

More bread and Better bread —And the Reason for it

A STRONG FLOUR can only be made from strong wheat. Manitoba hard wheat is acknowledged the strongest in the world—and that is the kind used for Purify Flour.

But that's not all. Every grain of this wheat contains both high-grade and low-grade properties. In separating the high-grade parts from the low-grade parts the Western Canada Flour Mills put the hard wheat through a process so exacting that not a single low-grade part has the remotest chance of getting in with the high-grade.

Of course this special process is more expensive to operate but it means a lot to Purify flour users—that's why we use it.

It means that Purify Flour is made entirely of the highest-grade flour parts of the strongest wheat in the world.

It means a high-class, strong flour and therefore yields "more bread and better bread."

Purify may cost a little more than some flours, but results prove it is the cheapest and most economical after all.

MORAN LOSES TO ATTEL AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Calif., June 25.—In spite of Governor Gillett's stand against prize fighting and his instructions to District Attorney Frederickson to stop the fight last night between Abe Attell and Owen Moran, they fought their ten round bout as scheduled, Attell receiving the newspaper decision. The district attorney did not interfere on the grounds that it was a "sparring bout" strictly within the law and not a prize fight. It was a hairline verdict with two such clever men in the ring, the bout could well have come under the designation of a "sparring contest," but they were strong on their feet at the finish, however, and neither showed any marks of the combat. The only blood that was shed flowed from Moran's nose in one of the early rounds. There was much display of hot temper too, and twice Moran was hooted for forgetting to stop when the gong sounded the end of a round. At the finish of the tenth the Englishman followed the featherweight champion out of the ring with outstretched hand but Attell refused to grasp it.

WOMAN WINS BLUE RIBBON FRENCH TURF

Paris, June 26.—The grand prix de Paris, was run today over the long champs course in a rainstorm, and was won by Mme. N. G. Chermette's bay colt Nuge, in a driving finish, by one length from W. K. Vanderbilt's Reinhardt. Baron de Rothschild's Bronzino was third. The grand prix de Paris is over a distance of one mile and seven furlongs, the value of the stake being $50,000. The betting was 9 to 1 against Nuge, 20 to 1 against Reinhardt, and 100 to 1 against Bronzino. The English cracks Lemberg, owned by Mr. Fairlie, who captured the English derby on June 1 in record time, and A. P. Cunliffe's Charles O'Malley, were made favorites in the betting, but they finished far back. Bulgaria, the King and queen of France greatly reduced the attendance, and the exhibition of frocks, for which this event is famous, was disappointing. This is the first time that a woman has won the grand prix de Paris.

NOT COMMITTED TO CHURCH UNION

Correspondent Objects to Action Recently Taken By The N. B. Methodist Conference—Not Authorized to Act

To the Editor of The Standard: Sir.—A statement has been made in the local press to the effect that a strongly worded resolution on the union of the Presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist churches was unanimously adopted at the recent session of the New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island Conference. Such a statement is very misleading and calculated to produce a wrong impression upon those who are not familiar with the facts of the case. Had the resolution in question been brought on earlier in the session when the great majority had left the seat of Conference without the least hint that such a motion was to be submitted.

While therefore the members remaining were large enough to make it legal, they were so small that it could not be fairly regarded as a confidential deliberation. But even if the full Conference had voted for it, it could only have been regarded as the personal opinion of its members. They had received no mandate from the people on the subject, and whether they are in favor of or opposed to union no one knows. No public addresses have been delivered, no church court has made any pronouncement, and the references made to it in the Wesleyan have certainly not championed the movement.

In view, therefore, of its tremendous and far-reaching importance, the far acquaintance of the people with what is involved in it, the course taken by the Montreal Conference in declining to deal with it until the people had been heard from, would appear to be a wise one than one that commits to it without having heard from them. Under the circumstances the delegates to the General Conference can only speak as individuals and have no authority to speak for the people.

3 BANDITS TERRORIZE CITY OF LYNN

Continued from page 1. All the bandits were Russian Poles. It is supposed that one of them was identified with the Jamaica Plain outlaws who committed two murders and terrorized that suburb of Boston in July, 1908. The same bandits are also suspected of complicity in a murder and robbery at Methuen, Mass. The ages of the robbers ranged from 20 to 25 years. The murder of Mr. Landrean and Officer Carroll occurred a few minutes after nine o'clock this afternoon. Accompanied by the policeman, according to his custom when returning from the bank with the company's pay roll, Mr. Landrean had neared the factory.

