear of us, and what was it that impelled them to leave their native hearth to seek a living in this distant land? Emigration to this country has not reached the gigantic proportions it has to the United States, and the reasons are obvious. The American Republic looms big in the eyes of the world as a "land of the free" and a great world power. It has not labored under misrepresentations of its climate. Moreover, nearly all the trans-Atlantic steamship lines run to American ports, and from an immigration point of view that is a decided advantage. But the truth about Canada is being rapidly disseminated among the peoples of the old world, free agricultural land is now practically exhausted in the United States, and in consequence immigration into Canada is increasing greatly in volume every year.

A FIELD FOR SETTLEMENT.

The efforts of the Canadian Government to advertise Canada as a field for settlement are not in vain. Previous to the year 1902 no really vigorous immigration work was carried on, but in that year a new policy was adopted which has proved very successful. During the five years preceding 1902 immigrants from Great Britain and Ireland aggregated only 45,784, or a yearly average of 11,196. In the same year 48,563 Americans crossed the border and took up residence under the Union Jack. Compare these figures with those of 1904-05, when 63,329 persons from the United Kingdom, and 45,543 from the United States, streamed through the gates of Canada to help us till the land, build up our industries and augment our population. At present there are Canadian bureaus of information stationed throughout England and the United States whose business it is to circulate news of Canada, to promote the emigration of a desirable class to this country. In London, Liverpool, Birmingham, Cardiff, Glasgow, Dublin, Belfast, Antwerp and Paris may be found the authorized agents of the Dominion Government carrying on a vigorous emigration propaganda. Besides these there are numerous agents working in the agricultural towns and rural districts who are paid a commission by the Government for every emigrant they induce to come to Canada. Scattered throughout the middle and western States are seventeen Canadian agents engaged in persuading the agricultural neophytes of Uncle Sam to move across the border, and scratch their spades in the fertile soil of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Many and varied are the methods taken by these agencies to focus attention on Canada as a field for settlement. The three methods most commonly employed are advertising in the daily and weekly press, the distribution of descriptive matter at industrial fairs, and through the mails, and the agricultural population of Great Britain are a conservative and contented class, lacking enterprise and averse to leaving their native soil. Though British immigration is more desirable than that from any other country, the United States excepted, it must be admitted that we do not get from the old land the class of people this country most needs, namely, enterprising farmers with capital, farm laborers and domestic servants. This objection does not apply to immigration from the United States, for the American immigrant is usually a well-to-do farmer crossing the border to settle on land in the Canadian North-West. He is not lacking in enterprise, understands western methods of farming, and becomes readily naturalized. Years have been expressed that this influx of Americans into our territory will constitute a grave political danger to Canada, in that our new citizens from south of the line will continue to cherish an unreasonable regard for the Stars and Stripes, and clamor at no distant date for annexation. But there is really little ground for apprehension from this source, for as long as the British and Canadian born keep well in the ascendancy, the dominant note in our politics will be British, and not American.

VOLUME OF CORRESPONDENCE.

The volume of correspondence carried on by the department of immigration is enormous. Every letter of inquiry is answered, and a succinct and descriptive matter sent to the enquirer. Some agents make a point of calling on the most promising of their correspondents, those who have had a good deal of farming experience and possess sufficient capital to begin operations as soon as they come out. This is undoubtedly the best class, the class this country most needs, farmers with money and experience who come here with independent means and able to do for themselves.

Industrial exhibitions are taken advantage of to further attract attention to Canada. At every important fair, especially at world fairs, displays of Canadian produce are made, pamphlets placed at the disposal of visitors, and personal talks had with prospective emigrants. Where a good exhibition is not possible, agents simply rent a corner easily accessible to the rural population which flock to the fairs in great numbers. There are several points of view from which immigration propaganda work at industrial fairs, but in Great Britain results hardly justify the expense. Unless a really magnificent display is given, a display which is in no wise outshined by similar displays of other countries, good results can hardly be expected.

INVITING VISITORS TO CANADA.

An indirect, though none the less effective scheme of advertising Canada is the Canadian Bureau of Information stationed throughout England and the United States whose business it is to circulate news of Canada, to promote the emigration of a desirable class to this country. In London, Liverpool, Birmingham, Cardiff, Glasgow, Dublin, Belfast, Antwerp and Paris may be found the authorized agents of the Dominion Government carrying on a vigorous emigration propaganda. Besides these there are numerous agents working in the agricultural towns and rural districts who are paid a commission by the Government for every emigrant they induce to come to Canada. LEINSTER HALL, 40 Leinster Street. Ideal winter country. Where abundance of work and land is given away free. Besides the active promotion of immigration by the servants of the government and by settlers themselves, numerous other agencies are at work in the old land encouraging emigration to America, chief among which are the transportation companies, philanthropic societies and capitalists seeking cheap labor. The immigration promoted by these various parties and their methods merits a lengthy discussion, which the limitations of the present article will not permit. The subject is a very serious one, and one deserving exhaustive study and the special consideration of our legislators. The future population must be profoundly influenced by the immigration now pouring with ever-increasing volume into our territory and it behooves every patriotic citizen of the Dominion to see that the class of people coming to our shores is a desirable class, a class thrifty, intelligent and self-supporting, a class which will not pollute our cities nor trade our high standard of citizenship.
