Higgins used to carry it in the inside pocket of his coat. When I had it there was no cartridges in it. It was an American Bulldog. Higgins said it was a .42, but he fired 38 calibre cartridges out of it. Friday afternoon I was out at Little River swimming. Went out about half-past two and came in before six. I never saw Higgins or Doherty or Goodspeed that day. The night the body was found I saw Higgins on Brussels street and he told me it was Doherty. We were wondering who murdered him, and Higgins said he wished he knew so he could tell on him. He said the last time he had seen Doherty was Friday noon in the graveyard. Higgins said he could imagine no reason for the murder, as he did not think that Doherty had any enemies. Another time we were talking with Billy Brennan, Joe London and a couple of soldiers. Billy Brennan was talking of the finding on Doherty of a book with some address in it. He said a reporter had been talking to him about it and had said that he (Brennan) was the last one to whom the address in the book had been given.

One night after going down to Dr. Berryman's Higgins said to me: "I come out of the doctor's without being arrested."

...I'll go away, as I'm afraid of getting into trouble about that revolver. This was the second time we went there—about four days before he did go away.

The witness became somewhat confused under examination, but Mr. McKewen finally secured the positive assurance that Higgins had made this statement Thursday night.

"The day he went away," continued the witness, "I saw him over at the base ball grounds. That one reference was the only one he made about going away."

At the request of Mr. Mullin the court here across until eight o'clock in the evening.

...I saw him take a revolver. He came down and met me on the street and said: "I saw it in this morning that you told a reporter that I used to carry a revolver. Then he said: 'If you don't deny that you used to carry a revolver, I'll fix you too.'"

"He Won't Die"

Of consumption "is a cruel disease made of a fleshly man. The remark expresses the popular recognition of the fact that the sign of consumption is emaciation, loss of flesh. On the other hand, a gain in flesh is a sure sign that wasting diseases are being cured.

Emaciated people with obstinate coughs, bleeding lungs, night-sweats and weakness, have been perfectly cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The several steps of the cure were recorded in ounces and pounds of increasing weight.

to work it and could not do it. He has a pocket guard and the thing that is under the trigger and the trigger would not work. The revolver was then produced, and Goodspeed explained the damage to the weapon.

"This revolver is very much like the one Higgins had," he continued. "It was bent the same way at the guard. Higgins threw the revolver into the water when we came to the track and creek. Then we came up the track and I left him there about half-past nine.

Leelle Singer of Brimley street said: "I remember Friday, Aug. 1. I knew Doherty by sight. I was out Gilbert's lane that day and saw him and two other boys there between 1.30 and 2 going toward the park. I went into the park ahead of them. The last I saw of them was at the park entrance."

Edward Tobin, aged 16, of 13 Erin street, had known both Higgins and Doherty but was not with them when they were in the park. He had a revolver and shot a hole through a young fellow's hat.

James Hamilton told of the search for the revolver in the creek. Deputy Jenkins saw the revolver first through a telescope, and witness dove and got it. The revolver was positively identified. The place where it was found had been previously indicated by Goodspeed, who was brought down to the creek for the purpose.

Deputy Chief Jenkins was then called and testified: "I first learned of the murder in the park Monday afternoon in Aug. 1. I first talked to Higgins that evening."

IN FRONT OF THE DEAD HOUSE. I took him and Goodspeed and Harry McNeil into the police station after they had seen the body. There appeared to be some doubt as to the identity of the body, so I got a pall of water to wash the face and Higgins and Goodspeed again into the dead house. I uncovered the face and asked Higgins to look at it. I asked Goodspeed if it was Doherty. He said, "he thought it was Doherty. I washed some of the dirt off the face and taking hold of the body with Sgt. Kilpatrick, raised the body to a sitting position and asked Higgins to look at it."

Now look at him, Higgins, and see if you can tell. He said: "That's Willie Doherty all right." I could then see myself that it was Doherty, as I had known him previously.

Afterward that night, Higgins told me the last time he had seen Doherty was Friday at 1.15, when he was going along Sydney street with his father's dinner. I saw him again later that night and he repeated the same story, adding that he himself had remained in the graveyard all that afternoon. He said he had not been in the park that day. Had only been there once that year.