The bank is at the corner of Oxford and Market streets, and the police say that the three robbers were waiting diagonally across the street from the bank. As Mr. Landrean and Officer Carroll started down Oxford street the robbers followed them. As Willow street was reached the robbers had closed up behind their victims. At this point the factory of Welch and Landrean was but a few steps away. Two of the robbers, according to witnesses to the shooting, drew their revolvers and began firing at Mr. Landrean and the policeman. The manufacturer fell dead in his tracks with a bullet through his brain. He was also wounded in the left arm, and as he fell a third bullet lodged in his breast. Officer Carroll staggered a few steps down the street, then dropped unconscious. Seven bullets had lodged in his body, the fatal wound being through the left temple, the bullet penetrating the brain. A wound in the left shoulder had fractured his collar bone, another through the back passed through the stomach and abdomen, one bullet had gone through the right wrist, a fifth had wounded him in the right arm, while a sixth and seventh had found lodging in each of his legs. He died about twenty minutes later while being taken to the hospital.

Held Spectators At Bay. As the two victims fell the third robber seized the money bag, which Landrean and Carroll had been carrying between them and started up Oxford street. The bandits who had done the shooting made a demonstration with their revolvers, waving back all those who gave evidence of any intention of interfering. Finally these two ran after the man with the money bag. By this time the pursuit was taken up by shoe factory employees, automobilists, grocers in their delivery wagons, in fact, every one who had heard of the murder and robbery joined in the posse. Through a number of streets in the residential district the pursuit was followed, the bandits heading for High Rock, one of the most commanding heights in the city.

Whoever was met by the fleeing desperadoes was threatened with the wicked looking revolvers. Many shots were fired by the bandits at innocent persons whom the murderers mistook for pursuers.

Puckish Miss Baker. At one instance a horse belonging to Miss Bessie Baker of Essex street, was being held by a groom in front of the Baker house. As the bandits approached one of them grasped the horse by its bridle and threatening the groom with death if he did not comply, started down the street with the horse. Miss Baker, hearing the trouble, ran out of the house, took hold of the horse and held on. The bandit dropped the bridle and ran. A moment or two later when the police and other pursuers arrived, Miss Baker was able to tell them the direction taken by the robbers and

DOPE AFTER ANDREW ROSSA

Police Saw Terrible Sight As They Entered Siracuso's Room—Victim Was Lying On His Bed In Pool Of Blood—Assassin Had Looted The Till—Was Rossa Assisted By Another Man?

Continued from page 1. Although fearing that something had happened it was not until after four o'clock that Jones communicated his fears to Police Officer Rankine and Sergeant Campbell, who were on the York Point beat. The officer thinking that Siracuso was merely intoxicated, at first did not take Jones' story seriously, but was finally persuaded and determined to investigate.

Picking the front door of the building securely barred the officer went into the yard, only to find that the rear door was also strongly bolted. The window, however, was raised high and the officer saw the disturbed condition of the kitchen plainly showed that something unusual had transpired and going into the small back adjacent bed room Siracuso was found lying on his back in bed, his head in a pool of blood, and to all outward appearances, apparently dead.

Deadly Blow on Head. Surprised at the awful discovery, Dr. D. E. Berryman was quickly summoned, who, upon examining the man, found a fracture on the right side of the back of his head, and immediately ordered him to be removed to the General Public Hospital. He was unconscious and was unable to understand or speak a single sentence. That he was suffering intense pain could plainly be seen from his agonizing groans.

Great difficulty was experienced in securing the ambulance, and it was almost an hour after the discovery that it arrived on the scene. The news that a man had been found murdered in a house, spread like wildfire, and the street was soon literally packed with men, women and children eager to get a glimpse of the victim.

Attacked While He Slept. That Siracuso was stricken on the back of the head while he slept by a heavy club, and that in trying to reach his revolver, which was found lying fully loaded, under his pillow, he fell unconscious from the blow is the theory advanced, and that the assault was committed in the early hours of the morning, is indicated by the fact that much of the blood on the pillow was dry and hardened. That he never attempted to rise after falling from the bed is clearly shown from the fact that the blood was confined to one portion of the pillow. And while the articles in the room were somewhat disturbed, the disorder was not such as might be caused by a struggle between two men.

May Have Been a Quarrel. That the men quarreled, and that Rossa, awaiting until his friend had gone to sleep, determined to rob and murder him, and accordingly struck him with some heavy club while Siracuso lay prone on the bed, and that the attacked man made a desperate effort to reach his revolver, with which to defend himself, is plain evidence to those who visited the scene of the crime.

The disturbed condition of things about the rooms and Siracuso's pockets turned inside out showed that after committing his foul deed the criminal searched for what booty he could find. The cash till of the store was open and contained 16 cents in coppers. A dress case containing various articles identified by the Jones had also been searched, and some of the outside room which was used thus aided matters in their ultimate capture. Reaching the summit of High Rock, the bandits stopped long enough to divide the stolen money. Because of its weight, all of the silver, with the exception of some seven dollars which had been scattered by the winds, was left in the bag, and the bandits were hastily divided. The bag was then thrown down the side of the hill, where it was found later.

A Running Fight. After locating High Rock, the murderers, by a circuitous route they managed to reach a field off Six Foot street. It was near this point that Abraham Lyons of 229 Summer street, was shot by one of the bandits. Shortly after he was shot, the police discovered one of the bandits in a thicket near Ford street. Several shots were fired and some of them were returned by the fugitive. Closing in on him, the police called upon him to surrender. His answer was to place the muzzle of his weapon against his temple and send a bullet through his brain. He died instantly. An examination of his body showed that he had been wounded in five places before he had ended his life.

While the first bandit was being pursued a second was located by the police on Boston street, a short distance away. He surrendered only after he had been shot in the arm, the leg, the breast, and had his skull fractured by a bullet wound over his temple. He was taken to the Lynn hospital where his wounds were dressed. The report from the hospital this evening was that he would die. He said that his name was Andy Abson, and that he lived at 23 East 32nd street, New York city.

The third man was captured without any show of resistance. In some mysterious way all the fingers of his right hand had been shot away.

Mobbed by Townsmen. Returning from the hospital, the crowd had heard of the capture and made a dash at the robber, punched him, knocked him down and kicked him, and Lyons of 229 Summer street, who was shot by one of the bandits, struggled that the officers were able to lodge the prisoner safely within the station. This man gave his name as Baccini. He said that his home was in Boston, but that he had no fixed place of residence in that city. The last place where he had lived for any length of time, he said, was Lynn and his companions came to Lynn from Boston early this morning. The wounded man would not throw any light on the identity of the dead man, both taking refuge in the cus-by the men as a kitchen. Several other articles including a razor, a cheque book and court plaster were found upon the floor. A registered receipt for a letter to Messina, told a pathetic little story of a letter containing money to his aged mother in sunny Italy, perhaps a present to sweetheart, who is patiently awaiting his return.

Was This Weapon Used? A large heavy stick which it is claimed by the police and doctors, who attended the injured man, would have been the weapon used, was found lying near the open window from which the criminal made his exit. This, along with the blood stained handkerchief and other articles which are now in the possession of the police along with a good description of Rossa. Deputy Chief F. W. Jenkins and Detective P. Killen are at work on the case and every man on the force has been given a description of Rossa. Although it is thought that he has made good his escape from the city it is not thought likely that he can remain at liberty for any length of time, as a good description of him will be telegraphed to all points along the C. P. R. and I. C. R.

Had He An Accomplice? That Rossa had an accomplice and that they both attempted to leave the city yesterday on an early train would seem to be a fact from the statement of Patrick O'Neill, yard watchman at the I. C. R. depot, who claims that early yesterday morning he was approached by two foreigners, evidently Italians, who somewhat excitedly inquired about what time the first train left the city. They later left the yard but O'Neill cannot positively state the direction in which the men went.

This would seem to conflict slightly, however, with the statement of Miss Annie Wickham, who resides on North street, and who knew Rossa personally. Miss Wickham said last evening that while coming along Mill street about 7 o'clock yesterday morning she met Rossa, who remarked "Oh, you," but appeared to be in considerable hurry.

Siracuso seems to have been very slightly known about town. He came here in January, and having a little capital opened his store. He is about 23 years of age, and is of good physique. "Tony" Vendetta the scissor grinder said last night that he was a friend of the injured man and that on Saturday night they had planned to attend church together, and Siracuso had purchased a new suit, and pair of shoes for the occasion. He thought that Siracuso was upwards of $75 in the bank, and sides what sales he might have made on Saturday.

Description of Rossa. Rossa came to St. John about three months ago, from Montreal, but sometimes claimed that he came from Moncton. He is 2 years of age, 5 feet 4 inches in height, grey eyes, blonde or brown hair and weighs about 140 pounds. He walks erect and straight with his head slightly stopped. He has a red complexion, and a short neck. He is close shaven. He wears his hair quite long in front and parting it at the last side. He speaks fairly good English, but has a foreign accent, although he would scarcely be taken for an Italian. He wore a suit of dark brown with a blue stripe without a vest.

tomary excuse, "Me no speak English." It is believed the wounded bandit will not live tonight. Mr. Landrean, the murdered man, was 46 years old and married. He was one of the well known citizens of this city and was a junior partner of the shoe manufacturing firm of Welch and Landrean. Police Officer Carroll was 52 years old and married. He was prominent in the order of elks, being a past ex-ruler of the Lynn lodge.

Biograph Drawing Room Play at Nickel. At the Nickel today and Tuesday another of those attractive midsummer bills will be put on, headed by the Biograph society play "A Victim of Jealousy." It will be of interest to Biograph enthusiasts to know that this excellent aggregation of players has been back to New York from their Los Angeles sojourn for several weeks and are again producing those famous drawing room social plays upon which their reputation has been built. "A Victim of Jealousy" will be a happy return to this class of picture. In the opposite strain will be the Society play "A Mine of Gold" introducing rugged characters of the mining regions in a story of absorbing heart interest. "The Old Horse" will portray the faithfulness of a equine hero in the wilds of Russia and "Sooty Sketches" will be of original entertaining value. Miss Donn's vocal contribution will be Carrie Jacobs-Bond's dainty "Just Awearyin' Fur You," and Mr. Cairns will sing "Whistle and I'll Wait for You." The Nickel orchestra will have a light and airy summer programme.

Kicked by a Horse. About 8 o'clock yesterday morning William E. Straight was kicked by one of his horses in his barn on Wentworth street. Dr. Case was summoned, who found that his injury was serious and he was removed to the General Public Hospital.

FOUND HIS THEME IN NEW MONUMENT

The Champlain Monument Furnished Rev. H. A. Cody With Inspiration for a Very Powerful Discourse.

Lessons from the monument was the subject of an instructive address by Rev. H. A. Cody, pastor of St. James' church last evening. Beginning with a reference to memorials of a like character in Winnipeg, Montreal and Quebec, he mentioned how much we owed to their subjects. He also pointed out how much memorials are needed in any community. Enlarging on this point Mr. Cody said that St. John was in need of many things to make it beautiful. In the first place it needed more light. The cities of Los Angeles and San Francisco were made far more pleasant by their bright lighting. He went visitors to become impregnated with good impressions of this city during the coming Dominion Exhibition we must light our streets. The street that is most used on the way to the exhibition is altogether too dark. He stated also that there were many streets on the way to the grounds which could easily be beautified, notably Broad street.

There were in the city, the preacher said, many memorials of brave deeds, one to the soldiers of South Africa, one to a young man who gave his life for another, one to a statesman and this one to an explorer. These all went to beautify the city and we needed more of them. But could we erect a monument to any man of science, of literature and of art in St. John? Had the city produced men worthy of such a memorial.

This monument the speaker said, stands at the centre of eight crossing streets. So Christ stood at the centre of all the various roads of life. The great work of the sculptor McCarthy, one to the soldiers of South Africa, one to a young man who gave his life for another, one to a statesman and this one to an explorer. These all went to beautify the city and we needed more of them. But could we erect a monument to any man of science, of literature and of art in St. John? Had the city produced men worthy of such a memorial.
